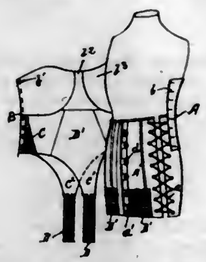
In a device of the class described the combination of a chuck secured to the end of a rotatably mounted cylindrical member; teeth on the outer perimeter of said chuck; a gear to mesh with said teeth; means to drive said gear in either direction; a scroll plate in said chuck having a flange on the back side thereof with radial members integral therewith; and a chuck stop, consisting of a slidable rod, having a handle thereon, mounted in suitable bearings adapted to engage with said radial members on the scroll plate to stop said plate when engaged therewith, to automatically tighten or loosen the jaws of said chuck as desired.

1,807,157. METHOD AND MACHINE FOR ELECTRO-PLATING. JAMES W. HUGHES, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Budd Wheel Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 23, 1926. Serial No. 150,215. 11 Claims. (Cl. 204—5.)

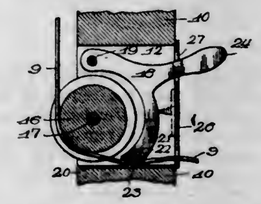
11. A method of combining electro-plating with "stripping" of deposited metal from article carriers, comprising the passage of an odd number of article carriers intermittently through an electrolytic solution, causing filled article carriers to have a negative electrical potential and empty article carriers to have a positive potential while at rest within said solution.



1,807,158. PAD HOLDER. JOHN B. KEMP, Ridgewood, N. J., assignor to Clark Loose Leaf Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 9, 1930. Serial No. 474,121. 6 Claims. (Cl. 40—120.)

1. A pad holder including a base, standards associated therewith for supporting the base in inclining position with respect to a supporting surface, a pad carried by the base, a securing screw extending through said pad and threaded means carried by the base independent of the standards for threadedly receiving the screw for retaining the pad on the base, said means being secured to the base by rivets securing therewith the standard to the base.

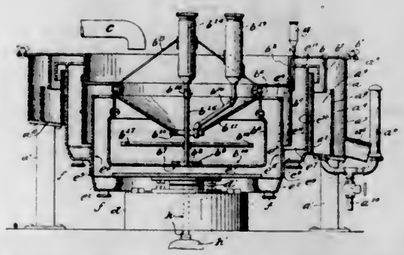
1,807,159. CORSET. CARL CLIFTON KOFORD, Erie, Pa., assignor to The Nubone Company, Inc., Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 12, 1928. Serial No. 269,571. 9 Claims. (Cl. 2—30.)



1. In a corset, corset front and back portions extending from the waist downwardly; and a brassière front having a line of detachable fasteners at each end detachably securing the brassière front to the corset at the ends, the brassière front comprising a belt adapted to extend across the waist below the bust and overlapping the corset front and individual bust pockets extending from the belt upwardly.

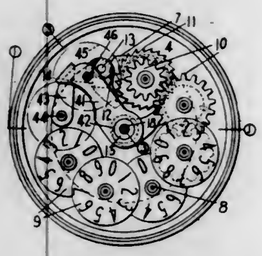
1,807,160. CONDIMENT HOLDER. GUSTAV F. KRAFT, Kansas City, Mo. Filed June 20, 1928. Serial No. 286,840. 2 Claims. (Cl. 65—45.)

1. A condiment holder comprising a pair of containers, a housing member having a discharge compartment for each of said containers, an extension from said housing member projecting between said containers, and a base member detachably fitted to the lower end of said extension and embracing the lower ends of both containers, the upper portion of said extension being formed with shoulders fitting over the upper inner margins of the containers to prevent sifting of the contents down between the extension and containers.



1,807,161. SPRING ROLLER CURTAIN. OTTO E. LOVEN, Forest Park, Ill. Filed Oct. 8, 1927. Serial No. 224,822. 1 Claim. (Cl. 156—10.)

In a device for holding taut the pull-cord of an outside window-shade, a casing mounted in a slot in the bottom bar of a window-screen frame, a pulley journalled in said casing at the outer edge thereof, the aforesaid pull-cord being adapted to pass under the pulley and through the casing so as to be accessible at a point inside of the screen, the bottom wall of said casing at a point inside of the pulley being provided with teeth for gripping the cord, and a lever pivotally mounted in said casing at a point above the pulley and extending inwardly and downwardly to a point where it may cooperate with said grip-teeth on the bottom wall of the casing by gravity, said lever being provided with a handle extending through the inner wall of said casing so as to be accessible inside the window-screen.



1,807,162. AMALGAMATOR. ROYER LUCKENBACH, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Aug. 23, 1928. Serial No. 301,506. 4 Claims. (Cl. 209—199.)

1. A device for separating mineral from ore comprising means to supply ore continuously, a cylindrical chamber having a vertical wall formed with an inwardly projecting flange adjacent the top thereof, means to rotate the chamber, means to introduce the ore into the chamber, said chamber containing a medium for separating the mineral from the ore, means to remove the separated mineral, a cover for the chamber, a depending receptacle carried by the cover within the chamber and formed with an aperture adjacent the axis thereof, a funnel carried by the cover and having its mouth coaxial with the aperture in the receptacle, a spreader disc within the receptacle below the funnel and extending adjacent the internal periphery thereof, and means to supply the ore to the disc.

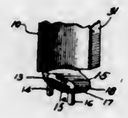
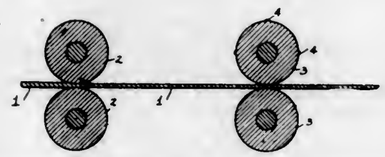
1,807,163. REGISTERING DEVICE. JOHN B. MILLS, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to Ohmer Fare Register Company, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 27, 1924. Serial No. 740,166. 7 Claims. (Cl. 235—95.)



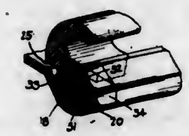
1. In a registering device comprising a supporting member, a stud arranged near the center of said member, a second stud carried by said member and spaced from the first mentioned stud and a registering element carried by the last mentioned stud, a bracket having an apertured portion engaging said central stud and extending substantially radially therefrom and also having a second apertured portion to engage said second stud, and means for mounting an additional registering element on said bracket at a point out of line with said studs.

1,807,164. HEAT EXCHANGE UNIT. ARTHUR B. MODINE, Racine, Wis., assignor to Modine Manufacturing Company, Racine, Wis., a Corporation of Wisconsin. Filed Mar. 25, 1927. Serial No. 178,489. 13 Claims. (Cl. 257—137.)



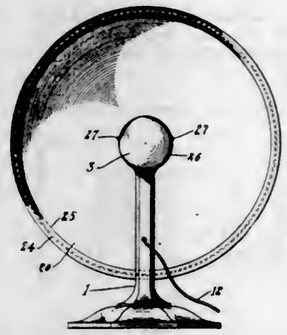
7. In apparatus of the kind described, the combination with a radiator unit comprising spaced tanks, and tubular means extending between the tanks and communicating therewith, of a bracket extending between said tanks and secured thereto, a motor supported by said bracket, the shaft of said motor extending through said radiator unit, a fan mounted on said shaft on the opposite side of said radiator unit from said motor, a housing member disposed around said radiator unit, and adjustable means secured to said housing member for deflecting in any desired direction the air issuing from said air advancing means.

1,807,165. SHUTTER FOR AUTOMOBILE RADIATORS. ADOLF MUELLER, Cheektowaga, N. Y., assignor to Irving Engineering Co., Inc., Sioux City, Iowa. Filed Mar. 20, 1930. Serial No. 437,409. 9 Claims. (Cl. 189—62.)



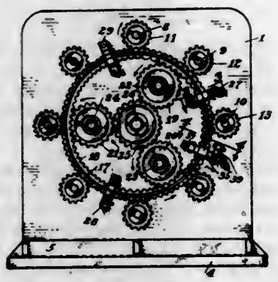
3. A shutter for motor vehicle radiators comprising a frame, a plurality of sheet metal vanes having inturned terminal tongues, a reinforcing member for each tongue having spaced parts projecting therefrom and constituting a pivoting part and an actuating part, said pintle part being engaged in a bearing in the frame, a push rod having bearings pivotally receiving the actuating parts, and means for shifting said push rod to effect a pivoting movement of the vanes.

1,807,166. GROOVED BEARING. JAMES L. MYERS, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, assignor to The Cleveland Graphite Bronze Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Original application filed May 9, 1923, Serial No. 637,818. Divided and this application filed Oct. 27, 1924. Serial No. 745,984. 2 Claims. (Cl. 308—237.)



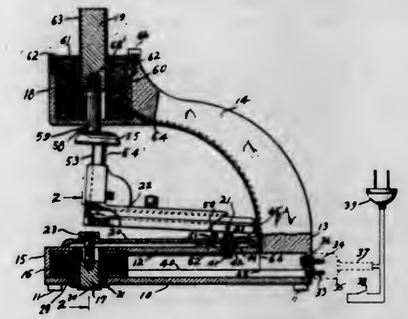
1. A split cylindrical sheet metal bearing having a cold pressed liquid lubricant distributing groove formed in the bearing surface thereof, the area of said groove constituting but a very small fraction of the total area of said bearing, and said groove being spaced at all points a material distance from the ends of said bearing.

1,807,167. VEHICLE WHEEL. EMIL A. NELSON, Abington, Pa., assignor to Budd Wheel Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Jan. 29, 1925. Serial No. 5,419. 1 Claim. (Cl. 152—21.)



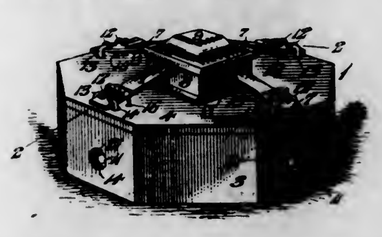
In combination, a vehicle rim having a circumferential depression adjacent one edge thereof and a notch formed in the lateral edge of said rim adjacent the depression, a retaining ring having a main body portion adapted to seat in said depression and an annular radially extending portion integral with said main body adapted to engage a tire securing flange, an axially extending notch in the periphery of said radially extending portion, an L-shaped member secured to said retaining ring and having a portion of one of its arms received within the notch in the retaining ring and another portion of said arm extended laterally beyond the tire securing flange engaging portion of said retaining ring, and an annular tire securing flange having a key-way on its inner circumference adapted to receive the last named portion of said arm, the other arm of said L-shaped member being adapted to be received within the notch in said rim.

1,807,168. LOUD SPEAKER. WEHELI D. PACK, Salt Lake City, Utah, assignor to Utah Radio Products Company, Incorporated, a Corporation of Utah. Filed Dec. 14, 1926. Serial No. 154,716. 4 Claims. (Cl. 181—31.)



1. An acoustic device of the character herein described comprising a cone-shaped diaphragm, said diaphragm being supported at its apex, and reinforced at its periphery by means of a resilient member and an annular band which prevents the cone from warping, thereby eliminating distortion.

1,807,169. PARTIAL SELF-WINDING MECHANISM. REMIGIO PERSICO, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Jan. 21, 1929. Serial No. 334,013. 5 Claims. (Cl. 185—9.)

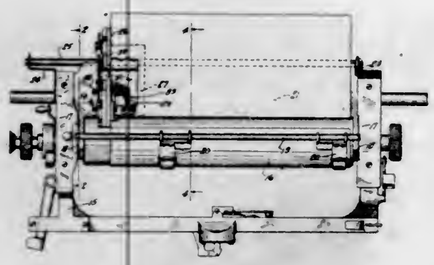


1. In a self-winding mechanism, a planetary gear shaft revolubly mounted in a series of supports, a planetary gear on the front end of said shaft, and a rewinding gear on the opposite end thereof, an actuating coil spring, the inner end of which is secured to the planetary gear shaft, and its outer end attached to one of the vertical supports, a spring clutch for transmitting clockwise motion from the actuating spring to the planetary gear, a rear central gear and shaft revolubly mounted in the series of vertical supports, means for transmitting motion from the planetary gear to the rear central gear, a rear clutch in periodic engagement with the rewinding gear, for transmitting and converting clockwise motion of the rear central gear, by means of the rewinding gear, into anti-clockwise motion in the planetary gear shaft, for partially rewinding the actuating spring, and extending the operating period of the whole mechanism.

1,807,170. STAPLING MACHINE. ROY E. PETERSON, East Norwalk, Conn., assignor to The E. H. Hotchkiss Company, Norwalk, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Oct. 28, 1929. Serial No. 402,817. 12 Claims. (Cl. 1—3.)

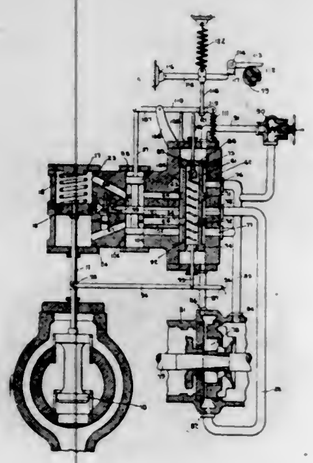
1. In a stapling machine, a movable plunger for driving the individual staples, movable anvils adapted to cooperate with the plunger to bend the prongs of the staple against the work, a solenoid, an armature operated by said solenoid having an operative connection with said plunger, a second solenoid, an armature operated by the second solenoid having an operative connection with the anvils, a switch for controlling the second solenoid and controlled by movement of the first armature and plunger, and a manually operated switch for controlling the first solenoid.

1,807,171. ANIMAL TRAP. GUILIO PISANI, Farwell, Pa., assignor of one-half to Santo Paoletti, Renovo, Pa., and one-half to Frank De Leece, Philadelphia, Pa. Substitute for application Serial No. 537,147, filed Feb. 17, 1922. This application filed Oct. 10, 1928. Serial No. 311,654. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—86.)



1. An animal trap, comprising a casing having a bait receiving chamber, and an aperture communicating with said chamber, a spring actuated trapping device to move across said aperture to trap the animal, means carried by said trapping device below the same to close said aperture when the trapping device is in its sprung position and means to retain said trap in set condition until released by the animal.

1,807,172. INDICATING DEVICE. CHARLES POKORA, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Nov. 5, 1928. Serial No. 317,440. 10 Claims. (Cl. 197—189.)



1. An indicating device for a machine having a rotatable paper holding member, comprising a frame, means in connection with said frame for detecting the passage of the end of a sheet of paper, signalling mechanism mounted on said frame and under the control of said detecting means, and attaching means to which the frame is movably connected having a portion adapted to extend beyond the sides of the machine to permit the frame to be moved to an out of the way position on the machine.

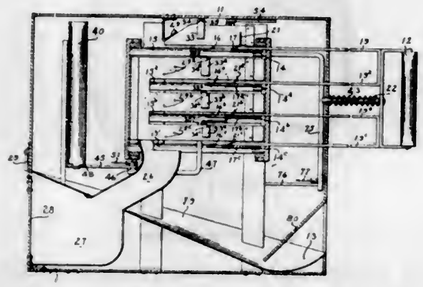
1,807,173. FLUID PRESSURE RELAY MECHANISM. JAMES L. RAY, Swarthmore, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 4, 1927. Serial No. 188,807. 8 Claims. (Cl. 121—42.)



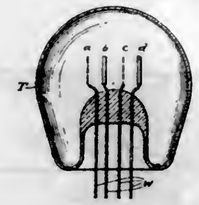
1. The combination with a prime mover having an admission valve and governor mechanism for controlling the valve of relay means for actuating said valve in accordance with the control of said governor mechanism and including a cylinder, an operating piston and a pilot valve for admitting liquid under pressure to said cylinder on each side of said piston and for discharging liquid therefrom, means for applying additional force for closing said valve, means for by-passing fluid from said cylinder on one side of said piston to said cylinder on the opposite side of said piston in a direction permitting said piston to move to close the valve and means for preventing by-passing of fluid through said means in the opposite direction.

1,807,174. RAIL FILLER. HOMER L. ROGERS, Dayton, Ohio, assignor to The Philip Carey Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed June 4, 1930. Serial No. 459,150. 12 Claims. (Cl. 238—9.)

1. In a rail filler a plurality of plastic members adapted to form a filler between the base and the ball of a rail.

1,807,175. COIN ACTUATED CHANGE MECHANISM. WILLIAM H. RUSSELL, New Haven, Conn. Filed June 30, 1924. Serial No. 723,213. 17 Claims. (Cl. 194—80.)

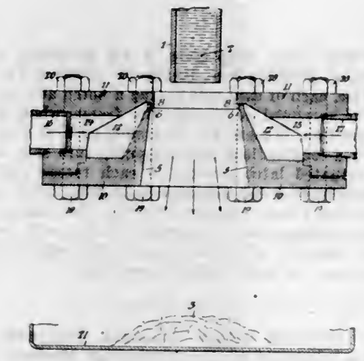
17. In a change making machine, a plurality of slides having registering slots therein of varying sizes, means providing an opening to direct a coin into said slots, means to retain a deposited coin in one of said slots according to the size thereof, means for engaging a coin when so supported and by pressure thereon to actuate said slides, a plurality of coin stacks, and arms carried on said slides and adapted upon actuation thereof to eject coins from said stacks, certain of said arms being adapted to engage other arms to effect a simultaneous actuation thereof.



1,807,176. METHOD OF INSULATING HIGH FREQUENCY TRANSFORMERS. KARL SCHMIDT, Berlin-Sudende, Germany, assignor to C. Lorenz Aktiengesellschaft, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany. Filed Sept. 2, 1924, Serial No. 735,531, and in Germany Sept. 7, 1923. 3 Claims. (Cl. 175—356.)

1. In a high frequency transformer, an iron core, individual laminæ for said core of a thickness less than .02 m. m. and capable of distortion, the thickness of said individual laminæ being such that said laminæ are distorted by radio frequency currents and an insulating liquid in the interstices between the individual laminæ forming a correspondingly thin insulating layer of uniform thickness throughout whereby hysteresis and eddy current losses are substantially limited.

1,807,177. GAS DISCHARGE TUBE. JOHANNES MICHAEL SCHMIERER, Lichterfelde, near Berlin, Germany, assignor to Radio Patents Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 10, 1924, Serial No. 749,037, and in Germany Dec. 31, 1923. 1 Claim. (Cl. 250—27.5.)



An ionic glow discharge tube containing gas and comprising a non-thermionic cold operating cathode, an anode, a grid electrode for controlling a glow discharge between said cathode and anode and a control electrode positioned outside the discharge space between said cathode and anode and on the opposite side of said cathode from said anode to maintain the electric glow discharge between said cathode and anode.

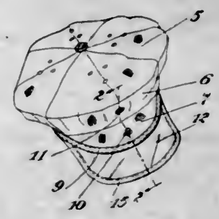
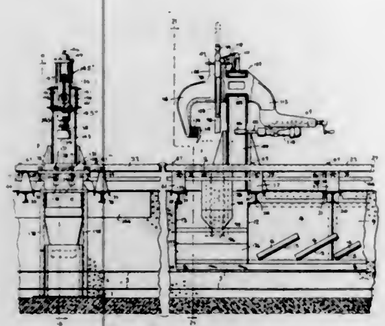
1,807,178. METHOD OF AND MEANS FOR MAKING SYNTHETIC AMPHIBOLIC PRODUCTS. GILBERT E. SEIL, Conshohocken, Pa. Filed Apr. 11, 1930. Serial No. 443,275. 8 Claims. (Cl. 83—91.)

1. The method of making synthetic amphibolic filaments, resembling cotton staple, in form, which consists in progressing a stream of molten liquid calcium and magnesium silicate within and by a tubular stream of compressed gas released to the atmosphere and moving, with accelerated velocity, in coaxial relation with said stream of liquid, and at such greater velocity than said liquid as to create a partial vacuum within said stream of gas, and impart such accelerated velocity to the liquid stream as to immediately shred it into filaments; said stream of liquid being initially in spaced relation with said stream of gas and surrounded by a zone of atmospheric air, serving to heat insulate it from the means for directing said stream of gas, and inducing, by the accelerated velocity of said gas stream, the flow of said atmospheric air around and with said liquid into the region of said partial vacuum, and contemporaneously cooling and discharging said filaments in solid form by the combined action of said streams of compressed gas and atmospheric air.



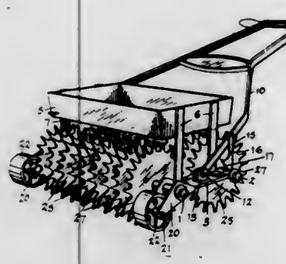
3. Means for effecting the method specified; including a conduit for the liquid; an ejector throat tube at the discharge end of said conduit, longitudinally spaced from said conduit within the range of its vacuum producing effect and in radially spaced relation therewith, affording a passageway for treated gases between said conduit and said tube parallel with the axis thereof; said ejector throat tube being parallel with the axis of said conduit at its end adjoining said conduit and outwardly flared at its end remote from said conduit.

1,807,179. PROPELLER HUB. JOHN W. SMITH, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 24, 1928. Serial No. 295,020. 8 Claims. (Cl. 170—173.)



1. A one-piece propeller hub to receive a drive shaft and a pair of complementary members associated with said hub for gripping the inner ends of blade portions, one of said members forming an integral part of said hub, the second member being formed with an opening, and means comprising a wedge collar cooperating with said shaft and hub to prevent relative movement thereof, and said means being accessible through said opening.

1,807,180. CAP. MAURICE SOLOMON, Yonkers, N. Y. Filed Oct. 22, 1929. Serial No. 401,426. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—195.)

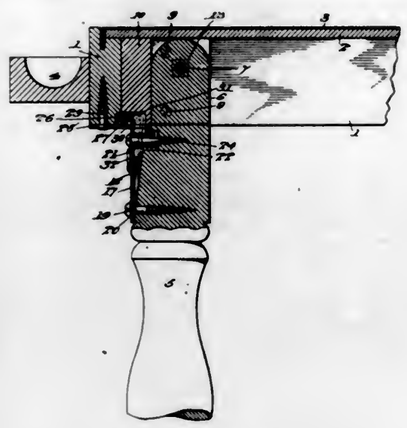


A cap comprising a crown and rim of flexible cloth material, a visor section secured to the front lower edge of the rim and projecting forwardly therefrom, said visor section being relatively rigid and embodying a plurality of opaque cloth laminations, a second visor section of translucent material and of greater area than said first visor section permanently and fixedly secured at its rear edge to the forward edge of the first visor section, said first visor section and the cap rim having coacting fastener elements secured thereto, said rim adapted to be folded downwardly upon said visor section to connect said fastener elements and extending forwardly beyond the front edge thereof and upon the transparent visor section to partially cover the latter.

1,807,181. APPARATUS FOR FREEING CASTINGS FROM SAND AND GATES. WILLIAM C. SPECK and EUGENE BARKER, Columbus, Ohio, assignors to The Buckeye Steel Castings Company, Columbus, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Jan. 14, 1929. Serial No. 332,344. 11 Claims. (Cl. 22—1.)

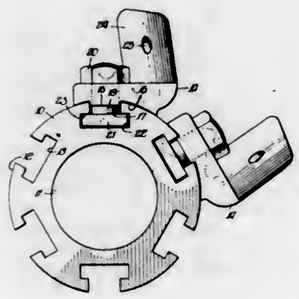
1. In an apparatus of the character described which has a carrier for castings and devices located adjacent one point thereon to free the castings from sand, of means for conveying a casting from the carrier to such devices, supporting the same in operative relation therewith and restoring the casting to the carrier.

1,807,182. DISK CULTIVATOR. FRANK H. STONER, Monroe, Mich. Filed Sept. 18, 1930. Serial No. 482,799. 4 Claims. (Cl. 55—11.)



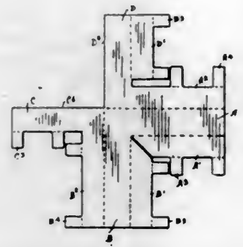
1. In a disk cultivator, a pair of shafts, a pair of end members connected to the ends of the shafts, the end members movable relative to each other, a plurality of disks rotatably supported by the shafts and having teeth projecting from the peripheries of the disks, a part for operating the cultivator connected to the end members.

1,807,183. TREATING OILS. WILLIAM M. STRATFORD, Port Arthur, Tex., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Texas Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 24, 1924. Serial No. 752,004. 5 Claims. (Cl. 196—147.)



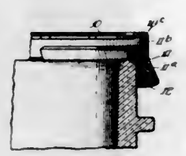
5. The process of treating and purifying hydrocarbon lubricating oil which comprises agitating the oil with sulfuric acid in two portions, the first portion constituting not more than one-third of the total quantity of acid used, coagulating acid and sludge products after each acid treatment by agitating the mixture of acid and oil with a comminuted solid material, and neutralizing the oil after the second acid treatment and coagulation by mixing with an alkaline solution and passing steam into the mixture.

1,807,184. FOLDING TABLE. ANDREW WAGNER, West Hoboken, N. J., assignor to Ferguson Brothers Manufacturing Company, Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Mar. 3, 1928. Serial No. 258,816. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—11.)



1. A folding table comprising, a top including a depending frame, foldable legs, means for pivoting the legs to said frame, each of said legs having a notch adjacent its pivoted end arranged to engage the frame when in its unfolded position, keepers on the frame, each of said legs also having a longitudinal recess opening into said notch, a spring actuated latch pivoted in each recess and provided with a hooked end disposed in position to overhang the notch and project outwardly from the recess, said legs being arranged to be swung to bring said hooked ends into coaction with the keepers for automatically locking the legs in their unfolded position.

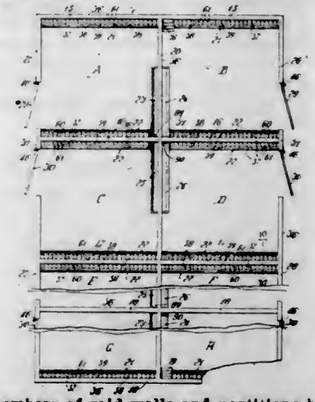
1,807,185. CUTTER HEAD. HARRY S. WALTHERS, Beloit, Wis., assignor to Yates-American Machine Company, Beloit, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 22, 1929. Serial No. 379,961. 3 Claims. (Cl. 144—224.)



1. A cylindrical cutter head having transverse T slots therein, a plurality of inwardly concave knife carriers of slightly less radius than the head having transverse ribs thereon for arrangement about the head in snug complementary interfitting relation thereto with the ribs positioned in the outer narrow portions of the slots, and headed bolts in the wide portions of the slots projecting outwardly through apertures in the ribs for holding the carriers against radial displacement.

1,807,186. FRAME CONSTRUCTION. JOHN FRAZER WARNER, Muncie, Ind., assignor to Charles R. Wayman, Dayton, Ohio. Filed Feb. 12, 1930. Serial No. 427,863. 3 Claims. (Cl. 20—92.)

2. A jointure device of the kind described, consisting of a metal plate formed to constitute two body sections in right angle relation to each other, and each being provided with opposed flanges having lateral fingers, the flange of the exterior side of each of said body portions having an extension, and the said opposed flanges being bent to confronting status, and the meeting edges of the said exterior flanges and of said extensions being united, the structure thus provided constituting two channels meeting each other at right angles, and exterior stays at the meeting portions of the said channels.



1,807,187. METHOD OF MAKING CLOSURE CAPS. WILLIAM P. WHITE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to White Cap Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed May 21, 1928. Serial No. 279,390. 9 Claims. (Cl. 113—80.)

1. A method of making a closure for vessels comprising forming a cap with an annular skirt portion having a holding part and a flaring part terminating at an inturned marginal flange, forming a sleeve gasket of compressible elastic material of greater circumference than said holding part, subjecting the gasket while in substantially cylindrical form to circumferential compression to reduce its size to a circumference less than that of the holding part, inserting the gasket, as thus compressed, within the skirt portion of the cap, releasing the gasket to the constraining retention of the skirt portion, and pressing the lower portion of the gasket upwardly to a position overlying the marginal flange of the cap.

1,807,188. STOCK PEN. WILLIAM S. WITTEN, Pasadena, Calif. Filed Aug. 1, 1928. Serial No. 296,702. 11 Claims. (Cl. 119—30.)

1. A block of pens for confining animals comprising four outer walls, partitions dividing the space between said outer walls into a group of rectangular pens, and posts at the points of juncture of said walls and partitions, the top members of said walls and partitions being in the form of parallel trusses that extend over and are clamped to said posts.

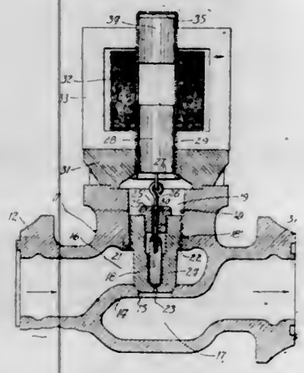
1,807,189. FOOD PRODUCT AND PROCESS OF MAKING THE SAME. KEN E. BEMIS, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, to Fountain Products Corporation, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 16, 1927. Serial No. 175,718. 3 Claims. (Cl. 99—10.)

2. The herein described process of making a food product of the class described, consisting in slitting a bun at its edge to form a pocket closed at its sides and bottom end, assembling a filler of meat or equivalent product and an appetizer and enclosing the filler in a garnish and then inserting the assembled filler into the pocket of the bun.



1,807,190. ELECTRIC REGULATION SYSTEM. WALTHER BOCK, Berlin-Steglitz, Germany, and KARL RATH, New York, N. Y., assignors to C. Lorenz, A. G., Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany. Original application filed Mar. 8, 1928, Serial No. 261,095, and in Germany Apr. 1, 1927. Divided and this application filed Mar. 21, 1930. Serial No. 437,901. 13 Claims. (Cl. 171—119.)

1. In a vibration regulator for periodic influencing of a magnitude to be regulated, electrical means for determining the amount of regulation, comprising a relay with contacts, means to periodically operate said contacts for controlling the periodic influencing of said magnitude to be regulated, a condenser, means for charging and discharging said condenser for controlling the ratio of closing to opening period of said relay and further means, dependent on the magnitude to be regulated, to determine the rate of the charging and discharging of said condenser.

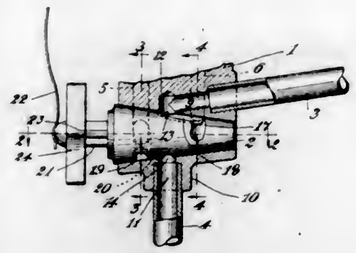
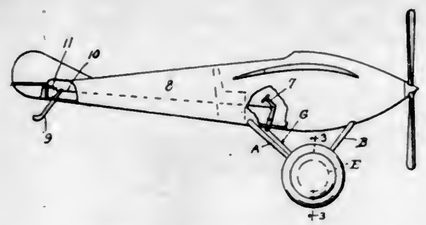
1,807,191. ELECTRICALLY OPERATED VALVE. JOHN R. BOYLE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 24, 1930. Serial No. 438,268. 18 Claims. (Cl. 137—139.)



1. A valve device comprising a casing having inlet and outlet passageways, a valve port therebetween, a main valve for closing said port, a chamber communicating with one of said passageways, said main valve being responsive to the pressure condition in said chamber, a by-pass for placing said chamber in communication with the other of said passageways, a by-pass valve controlling said by-pass, electromagnetic means for operating said valve device comprising an armature, and means connecting said armature with said secondary valve and with said main valve whereby said armature is operative to open said by-pass valve and to exert mechanical force on said main valve for moving the latter to open position.

1,807,192. ATTACHMENT FOR CALCULATING MACHINES. EDWIN F. BAITTEN, Jr., Maplewood, N. J., assignor to Monroe Calculating Machine Company, Orange, N. J., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 15, 1929. Serial No. 386,050. 6 Claims. (Cl. 235—63.)

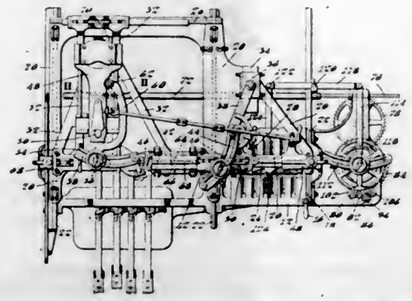


1. In a calculating machine, the combination of calculating mechanism, a transversely movable carriage, means for moving said carriage transversely, a tension device co-operative with said carriage moving means and adapted to retard operation thereof, and means for automatically rendering said tension device effective and ineffective.

1,807,193. VALVE. WILLIAM H. BROOKS, Oconomowoc, Wis., assignor to Carnation Company, Oconomowoc, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 16, 1928. Serial No. 293,169. 5 Claims. (Cl. 251—104.)

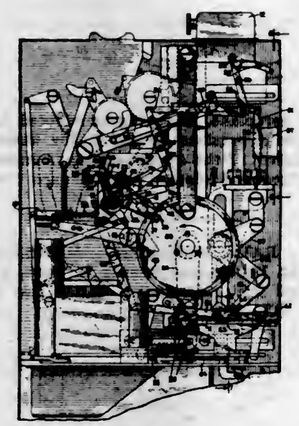
1. The combination of a casing having a bore, a valve received in said bore and engaging the inside surface thereof as a seat, said casing having channels on opposite sides of the bore and communicating therewith through ports, said channels being spaced apart along the axis of the valve, said seat also having ports above and below the valve between said channels, conduits leading to said last named ports, the valve having transverse grooves adjacent each of said channels and longitudinal grooves communicating with the transverse grooves to connect said channels and conduits with said ports, the transverse grooves being shaped so as to make the wear of the valve uniform on said seat.

1,807,194. SAFETY BRAKING MECHANISM FOR AEROPLANES. WAYNE BUEHER, Reno, Nev. Filed Aug. 8, 1929. Serial No. 384,296. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—2.)



1. In an aeroplane, a landing gear, a braking mechanism associated with the landing gear, means for operating the braking mechanism, means operated from the braking mechanism for releasing the braking means should there be a tendency of the aeroplane to nose, a tail skid pivotally mounted, and means operatively connecting the tail skid with the brake operating means to release said braking means when the tail skid is out of ground engaging contact and to apply the braking mechanism when in ground engaging contact.

1,807,195. PATTERN GRADING MACHINE. ELMER H. BURKE, Lynn, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to United Shoe Machinery Corporation, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 7, 1927, Serial No. 197,116. Renewed Oct. 12, 1928. 17 Claims. (Cl. 33—23.)



1. In a pattern grading machine, four primary instrumentalities, viz, a model holder, a work holder, a model follower and a tool and grading connections between them arranged to reproduce a plane model held in the model holder in a plane workpiece held in the work holder, and means for shifting one of the said primary instrumentalities in a certain direction parallel to the plane of the reproduction, said means being operated by relative movement of two of said primary instrumentalities in a direction transverse to said certain direction and comprising a rack bar connected to one of the said two primary instrumentalities, a pivoted arm, gearing connecting the rack bar to the arm, and means for adjustably connecting the pivoted arm to the primary instrumentality which is to be shifted.

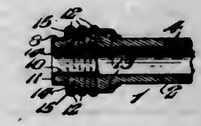
1,807,196. MULTIPLE FARE COLLECTING AND CHANGE MAKING MACHINE. CHARLES E. CHALMERS, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 5, 1925. Serial No. 13,384. 6 Claims. (Cl. 235—32.)

1. In a multiple fare collecting machine having a single chute for receiving the deposited coins of different denominations, and means for ejecting a change coin or coins controlled by deposited coins of any denomination in combination with a single means for varying at the will of the operator the fraction returned of any particular coin deposited, and an error means to reset the single means, and means to lock the error means against actuation upon the machine being partially operated.



1,807,197. HAMMER MILL. WALTER J. CLEMENT, Utica, N. Y., assignor to The Bossert Corporation, Utica, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 5, 1928. Serial No. 282,961. 9 Claims. (Cl. 83—11.)

1. A mechanism of the class described comprising a casing, operative mechanism within said casing, a chute for delivering material to be treated by said mechanism to said casing, the adjacent end of said chute being spaced from a portion of said casing, and an element adjustable to and from a position bridging said space and when in bridging position forming a continuation of said chute.

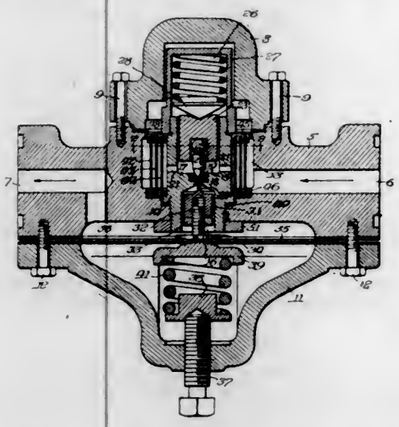
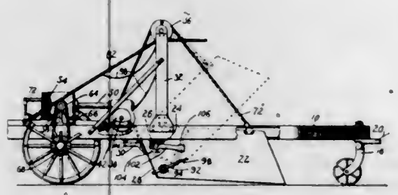
1,807,198. COMBINED INNER METAL SHIELD AND OUTER METAL GRIP FOR BOBBINS AND THE METHOD OF MAKING SAME. CLARENCE E. CUNDEY, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to James H. Billington Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed July 19, 1928. Serial No. 293,828. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—121.)



1. In a bobbin of the character stated, an elongated tubular body portion, having an enlarged lower terminal portion, a plurality of spaced individual annular metallic rings on said enlarged terminal portion, an integral inner metallic shield and outer metallic grip cylinder upon said terminal of the bobbin, said inner metallic shield extending into the bore thereof, and said outer portion surrounding said rings and encasing the same snugly, so as to form a plurality of outer, spaced annular, integral metal-encased beads.

1,807,199. WINDING DEVICE. RUSSELL DEAN, Dayton, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Delco Products Corporation, Dayton, Ohio, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 14, 1928. Serial No. 319,367. 22 Claims. (Cl. 242—87.)

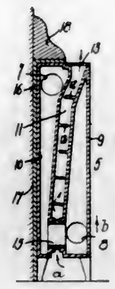


1. A form for winding a plurality of coils, comprising, in combination, a plurality of form sectors, each adapted to have a coil wound thereon, a plurality of arms extending radially from each of said form sectors, and means for simultaneously moving the arms of all of said sectors to permit the removal of the wound coils.

1,807,200. EXPANSION VALVE. FRENCH E. DENNISON and WARD S. IRELAND, Beloit, Wis., assignors to National Refrigeration Corporation, Beloit, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Jan. 29, 1926, Serial No. 84,573. Divided and this application filed June 18, 1928. Serial No. 286,102. 6 Claims. (Cl. 50—23.)

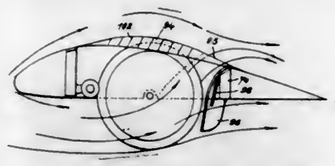
1. In a valve, the combination of a casing provided with a valve seat, a circular bore extending upwardly from said seat, a polygonal valve guide slidably disposed in said bore and provided at its lower end with a socket, a ball disposed in said socket, and a valve projecting into said socket and engaging said ball, said guide through said ball being adapted to force said valve against its seat.

1,807,201. WHEELED SCRAPER. ELMER E. DORAN, Merced, Calif. Filed Jan. 27, 1930. Serial No. 423,683. 6 Claims. (Cl. 37—131.)



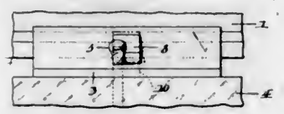
3. In a scraper device, a frame, a scraper pan pivoted thereon, said scraper pan being provided with a swinging gate pivoted at its upper rear end, a spring pressed latch pivoted on the scraper pan for normally holding the gate in closed position, a dumping arm carried by the frame, and a cam on said arm for engaging and releasing the latch when the pan has been raised to a predetermined position.

5. In a scraper device, a scraper pan pivotally mounted, a swinging gate hinged at its upper end for normally closing the rear end of said pan, a bracket fixed to the rear face of said gate and formed with a tapped seat, and a threaded stop member adjustably mounted in said seat and adapted to engage the upper part of the pan for adjustably controlling the extent of opening of the gate.



6. In a scraper device, a frame, a scraper pan pivotally mounted thereon, a swinging gate hinged at its upper end for normally closing the rear end of said pan, a slide bearing carried by the frame at the rear of said pan, and a spring pressed pin mounted in said bearing, said gate having a part arranged for engagement with said pin as the pan is lowered, for automatically closing said gate.

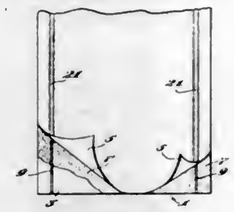
1,807,202. BASEBOARD RADIATOR. LOUIS DVILNSKY, Brookline, Mass. Filed Mar. 12, 1930. Serial No. 435,110. 2 Claims. (Cl. 257—133.)



1. A baseboard radiator having, in combination, two hollow sections spaced apart by an air chamber open at the top and bottom, baffle plates in said chamber positioned in staggered relation to each other, and means to conduct heated fluid into and out of said sections.

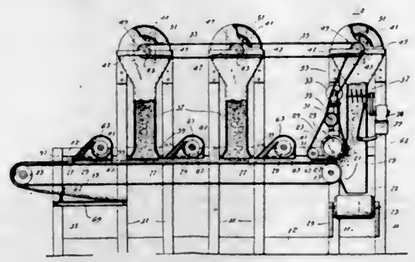
1,807,203. CONSTRUCTION OF AEROPLANES. VICTOR EHMIG, La Garenne Colombes, France. Filed Sept. 17, 1930, Serial No. 482,441, and in France Sept. 19, 1929. 6 Claims. (Cl. 244—2.)

2. In an aeroplane, landing gear adapted to be raised, curved covering portions formed in the wings to receive the upper halves of the wheels, and flaps mounted on said curved portions and adapted to open upon the top of the wings.



1,807,204. RAIL RETAINING MEMBER. ROBERT FARIES, St. Davids, and ROBERT H. BOYD, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Jan. 10, 1931. Serial No. 507,823. 5 Claims. (Cl. 238—304.)

1. In combination, a rail, a tie plate having a slot therein and having a rib between said slot and the rail flange, a retaining member passing through said rib to a position above the rail flange, and a spike passing through the slot in said tie plate and adapted to hold said retaining member against lateral displacement, said tie plate having at said slot a surface inclined to the longitudinal axis of the rail.



1,807,205. MULCH FOR PROMOTING GROWTH OF PLANTS. WILLIAM M. FLORING, Newton Center, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Ruberoid Co., Bound Brook, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 21, 1928. Serial No. 271,778. 2 Claims. (Cl. 47—9.)

1. A mulch comprising a strip composed of outer layers of strong tough paper and an inner layer of waterproof material, filaments embedded in the inner layer and extending parallel to the longitudinal edges of the strip but spaced inwardly therefrom to allow trimming the edges of the strip outward of the filaments, said filaments forming visible ridges on the outer paper layers.

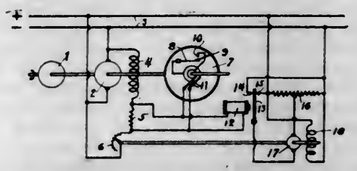
1,807,206. MICA LAYING APPARATUS. LOUIS T. FREDERICK, Valparaiso, Ind., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Continental Diamond Fibre Company, Newark, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 18, 1928. Serial No. 286,316. 15 Claims. (Cl. 154—2.5.)

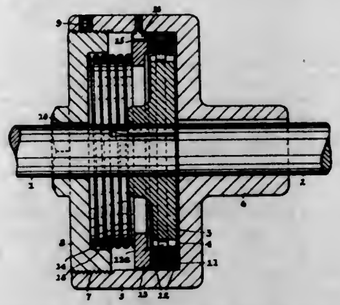
1. In a mica laying machine in combination, a mica receiver adapted to carry a layer of mica flakes, means for selecting and depositing a substantially uniform layer of mica flakes in said receiver, said means comprising means forming an enclosed chamber having an opening in its sides, means for creating a cloud of tumbling mica flakes in the chamber, a suction device extending in the opening of the chamber whereby to select the lighter flakes from the cloud therein and a transfer device comprising a foraminous conveyor extending in the opening aforesaid in front of the suction device in position to receive the selected flakes, remove same from the chamber and deposit same as a uniform layer in the receiver and means for snowing a layer of mica flakes into the receiver upon the substantially uniform layer of selected flakes.

1,807,207. DOLL-HEAD AND THE LIKE. ARTHUR FRISCH, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Apr. 18, 1929. Serial No. 356,008. 11 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)



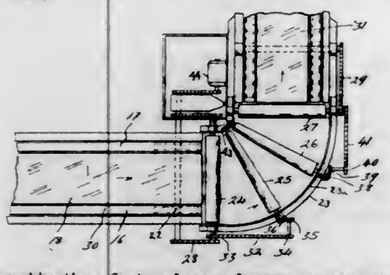
1. In combination with a head for toy figures having a mouth opening, upper and lower teeth at the inner side of the mouth opening, a tongue member, means supporting the tongue member and the teeth at one side of the mouth opening for relative movement, and a common means operable by tilting the head from an upright position for relatively moving said movable teeth and the tongue member.

1,807,208. TREATING TEXTILE MATERIAL WITH CHROMIUM. JOHN LEATHART HANKEY, Sale, Manchester, England. Filed Apr. 4, 1929, Serial No. 352,615, and in Great Britain Apr. 30, 1928. 7 Claims. (Cl. 8—13.)



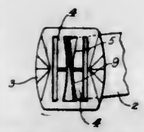
1. The process of fixing chromium on textile fibre which consists in treating such fibre with a mixture consisting of a chromate of an alkali metal and a sulphoxylate of an alkali metal, and ageing.

1,807,209. SPEED REGULATING SYSTEM. ROBERT HERZOG, Berlin, Germany, assignor to C. Lorenz Aktiengesellschaft, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany. Filed Apr. 27, 1928, Serial No. 273,807, and in Germany May 4, 1927. 14 Claims. (Cl. 171—229.)



13. In a regulating system, comprising means for periodically imposing on and withdrawing a regulating action from a magnitude to be maintained constant at a normal value, means responsive to deviations of said magnitude from said normal value for varying the ratio of a period of imposed regulating action to a period of withdrawn regulating action, and further means responsive to said last mentioned means for adjusting said first means to maintain said ratio substantially equal to one.

1,807,210. FRICTION COUPLING. FLORENT HINNEKENS, Paterson, N. J., assignor to Van Vlaanderen Machine Company, Paterson, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 4, 1926. Serial No. 146,168. 4 Claims. (Cl. 64—106.)

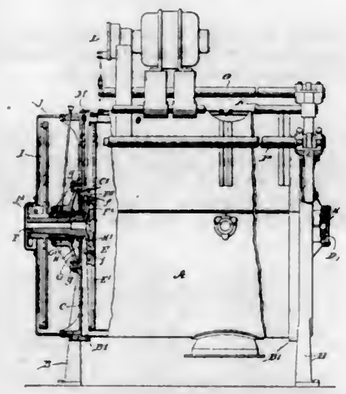


3. In combination, rotary driving and driven coupling members, one member including an annulus surrounding the axis of such member and a body in which said annulus is rotative independently thereof and around said axis, said body having means, exerting slip-friction grip on the annulus, to resist rotation thereof independently of said body, and said annulus and the other member being freely shiftable, one relatively to the other, from a position in which their axes are alined to a position in which said axes are angularly related to each other and having tooth means to positively interlock them for rotation together.

1,807,211. CONVEYER MECHANISM. WALTER V. HOSFEN, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Brown-Hutchinson Iron Works, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Mar. 26, 1930. Serial No. 439,206. 1 Claim. (Cl. 198—19.)

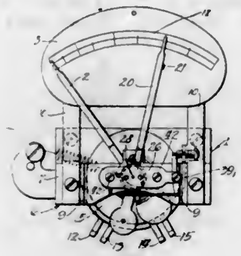
In combination, first and second conveyers arranged at angles to one another, each of said conveyers including a plurality of endless belts, horizontal curved supports positioned between the discharge end of the first conveyer and the leading end of the second conveyer, a first cylindrical roller journaled in said supports and positioned at the discharge end of the first conveyer, a prime mover arranged adjacent to the inner one of the curved supports, means positioned in close proximity to the inner support for directly driving the belts of the first conveyer and the cylindrical roller, first and second tapered rollers journaled in said supports and tapering toward the inner support, driving means for the first tapered roller connecting the outer end of that roller to the outer end of the cylindrical roller, driving means for the second tapered roller connecting the inner ends of the tapered rollers, a second cylindrical roller positioned at the leading end of the second conveyer, and means at the outer ends of the second tapered roller and second cylindrical roller for driving the second cylindrical roller and the belts of the second conveyer from the second tapered roller.

1,807,212. BUCKLE. GLENN E. HOLMES and MORRIS TREIMAN, St. Louis, Mo., assignors to Mexican American Hat Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Dec. 14, 1928. Serial No. 325,976. 5 Claims. (Cl. 24—198.)



1. A buckle, comprising, an open frame having a pair of band-receiving cross bars provided with curved, band-receiving edges mutually convex toward each other adapted each to receive the pull of the band when doubled thereover in a direction radial to said curve at varying angles of pull.

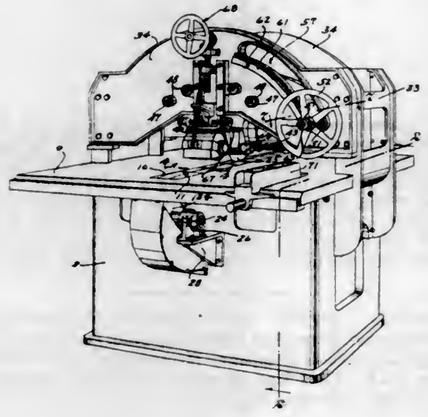
1,807,213. PRICE TICKET HOLDER. LEO HOPP, New York, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Harriett Gold and one-half to George Hopp, New York, N. Y. Filed June 17, 1929. Serial No. 371,642. 8 Claims. (Cl. 40—5.)



1. A price ticket display device comprising a ticket carrying member, a plurality of eyes projecting rearwardly therefrom, a second ticket carrying element, said second ticket carrying element having means for engagement within said eyes to support the second mentioned ticket carrying element in superimposed relation to the first mentioned ticket holder.

1,807,214. WASHING MACHINE. WILLIAM H. JAXHEIMER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Smith, Drum & Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 2, 1929. Serial No. 359,974. 1 Claim. (Cl. 68—18.)

A washing machine comprising a rotatable cylinder having a stub shaft secured to one end, a driving shaft having a flanged inner end rigidly but detachably secured to its other end by fastening means in combination with a casing having a bearing for the stub shaft secured to one end plate and the other end plate formed with an opening of larger size than the flanged end of the driving shaft, of such conformation as to permit of the passage of the flanged end of the driving shaft therethrough and to afford access to the fastening mechanism by which the flange is secured to the end of the cylinder, a closure for said opening support, a bearing for the driving shaft detachably secured to the outer face of the end plate and a second closure plate detachably secured inside of the first closure plate supporting a stuffing box for the shaft.



1,807,215. METER. LEWIS DANA JOHNSON, Springfield, Ill., assignor to Lincoln Meter Company, Springfield, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 6, 1930. Serial No. 473,352. 15 Claims. (Cl. 116—129.)

1. In a meter instrument having a freely rotatable indicator, means for holding said member in a given position comprising a friction member movable with said indicator, a second member adapted to frictionally contact with the circumference of said first member uniformly on both sides thereof, and resilient means for yieldingly maintaining said contact.

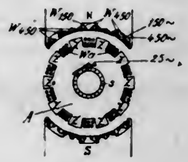
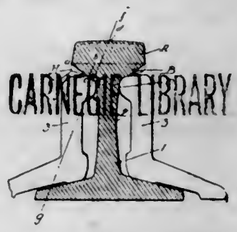
1,807,216. MACHINE FOR SAWING MATERIAL AT VARIOUS ANGLES. ROY E. JOHNSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Mar. 26, 1930. Serial No. 439,001. 4 Claims. (Cl. 143—36.)



4. In a sawing machine, a work table having a longitudinal slot therein, an endless conveyor working in said slot and projecting slightly above the top of said table, said conveyor having a longitudinal groove therein, laterally spaced frame members extended across the top of said work table transversely to the endless conveyor, opposed arcuate guides carried by said frame members and the axis of said guides being within the conveyor groove, an arcuate slide carried by each of said radial guides, and a circular saw carried by and between said slides above said conveyor, said saw being adapted to work in the conveyor groove, and slidably adjustable with said slides about the axis of the arcuate guides whereby the saw may be tilted into various angles substantially without changing the position of its bottom in respect to the conveyor groove.

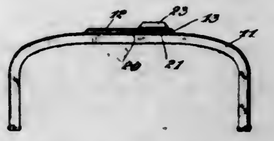
1,807,217. LOCOMOTIVE DRIVING ROD CONNECTION. WILLIAM G. KNIGHT, Derby, Me. Filed May 18, 1929. Serial No. 364,138. 9 Claims. (Cl. 105—84.)



1. In a locomotive engine having a plurality of driving axles, the combination of a main crank pin; a main connecting rod coupled thereto; coupling rods fitted on the main pin, independently of the main connecting rod, and concentric with said main crank pin; and a separate floating bushing for each of the rods mounted directly upon the main crank pin.

1,807,218. ELECTRIC MACHINE. WILHELM LANGEWIESCHE, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany, assignor to C. Lorenz-Aktiengesellschaft, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany. Filed Apr. 10, 1928, Serial No. 268,938, and in Germany Mar. 18, 1927. 5 Claims. (Cl. 171—252.)

5. A multi-frequency alternating current dynamo electric machine, operating on the variable reluctance principle, comprising a stator, a toothed rotor, at least two generating windings arranged on said stator, the pitch of each of said generating windings being a different fraction of the pitch of the teeth of said rotor.



1,807,219. RAIL. GEORGE LANGFORD, Joliet, Ill., assignor to McKenna Process Co. of Illinois, Joliet, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 5, 1930. Serial No. 459,312. 12 Claims. (Cl. 238—125.)

CARNEGIE LIBRARY OF ATLANTA

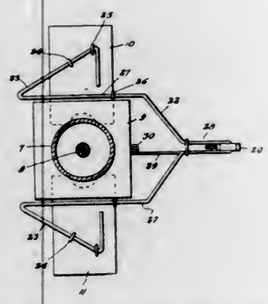
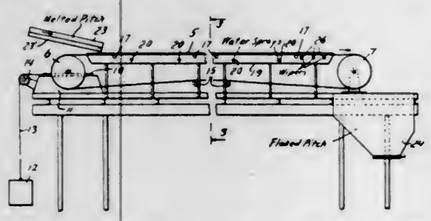
1,807,220. FASTENING DEVICE FOR BAG FRAMES. HARRY LEBERMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Groove Lock Co. Inc., Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 29, 1929. Serial No. 335,962. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—145.)



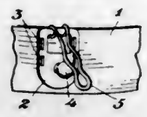
1. Fastening means for the purpose set forth comprising, two frame parts, a solid bar fixed to one part and having therein intermediate the length thereof a transverse keeper opening, a projecting tongue on the second part shaped to be received bodily in the keeper opening and to fit intimately between the walls defining the opposite ends of the keeper opening, and a movable clamping member on the bar arranged to be moved into clamping engagement with said tongue to imprison the latter tightly in the keeper opening, said clamping member being of a dimension to extend entirely across the tongue and engaged with the bar at either end of the tongue when the tongue is imprisoned thereby.

1,807,221. FIBER-PREPARING TREATMENT OF BAST OR VEGETABLE FIBER PLANTS. FREDERICK McCAW, Belfast, Northern Ireland. Filed July 25, 1929, Serial No. 380,944, and in Great Britain Aug. 7, 1928. 11 Claims. (Cl. 19—29.)



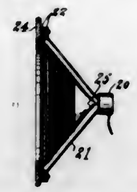
1. Apparatus for the treatment of fibrous material, comprising in combination means for conveying bundles of the material in a substantially vertical position, means for subjecting said bundles to a jigging motion adapted to level the lower ends of the bundles, means for crushing the material, means for spreading the material, and means for decorticating the material including fluted breaking rollers, bladed combing rollers and scutching and stripping rollers.

1,807,222. FLUID SAVING DEVICE. JOSEPH B. McCULLOUGH and EDWARD S. McCOMBS, Baxter Springs, Kans. Filed Sept. 4, 1929. Serial No. 390 349. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—139.)



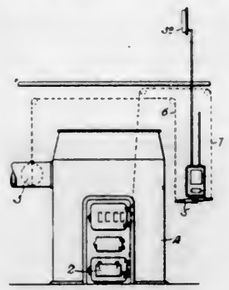
In a structure of the class described, a valve housing, a pair of oppositely disposed valve plates slidable in the guides formed in said housing, a plurality of complemental eyes mounted on the valves plates and housing, a pivotally mounted operating lever, a yoke like operating connection between the lever and valve plates, the arms of said operating connection being formed into substantially triangular actuating cams cooperable with said eyes in a manner to move said valve plates toward and from each other to close and open the valve.

1,807,223. METHOD OF FLAKING PITCH. STUART PARMELEE MILLER, Englewood, N. J., assignor to The Barrett Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Apr. 6, 1929. Serial No. 352,990. 1 Claim. (Cl. 83—91.)



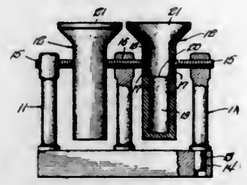
The method of flaking pitch which comprises discharging the pitch in the form of a hot molten stream, forming the said stream into a ribbon-like thin layer, subjecting one side of the layer to a cooling medium until it is sufficiently brittle to be readily broken and then breaking said ribbon-like layer of pitch and causing said resulting fragments to drop whereby they will be broken into flakes as they fall onto the receiving means.

1,807,224. GARTER. JOSÉ MIERES, Buenos Aires, Argentina. Filed Dec. 2, 1929, Serial No. 411,193, and in Spain June 18, 1929. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—246.)



A garter fastener comprising a substantially flat metal plate adapted to be secured to the outer face of the garter, said plate having an opening adjacent one end thereof, said one end of the plate forming a hinge pivot on one side of said opening, a button on the opposite side of said opening, and a substantially U-shaped wire clasp having both ends looped around said hinge pivot, said clasp being adapted to frictionally secure a garment to said button.

1,807,225. SOUND PROPAGATING DIAPHRAGM. WEHRLI D. PACK, Salt Lake City, Utah, assignor to Utah Radio Products Company, Incorporated, a Corporation of Utah. Filed Mar. 9, 1928. Serial No. 260,271. 4 Claims. (Cl. 181—32.)

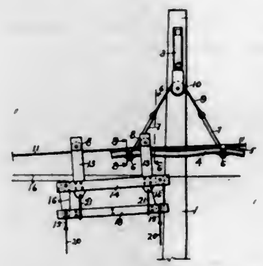


1. In a sound propagating diaphragm comprising a cone of fibrous material provided with helically arranged embossed corrugations.

1,807,226. DRAFT CONTROLLER. LAWRENCE M. PERSONS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Cook Electric Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 24, 1928. Serial No. 314,636. 17 Claims. (Cl. 236—16.)

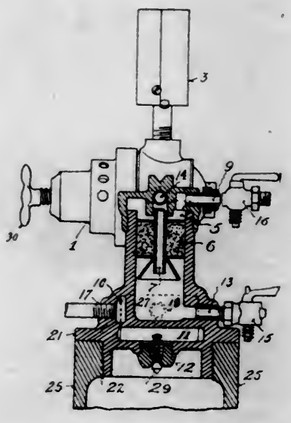
1. The combination with a heater, of an electrically operated controller therefor comprising an expansible and contractible fluid containing member, means actuated thereby and controlling the combustion in said heater, an electric heater acting on the fluid in said member, a thermostat for controlling said electric heater, means for short-circuiting said thermostat to permit said electric heater to act on said fluid in said heater independently of said thermostat, and means preventing the operation of said short-circuiting means while said thermostat is closed.

1,807,227. FOUNTAIN PEN DESK SET. CRAIG R. SHEAFFER, Fort Madison, Iowa, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Pen Desk Set Company, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Feb. 12, 1926, Serial No. 87,732. Renewed Dec. 19, 1930. 6 Claims. (Cl. 120—108.)



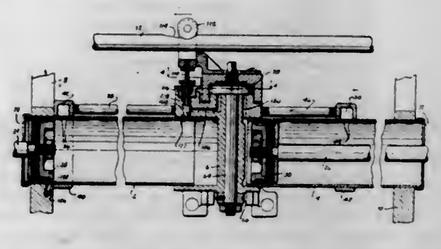
1. A fountain pen desk set comprising a flat base adapted to be placed on top of a desk, a plurality of supporting members secured to said base, a plurality of receptacles disposed between said supporting members, and a screw journalled in each of said supporting members, said screws engaging said receptacles to hold the latter in various positions of angular adjustment in which the ink in the pen flows toward the writing point.

1,807,228. ELECTRIC FUSE. JAMES H. STARR, Oak Park, Ill., assignor to Electrical Engineers Equipment Company, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 19, 1929. Serial No. 386,791. 23 Claims. (Cl. 200—113.)



1. A device of the class described comprising relatively movable electric terminals, a knife edge, a fuse strip electrically joining said terminals and passing with accumulated slack over said knife edge, and means for forcibly drawing upon said fuse strip to take up its slack and bring it sharply against said knife edge to sever said strip.

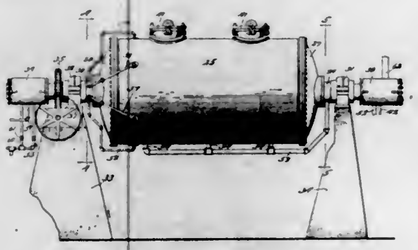
1,807,229. CABLEWAY. LOUIS S. THORNESS, Renton, Wash. Filed Nov. 11, 1929. Serial No. 406,178. 5 Claims. (Cl. 104—112.)



1. In combination, a cableway, an intermediate supporting standard for said cableway, and means for suspending said cableway from said standard, said means comprising a suspended sheave, a triangular sling on said sheave, and a cable carrying rail attached to said sling.

1,807,230. COMBINED PRESSURE CONTROL AND WATER SEPARATOR DEVICE FOR PAINT SPRAYING MACHINES. FRANK ABRAM TITTEMORE, Richmond, Calif., assignor to Hopkins Spray Equipment Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of Nevada. Filed Mar. 20, 1928. Serial No. 263,020. 4 Claims. (Cl. 91—45.)

2. A combined pressure controlling and water separating unit comprising a casing having a base portion for attachment to a paint pot or container, an air pressure receiving chamber, a sump chamber, an atomizing air pressure passage and a paint feed pressure passage, pressure regulating devices carried by said casing and delivering respectively to said atomizing air pressure passage and said paint feed pressure passage, a water separating device disposed within said casing above said sump chamber, said receiving chamber delivering to said water separator, a pipe connection delivering from the water separator to said pressure reducing devices, and a drain connection delivering from said sump chamber, the air passing through the water separator before reaching the pressure regulating devices.



1,807,231. ELEVATOR DOOR OPERATING MECHANISM. WILLIAM WALLACE WEEKS, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Elevator Supplies Company, Inc., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 15, 1923. Serial No. 674,848. 5 Claims. (Cl. 121—44.)

1. In an elevator door operating mechanism, a cylinder, a piston in the cylinder, means for operatively connecting the mechanism to an elevator door, a valve, a passageway in said valve, a passageway connecting said valve with one end of said cylinder, means for operating said valve to control communication of said passageway in said valve with said passageway between said valve and said cylinder, a guide rod, a roller adapted to move on said guide rod, a second valve adapted to open and close communication between the first-named valve and said cylinder, means for adjustably connecting said second valve to said roller, a depression in said guide rod adapted to permit transverse movement of said roller to seat said second valve, whereby communication between said pressure fluid and said cylinder will be cut off in the closed position of said door.

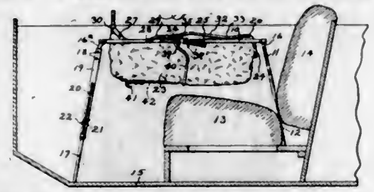
1,807,232. ROTARY EXTRACTOR. OSCAR H. WURSTER and ALBERT M. SMITH, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Wurster & Sanger, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 13, 1928. Serial No. 305,729. 21 Claims. (Cl. 87—6.)

1. In a rotary extractor, a trunnion concentric with the axis of rotation of said extractor secured to one end thereof, a stationary sleeve within which said trunnion rotates, said trunnion having a pair of conduits therein communicating with the interior of said extractor, a liquid line connected to said sleeve, a vapor line connected with said sleeve, and means establishing communication between each of said lines and one of said conduits when said extractor is stationary and during rotation thereof.



1,807,233. CONTAINER. MARSELIUS T. ASHE, Garden City, N. Y. Filed Apr. 19, 1929. Serial No. 356,337. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—5.)

1. A container comprising a pair of side members having ridges and furrows, each member overlapping the other member on one side and underlapping it on the other side, the ridges on one member nesting or interfitting with furrows of the other member, a top and bottom having ridges and furrows, said side members and said top and bottom having alined holes in the ridges thereof, and removable means passing through said alined holes for holding said members and top and bottom in fixed rigid position.

1,807,234. BABY HAMMOCK FOR AUTOMOBILES. REINHARDT H. BROWN, La Porte, Ind. Filed Dec. 6, 1924, Serial No. 754,256. Renewed July 12, 1928. 10 Claims. (Cl. 5—94.)

1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a main frame and means of supporting the same, of a generally trough-like flexible body portion attached at the center of two of its sides to said frame, a pair of supplemental frames pivoted to the main frame towards the ends thereof and having the ends of said body portion attached thereto, connections extending from one supplemental frame to the other and connected to the central portion of the main frame which can be adjusted so that said body portion may assume either a continuous trough-like shape or that of a seat with a back and foot well, said connections including a movable generally U-shaped frame that in the first position permits said trough-like shape and in the second supports the forward end of the seat portion and means to hold said connections in either adjustment.

1,807,235. COLLAPSIBLE CARRIAGE FOR CHILDREN. REINHARDT H. BROWN, La Porte, Ind. Filed Oct. 9, 1926. Serial No. 140,585. 21 Claims. (Cl. 280—41.)

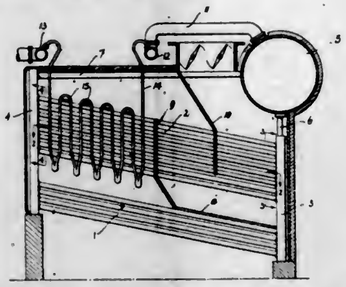
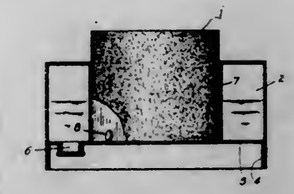
1,807,236. FASTENING DEVICE. WYCLIFFE L. CLARK, Jamestown, N. Y. Filed Apr. 27, 1928. Serial No. 273,229. 1 Claim. (Cl. 292—104.)

In a fastening device, actuating and hook elements, means pivotally mounting said actuating element through the body portion thereof, a flanged finger terminating one end of said actuating element, means pivotally supporting said hook element upon said actuating element adjacent said actuating element supporting means, a shoulder formed adjacent the pivotal end of said hook element and adapted to engage the pivotal means of said actuating element to prevent any relative movement between said elements and an outwardly extending flange formed midway of said hook element adapted to abut the flange of said actuating element when said fastening device is closed whereby a lock or seal may engage said flanges and prevent the elements from being separated to open the device.



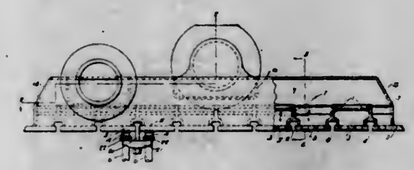
1,807,237. DRAFTING APPLIANCE. THEODORE A. DE POSTELS, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 15, 1928. Serial No. 326,260. 12 Claims. (Cl. 33—77.)

1. The combination with a drawing board of a ruler, means fixed thereto for guiding the ruler along one edge of the board, a pivot pin, a directing member engaging said pin, a movable support for said pin, and means for securing said support to said ruler in an adjusted position.



9. The combination of a ruler having a sectorial opening therein, a pivot pin having an angular portion engaging the straight side of said opening and a curved portion engaging the curved side of said opening.

1,807,238. BOILER. CHARLES W. GORDON, Pleasantville, N. Y., assignor to The Superheater Company, New York, N. Y. Filed May 16, 1929. Serial No. 363,487. 11 Claims. (Cl. 122—478.)

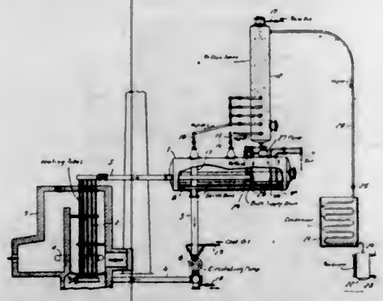


1. A boiler comprising inlet and discharge headers, a bank of steam generating tubes connecting said headers, said tubes being arranged at one end in spaced rows generally parallel to the direction of gas flow and at the other end in staggered relation with respect to the direction of gas flow, and baffling to direct combustion gases across said tubes in a plurality of transverse passes.

1,807,239. SPONGE CUP. HERMAN F. GUENTZLER, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Mar. 5, 1929. Serial No. 344,270. 1 Claim. (Cl. 91—54.4.)

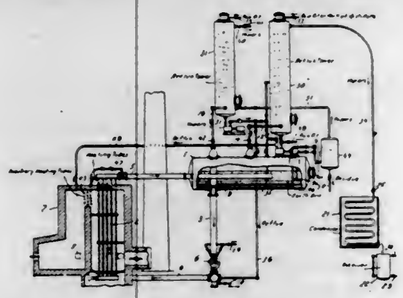
A sponge holding cup comprising in combination concentric vertical rings of different height, a bottom piece, the inner ring and the portion of the bottom piece defined thereby constituting the immediate sponge-holding elements, a spacer ledge rising within the outer ring, a circular bottom piece resting upon the upper edge of the spacer ledge and supporting the inner vertical ring, a filling orifice and cap on the under side of the bottom piece but of less depth than the spacer ledge, said orifice communicating with the annular space between the concentric rings, an air-tight connection between the tops of said vertical rings, and edges defining an opening through the inner ring adjacent the bottom.

1,807,240. METHOD OF MAUFACTURING SUPERHEATER HEADERS. MALCOLM HARD, Flushing, N. Y., assignor to The Superheater Company, New York, N. Y. Filed July 12, 1928. Serial No. 292,263. 4 Claims. (Cl. 29—157.4.)



1. The process of making a steel-plate header comprising the steps of welding vertical transverse partitions to a rectangular bottom; forming a longitudinal steel-plate partition with a continuous vertical portion and smaller rectangular portions extending alternately in opposite directions from the lower edge of the first portion, the dimensions and conformation of these parts being such that the second-named partition may be set on the first named partitions with the top edges of the latter butting against the lateral edges of the oppositely extending portions of the former; welding said edges together; welding a front and a back to the bottom and to the outer edges of the first named partitions and of the oppositely extending portions; welding a top to the upper edges of the front and back and of the longitudinal partition; and welding in steel plates to close the ends.

1,807,241. ART OF CRACKING HYDROCARBON OILS. EDWARD W. ISOM, Scarsdale, N. Y., assignor to Sinclair Refining Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Sept. 27, 1927. Serial No. 222,257. 13 Claims. (Cl. 196—55.)



7. An improved method of cracking hydrocarbon oils, which comprises circulating the oil from a bulk supply drum through heating tubes and back to the bulk supply drum, heating the oil to a cracking temperature in the heating tubes, maintaining a bed of finely divided solid material in the bulk supply drum extending entirely across the path of the circulating oil, taking off vapors from the upper part of the bulk supply drum under pressure, taking off vapors from beneath said bed under a lower pressure, subjecting the vapors so taken off both from the upper part of the bulk supply drum and from beneath said bed to a refluxing operation, and reintroducing reflux condensate therefrom into the circulating oil beneath said bed.

1,807,242. ART OF CRACKING HYDROCARBON OILS. EDWARD W. ISOM, Scarsdale, N. Y., assignor to Sinclair Refining Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Maine. Original application filed Sept. 27, 1927, Serial No. 222,257. Divided and this application filed Dec. 27, 1929. Serial No. 416,795. 10 Claims. (Cl. 196—55.)

1. An improved method of cracking hydrocarbon oils, which comprises circulating the oil from a bulk supply drum through heating tubes and back to the bulk supply drum, heating the oil to a cracking temperature in the heating tubes, maintaining a bed of finely divided solid material in the bulk supply drum extending entirely across the path of the circulating oil, taking off vapors, from the upper part of the bulk supply drum under pressure and subjecting these vapors to a refluxing operation, and taking off vapors from beneath said bed under a lower pressure and subjecting these vapors to a separate refluxing operation.

1,807,243. COUPLER. FRANK H. KAYLER, Alliance, Ohio, assignor to American Steel Foundries, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 6, 1928. Serial No. 297,595. 1 Claim. (Cl. 213—112.)

The combination with an automatic car coupler and a hook car coupler, of a transitional coupler device comprising a yoke and a pair of linkages having terminal links loosely interlinked with the yoke and opposite terminal links connected to opposite sides of the automatic coupler head, the yoke being disposed in a substantially horizontal position and receiving the hook of the hook coupler engaged with one end of the yoke, the longitudinal sides of the yoke having inwardly directed lugs aligned transversely of the yoke for pulling engagement with the links which engage the yoke, the hook of the hook coupler lying between the lugs and closing the space therebetween to prevent disengagement of the links therefrom in the normal pulling position of the yoke, said yoke capable of being turned alternately in opposite directions on the hook to withdraw the luges from the hook far enough to permit disengagement of the links from the lugs.

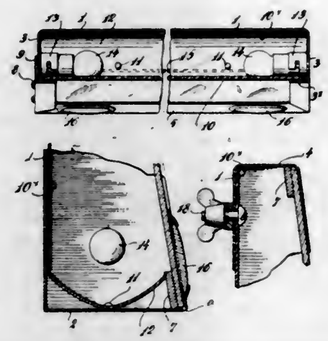
1,807,244. ADHESIVE COMPOSITION. RALPH W. LANE, Canton, Mass., assignor to The Haines Corporation, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed July 8, 1929. Serial No. 376,863. 4 Claims. (Cl. 87—17.)

1. An adhesive composition comprising:



Latex	from about 5 to 15%
Rubber	from about 20 to 52%
Resin	from about 3 to 10%
A filler	from about 6 to 25%

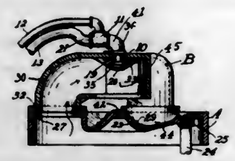
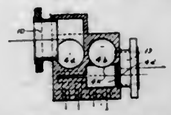
1,807,245. PENCIL SHARPENER AND HOLDER. JOHN A. LARSON, Seattle, Wash. Filed July 12, 1930. Serial No. 467,510. 3 Claims. (Cl. 120—84.)



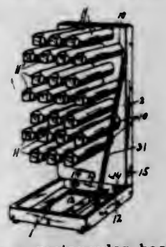
1. In a pencil sharpener and holder of the character described, a cylindrical portion adapted to form a handle and also to fit snugly over a pencil, a comparatively long clip extending from the said cylindrical portion, said clip having an inverted U shaped section therein and said inverted U shaped section having a longitudinal slot therein, and a double edge knife blade positioned in the said slot and held in the ends of the said U shaped section.

1,807,246. WEATHERPROOF LICENSE PLATE HOLDER FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. FRANK J. MAURO, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Feb. 17, 1930. Serial No. 428,984. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—132.)



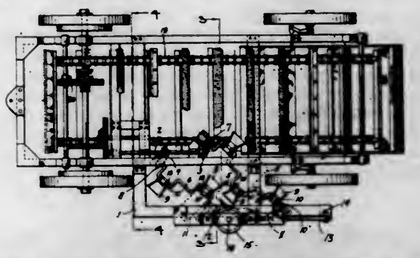
A weatherproof license plate holder comprising a metal sheet bent to form a back, a top, a flange depending from the top, a base, a flange upwardly projecting from the base and of substantially greater width than said top depending flange, and side wings having rearwardly inclined front edges, a flange extending inwardly from one of the side wings, lips carried by the top and bottom plates, and spaced parallel with and adjacent to said flanges, a transparent window adapted to be held against said lips by the flanges of the top and bottom plates and said side wing, means for securing the license plate to the back, including a bolt projecting through the back, a corner member adapted to be secured to the other side wing and to lie over upon the transparent window when the latter is in place so as to secure the same in position, lamps carried by the side wings within the holder and near the base thereof and opposed transparent windows in the flange of the base member, said windows being disposed substantially opposite said lamps.

1,807,247. HYDROCARBON BURNER. RUSSELL L. MERIDITH, East Cleveland, Ohio. Filed July 6, 1925. Serial No. 41,622. 4 Claims. (Cl. 158—91.)



1. A burner of the class described including a hollow body having a cover provided with a central, conical oil-receiving surface and a plurality of apertures thereabout, a detachable composite dome having downwardly-directed pipes for fitting the apertures in said cover, and a central aperture therein, a feed pipe inserted in said dome aperture, and a pressed fire-clay inverted cone on the inner surface of said dome and having a central opening therethrough adapted to receive the said feed pipe, and means for securing said inverted cone in position with its opening in registry with the aperture in the dome.

1,807,248. SUPERHEATER HEADER. HENRY B. OATLEY, Great Neck, N. Y., assignor to The Superheater Company, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 15, 1927. Serial No. 161,395. 3 Claims. (Cl. 122—462.)

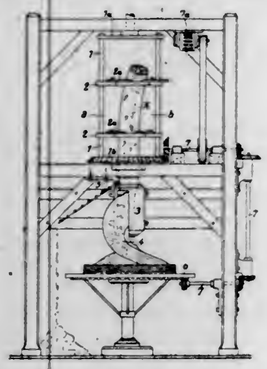


1. A superheater header comprising a unitary forged steel block having two parallel cylindrical chambers, and provided with a series of parallel subsidiary chambers at right angles to said first named chambers and each comprising a large cylindrical portion communicating with one of the first named chambers and a smaller cylindrical portion lying under the second of the first named chambers.

1,807,249. STEAM AND HOT WATER BOILER. ORIMELL B. OLMSTEAD, Pulaski, N. Y. Filed May 15, 1929. Serial No. 363,237. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—316.)

In a water-heater, a rectangular base frame, a hollow upright water-leg secured to and rising from the rear side of the base frame and provided with water tubes extending forwardly from the front wall thereof over the base frame, said water leg being closed at its upper and lower ends, lugs depending from the water leg and anchored to the inner face of a side of the base frame, and a diagonal brace connecting the upper portion of the water-leg with another side of the base frame.

1,807,250. STREET CLEANER. OTTO J. ORSER, Denver, Colo. Filed Aug. 17, 1929. Serial No. 386,698. 8 Claims. (Cl. 37—41.)



1. In a street cleaner adapted to remove snow from along street curbs, a wheeled frame, a plow carried thereby and vertically adjustable with respect thereto to move material away from the curb toward the longitudinal center of the frame, a multi-throw crankshaft journaled on the frame, shovels mounted upon the cranks of the crankshaft, and means to revolve the crankshaft.

1,807,251. PROCESS OF PRODUCING VENEERS. FRANZ OVENHAUSEN, Steinheim, Germany. Filed Jan. 6, 1928, Serial No. 245,018, and in Germany May 26, 1926. 21 Claims. (Cl. 144—209.)

1. In a process for the production of veneers, the peeling-off of a spiral shaped veneer strip with the aid of a knife or cutter from a conical work-piece, said knife being inclined across the axis of the work-piece with the length of the generatrix of the full cone to be peeled off substantially a multiple of the length of the radius of the base of said cone, and relatively moving the work-piece and knife axially.

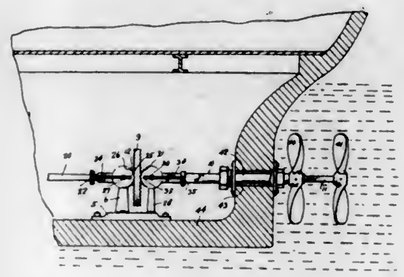
1,807,252. ARMATURE WINDING. CLEVELAND H. QUACKENBUSH, South Euclid, Ohio. Filed Dec. 28, 1926. Serial No. 157,569. 19 Claims. (Cl. 171—206.)



12. An armature winding comprising a plurality of layers of loops successively arranged radially outwardly, each layer being complete within itself about the axis of the winding and comprising a plurality of loops, and the loops of each layer being interwoven with certain of the loops of other layers whereby there is obtained a mechanical and electrical balance about the axis of the winding.

1,807,253. NEST. NELS V. PETERSON, Knox, Ind. Filed Feb. 28, 1930. Serial No. 432,103. 1 Claim. (Cl. 119—48.)

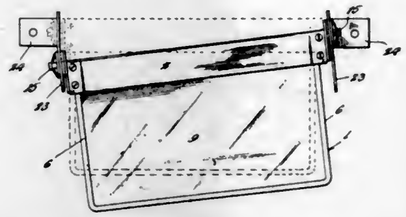
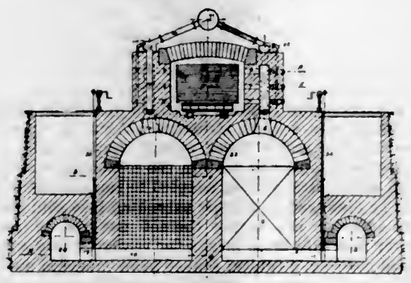
1,807,254. PROPELLING MECHANISM. JOE PIANO, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 18, 1930. Serial No. 476,126. 1 Claim. (Cl. 115—34.)



In a propeller mechanism of the class described, an outer shaft, an inner shaft in the outer shaft, means causing the outer shaft and inner shaft to rotate together and permitting the shaft to reciprocate with respect to one another, propellers connected to adjacent ends of the shafts, and means for simultaneously rotating and reciprocating the shafts, said means comprising a crown gear on the outer shaft to rotate therewith and permitting the outer shaft to reciprocate therethrough, a pair of gears in mesh with the double crown gear, said gears being arranged on opposite sides of the crown gear whereby the gears are rotated in opposite directions, each gear having a crank pin thereon, a pitman connecting the pin of one gear with one of the shafts, and a pitman connecting the pin of the other gear with the other shaft.

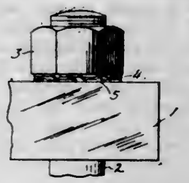
1,807,255. SOOT BLOWER. GRANT I. RAWSON, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Diamond Power Specialty Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Apr. 24, 1922. Serial No. 556,308. 11 Claims. (Cl. 122—391.)



7. In a boiler cleaner, the combination with a reciprocatory and rotatable nozzle within a boiler, of an actuating member for said nozzle projecting exteriorly of the boiler in the retracted position of said nozzle, and means coacting with said member to definitely determine rotative positions of the nozzle spaced in the direction of its reciprocation.

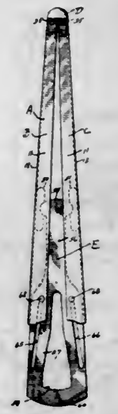
1,807,256. GLARE SHIELD. FOREST C. RYDER, Elgin, Oreg., assignor to Ryder Anti-Glare Shield Co., Elgin, Oreg. Filed Oct. 23, 1928. Serial No. 314,446. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—97.)

2. A glare shield comprising a pair of brackets formed of resilient sheet metal and each having a horizontal shank bent adjacent one end to form a support engaging side flange and a vertically disposed arm at the other end of the shank extending above and below the shank, the arm being formed with a longitudinally extending slot and the shank with a longitudinally extending slot intersecting the slot of the arm intermediate the ends thereof, a frame between said brackets, a transparent sheet carried by said frame, pivots passed through the slots of said brackets and engaged with upper corner portions of said frame to slidably and pivotally mount the frame, and means to hold the frame in a set position.



1,807,257. PROCESS FOR HEATING IN A GASEOUS ATMOSPHERE PARTICULARLY IN A REDUCING OR OXIDIZING ATMOSPHERE. HERBERT SCHAEFER, Luxemburg, Luxemburg. Filed Nov. 30, 1927, Serial No. 236,795, and in Luxemburg Oct. 4, 1927. 3 Claims. (Cl. 263—15.)

1. A method of heating bodies and materials which comprises the step of placing the body to be heated in a closed chamber, passing a stream of heating gas through one of a pair of regenerators and through said closed chamber, mixing the outcoming gas from said closed chamber with air, igniting the mixture and passing the ignited mixture through the other of said pair of regenerators to an out-take, the flow of gases through the closed chamber and regenerators being periodically reversed and including the step of passing a burning mixture through a system of channels surrounding said closed chamber.



1,807,258. METHOD OF MAKING LOCK WASHERS. FRANK Q. SCHWARTZ, Detroit, Mich. Filed Feb. 25, 1929. Serial No. 342,569. 3 Claims. (Cl. 10—86.)

1. The method of forming lock washers having substantially L-shape tongues including the steps of pressing tongues in one direction from a substantially flat blank, and bending the free end portions of said tongues in the opposite direction so that the tongues extend diagonally through openings formed by the pressing operation and so that edges of the tongues formed by the pressing operation project laterally beyond the blank for gripping engagement with a suitable surface.

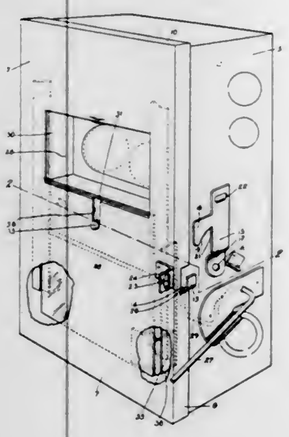
1,807,259. NECKTIE PRESS. RICHARD F. SCHULZKE and DELBERT L. HAMILTON, Portland, Oreg. Filed Oct. 1, 1928. Serial No. 309,371. 4 Claims. (Cl. 223—19.)

1. In a necktie press of the class described the combination of elongated straight pressing arms of substantially channel shaped formation, means pivotally connecting the arms together at similar ends with the arms extending divergent away therefrom and the channels facing each other, elongated slide pieces in said channels, an elongated operating handle, means fulcruming the operating handle to said slide pieces, said operating handle having elongated slots therein for each of the pressing arms, and pins at the free ends of said pressing arms operating in said slots to guide the relation of the operating handle in its movement with respect to the pressing arms.



1,807,260. SMOKING PIPE. LEWIS J. THOMAS and AUBREY RIDDLE, Ekron, Ky. Filed Apr. 24, 1929. Serial No. 357,811. 2 Claims. (Cl. 131—12.)

1. A smoking pipe comprising a bowl having a tobacco chamber and a sub-chamber beneath the tobacco chamber, a stem extending from said bowl and formed with a smoke passage leading from said tobacco chamber and a saliva passage leading from the sub-chamber and communicating with said smoke passage, a mouth piece abuting said stem and formed with a smoke passage registering with the smoke passage of the stem and a socket registering with the saliva passage, a tube extending through the smoke passage of the stem and mouth piece and removable with the mouth piece, and a tube extending through the saliva passage and projecting from the stem to fit into the socket of the mouth piece, said tubes having openings formed therein communicating with each other at the point of communication between the saliva passage and the smoke passage of the stem.

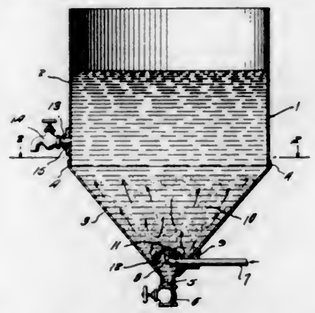
1,807,261. LATCHING AND SEAL RECEIVING STRUCTURE. DAVID T. WADSWORTH, Cold Springs, Ky., assignor to The Wadsworth Electric Manufacturing Company, Covington, Ky., a Corporation of Kentucky. Filed Jan. 13, 1927. Serial No. 160,991. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—104.)

1. A latch for securing an angularly flanged cover to a side wall received thereby comprising a latch body adapted for pivotal mounting on the exterior facing of the side wall and having an arcuate edged lug movable therewith substantially beyond the face of the cover, the cover flange having an outwardly struck lug providing an open topped way for entry of the latch member and the lug presenting an edge cooperating with the arcuate edge of the lug on the latch member.



1,807,262. CONVERTIBLE BARBER CHAIR. LAWRENCE L. WAGES, Bessemer, Ala., assignor of one-half to G. H. McClary, Bessemer, Ala. Filed Apr. 23, 1929, Serial No. 357,569. Renewed Feb. 7, 1931. 3 Claims. (Cl. 155—132.)

1. In combination, a chair having a seat and rockable back frame, a pair of cushions secured to the frame, the upper being rigidly secured, the lower cushion pivoted to the frame and having depending flanges about its perimeter to form a cavity, a crank shaft rotatably mounted in the opposite side flanges within said cavity on the lower cushion, a track bar mounted on the frame and provided with a stop lug on its lower end, a pair of arms each rigidly secured to said crank shaft at one end and each detachably engaging said stop lugs at its other end to detachably support said lower cushion at right angles to the upper cushion, and means rotatably mounted on the crank shaft and abutting a flange on the lower cushion for supporting said lower cushion in angular relation to the upper cushion and at the same time for detaching said arm from said lugs so as to permit the lower cushion to swing into vertical alignment with said upper cushion.

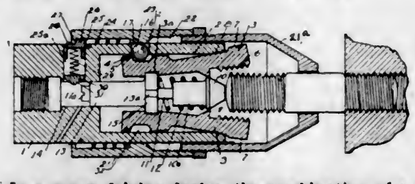
1,807,263. APPARATUS FOR DISSOLVING SOLIDS. GEORGE A. WALTER, Ithaca, N. Y. Filed Dec. 1, 1928. Serial No. 323,175. 1 Claim. (Cl. 23—270.)

An apparatus for forming solutions of soluble salts in water comprising a tank structure having an upper cylindrical section and a lower conical section, said cylindrical section adapted to contain the soluble salts in solution and said conical section adapted to contain the soluble salts to be dissolved, a conduit extending into said conical section adjacent the vertex thereof adapted to convey the water into said tank, means for retaining said conduit in a fixed position, a conical shaped baffle mounted over the outlet of said conduit adapted to distribute the water flowing through the conduit evenly throughout the material to be dissolved and prevent the sludge from clogging the inlet conduit, a conduit extension depending from the vertex of the conical section and adapted to discharge material from said tank, a valve attached to said conduit extension for controlling the flow of material from the lower conical section, a conduit extension in the upper cylindrical section for removing the solution of soluble salts in the water, means for controlling the flow of solution, and means for retaining the last mentioned conduit in a fixed position.



1,807,264. SELF-OPENING TOOL. JOHN V. WALKER, Fairview, Pa., assignor to Titan Tool Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 27, 1929. Serial No. 342,990. 3 Claims. (Cl. 81—53.)

1. In a self-opening tool, the combination of a head having a tapered socket, said socket having a peripheral wall of polygonal form; separable jaws in the socket conforming approximately when closed to the socket walls; a mounting for said jaws slidable in the head to open and close the jaws; and spring-actuated means opening the jaws, comprising a plug having wedging surfaces slidingly mounted within the jaws said plug forming a bottoming surface with the jaws in closed position, and a spring exerting pressure on the plug.

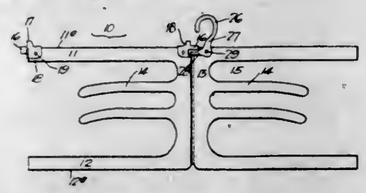
1,807,265. SCREW DRIVING DEVICE. JOHN V. WALKER, Fairview, Pa., assignor to Titan Tool Company, Erie, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Oct. 9, 1929. Serial No. 398,547. 9 Claims. (Cl. 81—53.)



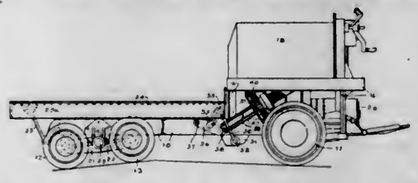
1. In a screw driving device, the combination of a head having a jaw socket; separable jaws axially movable and rotatable in the socket and closed by the walls of the socket as drawn thereinto; a clutch mechanism locking the jaws rotatively with the head; and means actuating the clutch mechanism independently of the movement of the jaws relatively to the head.

1,807,266. GRAB. CARL WAZLAVEK, Massillon, Ohio, assignor of one-fourth to William B. Fischer, Massillon, Ohio. Filed July 14, 1930. Serial No. 467,903. 7 Claims. (Cl. 294—106.)

1. In a lifting device of the character described, spaced pairs of gripping jaws mounted for movement toward and away from each other, motor-actuated means for operating said jaws, and brake mechanism for holding said jaws immovable in gripping relation with the load, and releasing said jaws at a predetermined interval.

1,807,267. DRESS SUSPENDING AND CARRYING DEVICE. ALBERT W. WINSHIP, Utica, N. Y., assignor to Berg-Winship, Inc, Utica, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 29, 1929. Serial No. 359,009. 6 Claims. (Cl. 223—61.)

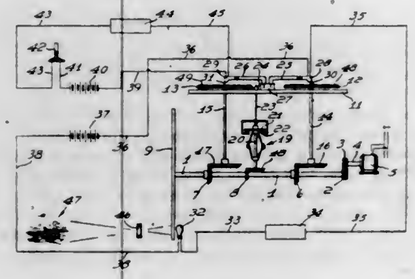
1. A dress suspending and carrying device consisting of a frame having two straight parallel spaced rods and therebetween a pair of oppositely extending shoulder-supporting bars, said frame being foldable transversely of said spaced rods whereby a dress may be hung by its shoulders upon said extended shoulder bars, the frame and dress thereon then folded and then the projecting portion of said dress wrapped bodily successively about both said rods.



1,807,268. CONTAINER FREIGHT CAR. GRAHAM C. WOODRUFF, Bronxville, N. Y., assignor to The L. C. L. Corporation, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 30, 1929. Serial No. 359,392. 15 Claims. (Cl. 105—366.)

1. A container car comprising a body, bulkheads disposed in spaced relation transversely of the body to form a series of container compartments, one of the end compartments of the series terminating a distance inwardly from one end of the car to provide an uninterrupted floor space beyond said bulkhead and between the same and said end of the car, said bulkhead having a passage communicating with said space, whereby the platform of a lifting truck may be inserted through said passage and stowed under a container in the said compartment next adjacent the said floor space.

2. In combination, a car having a platform portion, a plurality of freight containers removably mounted on the car, and a lift truck on said platform portion having its lifting platform stowed beneath one of the containers.



1,807,269. INDUSTRIAL TRUCK. EDWARD J. ABBE, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Elwell-Parker Electric Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Original application filed Nov. 23, 1925, Serial No. 70,744. Divided and this application filed Jan. 11, 1928. Serial No. 245,979. 7 Claims. (Cl. 254—10.)

1. In an industrial truck, a chassis, a load lifting platform mounted on the chassis, and means for actuating said load lifting platform, said means including a power actuated draw-bar, a pair of toggle links, one of said links being pivoted at one of its ends to the chassis, and at its other end to said power actuated draw-bar, the other of said links being pivoted to the load lifting platform and to the first of said links at a point intermediate the ends of the first of said links.

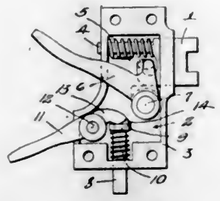
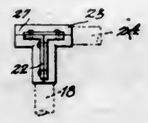
1,807,270. VISIONOGRAPH RECORD AND METHOD OF MAKING THE SAME. CHARLES EMANUEL ALBERTI, Chicago, Ill. Filed Aug. 13, 1928, Serial No. 299,408. Renewed Oct. 24, 1930. 4 Claims. (Cl. 178—5.)



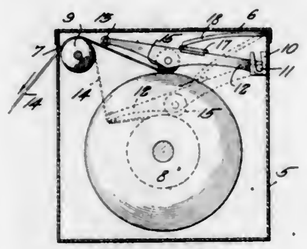
1. A device of the type described comprising a rotatable shaft, a disc secured to the shaft and having a plurality of openings arranged in the form of a spiral, a plurality of shafts operatively connected with said rotatable shaft, a turntable carried by each of said plurality of shafts, a record disposed upon each of the turntables, means for projecting an image of a distant scene upon that portion of the disc having the openings therein, the rays of light from said image passing through the openings in the disc when the latter is rotating in substantially a continuous beam, light-sensitive electrically controlled means adapted to vary electric current in proportion to the light passing through the openings, means associated with said light-sensitive electrically controlled means for forming undulations in one of said records, and sound-sensitive means associated with the other of said records for forming undulations therein.

1,807,271. ATTACHMENT FOR FRYING PANS. MARIAM E. ASADOORIAN, Pasadena, Calif. Filed Mar. 24, 1930. Serial No. 438,469. 3 Claims. (Cl. 53—7.)



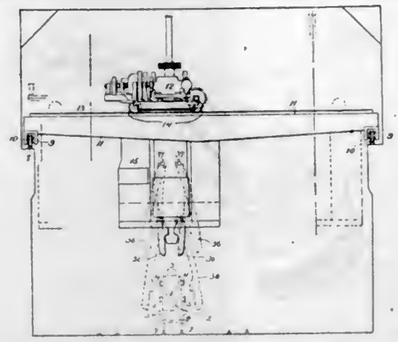
1. An attachment for frying pans comprising a drum adapted for association with a frying pan and provided with an opening in its side extending downwardly from its upper edge and constituting a gap in the said edge adapted to accommodate the handle of the frying pan, and a removable cover for said drum which is adapted for closing the gap at the upper part of said opening.

1,807,272. SASH HOLDER AND STARTER. ROY T. AXE, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to The O. M. Edwards Company Inc., Syracuse, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Aug. 11, 1926. Serial No. 128,554. 6 Claims. (Cl. 292—40.)



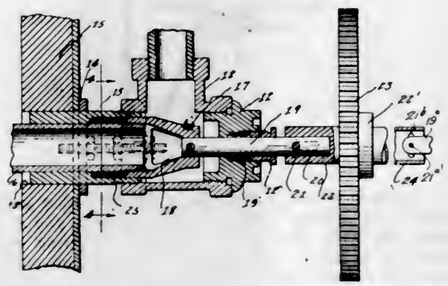
1. A sash holder and starter comprising a detent member and a starter member, handles for operating said members movable in opposite directions toward each other and arranged to be grasped pinch handle fashion.

1,807,273. CAMERA BELLOWS SUPPORT. GEORGE C. BEIDLER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed July 16, 1926. Serial No. 122,911. 1 Claim. (Cl. 95—39.)



In a photographing apparatus, a base frame having camera supporting rails, standards on said frame, arms extending approximately horizontally from the standards, a lens board supported by the said arms, and a bellows hanger suspended from the said arms and extending under the bellows.

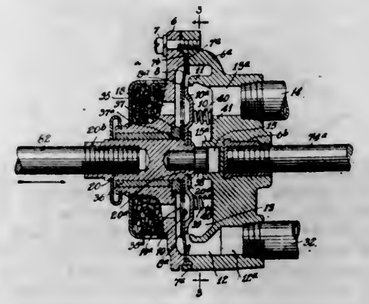
1,807,274. FILM STRAIGHTENING DEVICE. GEORGE C. BEIDLER, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Aug. 9, 1927. Serial No. 211,792. 2 Claims. (Cl. 242—75.)



1. A box, a rotatively supported roll of film in the box, bearings in the box at one side of the axis of the roll, a frame having trunnions mounted in the bearings, a roller journaled in the frame between its ends adapted to ride on the surface of film on the roll, a roller at the end of the frame adapted to engage film unwound from the roll and operative to remove excessive curl from the film, and means for forcing the first mentioned roller into engagement with the film.

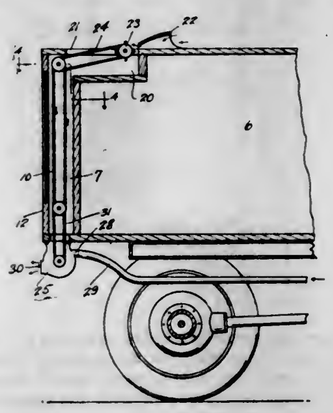
1,807,275. INGOT STRIPPER. CLINTON L. BIGLER and JOHN KLOOS, Alliance, Ohio, assignors to The Morgan Engineering Company, Alliance, Ohio. Filed Jan. 5, 1929. Serial No. 330,583. 14 Claims. (Cl. 22—95.)

2. In an ingot stripper, means for exerting downward pressure on a mold, means for pulling an ingot away from the mold, and means for placing the pulling strain upon the first mentioned means.



1,807,276. BOILER CLEANER. FRANK BOWERS, Detroit, Mich., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Diamond Power Specialty Corporation, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 453,872. 16 Claims. (Cl. 122—392.)

1. In a boiler cleaner system, a pair of rotatable blower units mounted upon separate boilers, means for connecting said units to each other so as to permit movement of said units relatively to each other to provide for expansion and contraction of the units independently of each other, and means for rotating said units simultaneously.



1,807,277. VACUUM BRAKE SYSTEM. CALEB S. BRAGG, Palm Beach, Fla., and VICTOR W. KLIESRATH, Port Washington, N. Y., assignors to Bragg-Kliesrath Corporation, Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 12, 1929. Serial No. 392,004. 11 Claims. (Cl. 121—41.)

1. In a valve mechanism of the kind described, the combination with a valve body provided with an annular seat, a diaphragm for engaging said seat provided with inlet apertures for higher fluid pressure, and having marginal portions in sealing engagement with the valve body, said diaphragm when seated dividing the adjacent space within the casing into a central chamber and an annular suction chamber, a disc valve of smaller diameter than the diaphragm, having a seat for engaging the diaphragm and closing communication through said apertures, a valve actuating part movable with respect to the valve body and connected with said diaphragm and disc valve, said valve actuating part and said casing being provided with means for connecting them respectively with a physically operable part and with a part connected with the vehicle, said valve body being provided with means for connecting said central chamber with a power actuator and for connecting said suction chamber with a source of suction, and yielding resistance means interposed between the valve body and a part connected with the valve actuating part, and normally holding said disc valve seated and the diaphragm unseated.

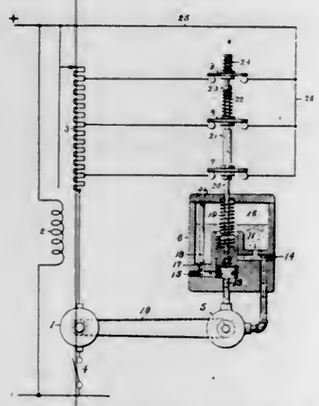
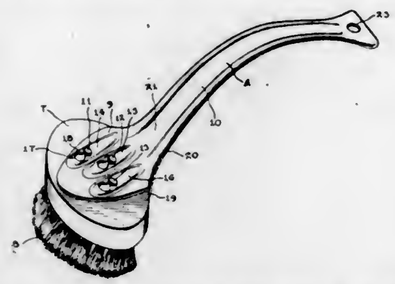
1,807,278. AUTOMOBILE ADVERTISING APPARATUS. WILLIAM W. BYRNE, Mobile, Ala. Filed May 22, 1930. Serial No. 454,696. 3 Claims. (Cl. 40—38.)



1. The combination with a vehicle of movable advertising matter, a fan, a funnel on the vehicle leading to the fan so that air collected in the funnel by the movement of the vehicle will be discharged on the fan, and means operatively connecting the fan with the movable advertising matter for causing the actuation thereof, an exhaust pipe, an exhaust motor, and means operatively connecting the exhaust motor with the movable advertising matter, said movable advertising matter being in the form of a plurality of endless webs trained about the rollers, said belts and rollers being interconnected by simultaneous operation, the rear of the vehicle being provided with a plurality of compartments one for each web and set of rollers, said compartments surrounding a central opening in the rear of the vehicle, a door hingedly mounted to swing over the compartments to close them, and said door having transparent panels one for each compartment.

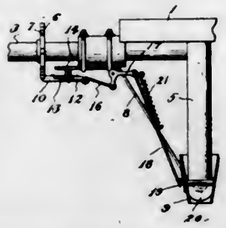
1,807,279. SPATULA. EDWARD P. BYRNES, Chicago, Ill., assignor to The Boye Needle Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 2, 1929. Serial No. 396,874. 2 Claims. (Cl. 294—7.)

1. In spatula comprising: a handle having at one end a boss and having a bore extending through said boss into the body of the handle; a ferrule on said boss having an end-wall and a slot through said end-wall and the adjacent portion of the ferrule; and a wide, thin, flexible and resilient spatula-blade having a tang wedged in said bore and having a widened butt-portion entered in said slot and embedded in a kerf in said boss, whereby said blade may be flexed and curved by applying pressure through the medium of said handle without injury to the blade.



1,807,280. ELECTRIC MOTOR SPEED CONTROLLER. CHARLES E. CARPENTER, Hopewell Junction, N. Y. Filed Apr. 2, 1927, Serial No. 180,599. Renewed Oct. 2, 1930. 17 Claims. (Cl. 171—229.)

1. An electric motor controller comprising a fluid pump driven in accordance with the motor speed, a fluid motor operated by continuous fluid pressure created by said pump, a valve operated in accordance with the pressure created by the pump to control the pressure operating said fluid motor, a switch operated by said fluid motor, and means controlled by said switch for regulating the electric motor to control the speed thereof.



1,807,281. BRUSH. PAUL A. CROSS, Takoma Park, Md. Filed Nov. 20, 1929. Serial No. 408,621. 1 Claim. (Cl. 306—23.)

A brush holder including a substantially spatulate shaped attaching portion and a handle portion, the attaching portion having a series of hollow ribs arranged close together to form intervening narrow brush head gripping portions extending longitudinally of the ribs, each rib being provided with an opening having a wide portion and a narrow portion, the narrow portion of each opening being slightly depressed to form a seat, said openings being adapted to receive headed fastening elements projecting from the upper face of a brush head to permit the heads to pass through the wide portions and slide in the narrow portions of said openings to seat the heads of the headed elements in said seats and thereby detachably secure the holder to a brush head, one of the said ribs being extended inwardly beyond the others and the inner portion of the extended rib constituting a thumb receiving portion and thereby affording a firm grip on the handle, said handle having inturned side flanges extending longitudinally of the handle and provided with laterally deflected outer terminal portions arranged to fit against one of the side faces of the brush head to coact with said headed elements to prevent twisting of the holder on the brush head.

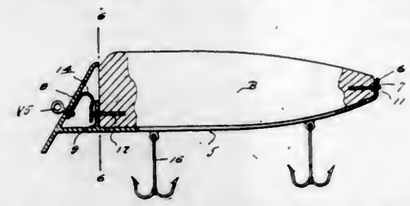
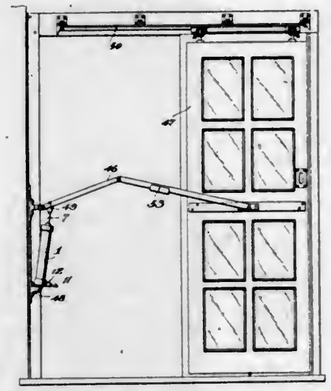
1,807,282. SEED DISTRIBUTING ATTACHMENT FOR PLANTERS. JESSE C. CROWLEY, Paris, Tex. Filed Sept. 30, 1929. Serial No. 396,372. 2 Claims. (Cl. 111—51.)



1. A seed distributing attachment for use with a cotton planter, said planter having a frame, wheels, and a rotatable axle, said attachment comprising a driving wheel adapted to be secured on said axle, a bracket adapted to be secured to said frame, a valved seed spout, a deformable bell crank lever pivoted on said bracket and having one arm thereof in a position to be rocked by said driving wheel, the other arm thereof carrying a link connected to an arm of a second bell crank lever, said second bell crank lever being pivoted to said bracket and having operative connections to said valved seed spout, and yieldable means tending to close said valved seed spout, said deformable bell crank lever having means preventing relative angular movement between its arms in one direction, and further having resilient means permitting angular movement between said arms in the other direction, whereby movement imparted by said driving wheel to one of said arms of said deformable bell crank lever in said first direction is transmitted to said other arm and to said valved seed spout, but movement imparted to said first mentioned arm in said other direction is absorbed by said resilient means and is not transmitted to said other arm and said valved seed spout.

1,807,283. MULTIPLE BODY ARTIFICIAL FISH LURE. HOWARD J. DICK, Benton Harbor, Mich. Filed Apr. 8, 1930. Serial No. 442,590. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—46.)



1. A device of the class described including a frame comprised of a bottom plate and a front plate at an angle to the bottom plate, a body, said bottom plate having a portion extending upwardly at its rear end and formed with an opening, a flange rising from the front portion of the bottom plate and having a slot, said body having a pin to extend through the opening and a tongue to extend through the slot.

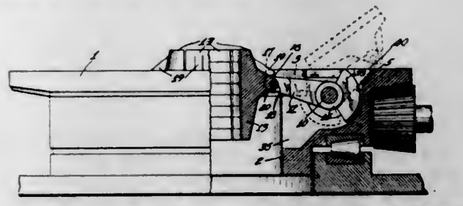
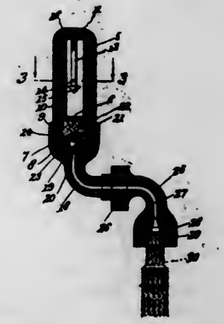
1,807,284. CHECKING MEANS FOR DOOR OPERATING MECHANISM. ANDREW T. DUPONT, Washington, D. C., assignor to Elevator Supplies Co., Inc., Hoboken, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 16, 1929. Serial No. 363,674. 16 Claims. (Cl. 188—94.)



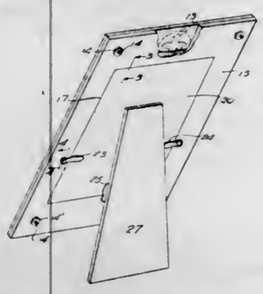
1. In a mechanism for controlling the movements of a door, a door, a member connected to the door, means for varying the rate of movement of said member while the door moves in one direction, and means controlled by said member for impeding the movement of said member while the door moves in the opposite direction.

1,807,285. SIGNAL SWITCH FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. HARRY L. FURR, Washington, D. C., assignor, by direct and mesne assignments, of two per cent to F. J. Ellsworth and five per cent to Herbert W. Steigel, Staunton, Va. Filed Mar. 27, 1928. Serial No. 265,050. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—59.)



1. A switch mechanism adapted to be interposed between a vehicle transmission casing and the adjacent end of a speedometer shaft comprising a hollow body member, a cam link operable therein forming a continuation of the speedometer shaft, a circuit maker and breaker supported on said body member, and means for moving said circuit maker and breaker into and out of operative association with said cam link.

1,807,286. ROTARY TABLE. HERBERT W. GOETZ, Alhambra, RALPH C. CLARK, Los Angeles, and JOHN J. FERLIN, Huntington Park, Calif. Filed Mar. 26, 1928. Serial No. 264,690. 5 Claims. (Cl. 24—248.)



1. In combination, a base provided with a bore adapted to receive a string of well piping and also provided with a recess communicating with said bore, an arm having a pivotal mounting in said recess, and a gripping jaw connected to the swinging end of the arm and adapted to engage the well piping or be swung back to inoperative position above the base by swinging movement of the arm, the said recess having a rear abutment surface so positioned as to permit rearward swinging of the arm to a position whereby substantially the entire gripping jaw is swung rearwardly beyond the vertical dead center of said pivotal mounting for the arm.

1,807,287. COMPRESSION AIR VALVE TESTER. FRANK N. HENKEL, Hammond, La. Filed Feb. 19, 1929, Serial No. 341,096. Renewed Apr. 15, 1931. 3 Claims. (Cl. 73—51.)

2. A compressed air valve tester comprising a flanged base having a conduit therethrough and a valve seat at the mouth of the conduit, a check valve adapted to close against said seat, a perforated cage about the check valve, resilient means acting between said valve and cage for normally retaining the valve closed, a compressible gasket on the base extending about said cage, a transparent tube seated at one end upon said gasket, a gasket also closing the upper end of said tube, a protective jacket extending above and about said glass tube and removably connected with the flange of the base, said jacket having a slotted side wall for observation into said chamber, a body of liquid in said chamber, a small pipe leading through the wall of the protective jacket and gasket, and extending through the upper portion of the chamber confined by the glass tube, thereby having free interior communication both with the upper portion of the chamber and with the external atmosphere, said pipe having a conical head at its lower end and a perforation at its side wall to permit the escape of air from above the body of liquid.

1,807,288. PICTURE SUPPORT. SIGMUND HERBERT, New York, N. Y. Filed June 11, 1929. Serial No. 369,987. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—148.)

1,807,289. CANOE PADDLE. HORACE BELL HERRING, Memphis, Tenn. Filed Dec. 19, 1930. Serial No. 503,562. 2 Claims. (Cl. 9—24.)

1. In a canoe paddle, a handle having a shouldered shank portion with the blunt end and an exterior recess, a bolt lying in said recess and extending beyond the blunt extremity, a coupling piece having an elongated tapered socket to receive said shank portion and provided with a flat perforated base to receive thereagainst the blunt extremity and to admit therethrough the projecting end of the bolt, said coupling piece having a cut-away portion below the socket base to receive the projecting end of the bolt, a nut lying in such cut-away portion and threaded on the projecting end of said bolt, and a blade carried by the coupling piece.

1,807,290. SHOULDER STRAP RETAINER. ANSEL C. HOOPER, Miami Beach, Fla. Filed Oct. 22, 1930. Serial No. 490,528. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—86.)

4. A shoulder strap retainer of the character described comprising a metallic rod, a safety catch rigidly mounted on one end portion of the rod, an eye formed integrally with the other end of the rod, a strap engaging arm formed integrally with the eye and having a turned back portion extending through the eye, and a pin formed integrally with the turned back portion of the arm and having a pointed end portion releasably engageable with the safety catch in a manner to secure the pin in a garment, the arm extending substantially parallel with the rod in spaced, opposed relation thereto and having a curved free end portion directed away from the safety catch.

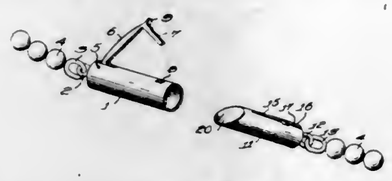
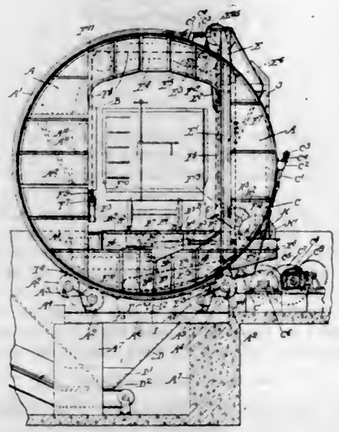
1,807,291. PROCESS OF MANUFACTURING SMOOTH SURFACE FLOOR COVERINGS. RALPH G. JACKSON, Woodbury, N. J. Filed June 1, 1927. Serial No. 195,872. 7 Claims. (Cl. 91—68.)

1. A process of making smooth-surfaced floor coverings which process consists in coating a support with a continuous layer of a flowable composition, solidifying the said composition to substantially that stage at which it is free from stickiness when handled and suitable for use as a wear surface of the said floor coverings and its surface is smooth, and then at that stage and before further drying coloring the body of the said substantially finished layer by impregnating it with a coloring agent which decorates and leaves a continuous smooth surface substantially identical with said wear surface and substantially free from any additional surface layer.



1,807,292. TRANSLATING DEVICE. ABRAHAM JOFFÉ, Leningrad, Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, assignor to Industrial Research Company, Cambridge, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 15, 1927, Serial No. 168,450, and in Germany Aug. 3, 1926. 12 Claims. (Cl. 171—327.)

2. An energy-conversion device comprising a plurality of layers of dielectric material of a thickness of an order of about one micron and intervening layers of metal.



1,807,293. JEWELRY FASTENER. CHARLES BERNARD KELLER, Willow Grove, Pa. Filed Oct. 23, 1929. Serial No. 401,764. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—230.)

3. A fastening of the character described, consisting of a female member having a pair of registering openings in its walls, a hinged locking element carried by said female member and adapted to engage said openings, a male member adapted to fit within the female member and having a spring catch to engage said female member and also having recesses to register with the openings of said female member to be engaged by said locking element to secure the said members in locked relation, said male and female members being of cylindrical form, whereby when the male member is placed in the female member, a twist can be given to said male member to cause register of the recesses and openings in the male and female member so as to receive said locking element to lock the members together.

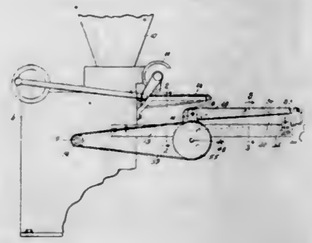
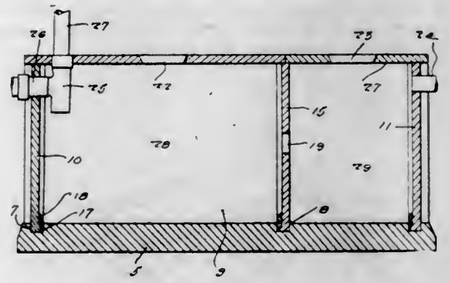
1,807,294. CAR DUMPER. ELWIN H. KIDDER and WILLARD E. ERICKSON, Chicago, Ill., assignors to Link-Belt Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 1, 1927. Serial No. 209,664. 6 Claims. (Cl. 214—55.)



1. In a car dumper, a cradle and means for rotating it, clamps adapted to hold the car in place in the cradle during rotation, a motor for seating the clamps against the car and separate positive independent of gravity means for raising the clamps out of contact with the car.

1,807,295. CONVEYER AND BALLER. WILLIAM G. KIRCHHOFF, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The J. H. Day Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 3, 1930. Serial No. 493,031. 5 Claims. (Cl. 107—4.)



1. The combination with a dough divider, having driving means, of a combined conveyer and baller comprising supporting structure attached to the divider, two pairs of aligned rollers carried by the supporting structure, said pairs being spaced and the rollers of each pair being disposed angularly relative to one another, a pair of endless belts carried by the rollers and forming a trough

V-shaped in cross section, a plate disclosed beneath and against the trough-forming portion of said belts, a gear fixed at one end of each roller of one pair, a shaft carried by the supporting structure, a gear fixed upon the shaft and meshing at differing gear ratios with the aforesaid gears, and means for driving said shaft from the driving means of the divider.

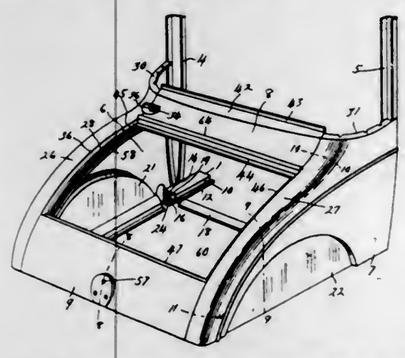
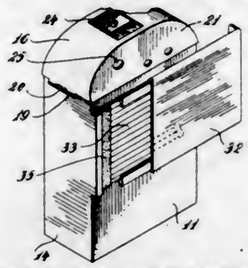
1,807,296. SEPTIC TANK. JOHN G. LAUBHEIMER, Nashville, Tenn. Filed July 16, 1928, Serial No. 293,148. Renewed Nov. 1, 1930. 1 Claim. (Cl. 210—6.)



A septic tank of the class described comprising a bottom slab formed with continuous marginal U-shaped grooves, along its sides and ends, a transverse U-shaped groove intermediate its ends, a pair of individual end and side walls having their lower edges disposed in said groove, each of the said side walls being formed with U-shaped marginal grooves at each end, and a transverse groove intermediate its ends, which are in alignment with the grooves at the ends and intermediate groove on the bottom slab, a partition wall seated in the aligned grooves on the bottom slab and sides intermediate their ends to form a sealed partition dividing the interior of the tank into two compartments, said partition having openings therein spaced above the bottom slab and below the scum line and above the line of sedimentation, an outlet conductor extending through one end wall above the openings in the partitions, an inlet conductor extending through the other end wall, a pair of covers resting on the edges of the side, end and partition walls, a T-fitting connected with the inner end of the outlet conductor having one branch extending through and above one cover to vent the one compartment and the other branch extending down into the tank, all of the ends of the walls confined within the grooves flaring outwardly in the margins adjacent the edges on one side to provide anchorage, and oakum and cement joints packed in the groove on said one flare edge side.

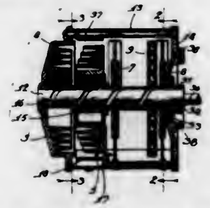
1,807,297. PRESS FRAME. ROBERT E. MANLEY, York, Pa., assignor to Manley Manufacturing Company, York, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Oct. 15, 1926. Serial No. 141,849. 11 Claims. (Cl. 153—53.)

1. A press frame consisting of a pair of vertical channels, a bar secured to each flange of each channel and extending above the tops of the channels, means connecting the bars above the channels, and a table slidable on said channels and bars.



1,807,298. DECK CONSTRUCTION FOR VEHICLE BODIES. WILLIAM MARSHALL, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Briggs Manufacturing Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Dec. 13, 1926. Serial No. 154,586. 2 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)

1. In a vehicle body, the combination with a pair of side sills, a cross bar terminally secured to said sills at the rear ends thereof, rear quarter pillars secured to said sills intermediate their ends, a back panel secured to said rear quarter pillars, side panels extending from said pillars to said cross bar and having inwardly extending lateral portions, said side panels having inturned lateral flanges supporting and secured to said back panel, and a transversely extending panel terminally secured to said inwardly extending portions of said side panels and having a forwardly extending lateral flange supporting and secured to said back panel, said forwardly extending flange being provided with a stiffening flange located in advance of said back panel.



1,807,299. COMBINATION CIGARETTE CONTAINER AND MATCH GUARD.. ADOLF METJE, New York, N. Y. Filed Dec. 16, 1929. Serial No. 414,268. 1 Claim. (Cl. 206—38.)

In a device of the class described, a receptacle for cigarettes, a cap thereon having a roof, said cap being hinged to said receptacle, said roof having an orifice therein adapted to have cigarettes projecting therethrough into said cap, a floor in said cap, said floor and roof forming a secluded compartment, and an aperture in said cap adapted to have ignited matches pass therethrough into said compartments spaced apart ridges on said receptacle, a slide apron, means on said ridges for guiding said apron, and means for retaining a book of matches between said ridges.

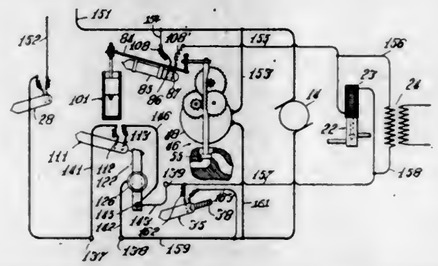
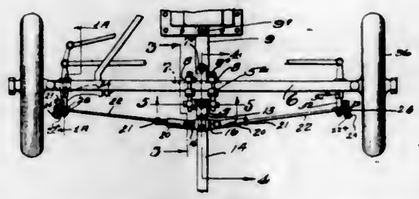
1,807,300. RADIOFREQUENCY AMPLIFYING SYSTEM. REUBEN B. BENJAMIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Benjamin Electric Mfg. Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 6, 1927. Serial No. 224,323. 9 Claims. (Cl. 179—171.)



1. In a radio frequency amplifying system, means for coupling the output of one audion tube to the input of another tube, tuning the input circuit of one of the tubes, and equalizing the transfer of energy from tube to tube at all frequencies of the tuning means, said means comprising a movable tuning condenser element, a shaft for actuating said element, and a coil actuated by said shaft and shiftable thereby longitudinally of the axis of the shaft, said coil lying substantially within the confines of a surface defined by a line moved so as to remain parallel to the axis of said shaft and so as to follow the periphery of said movable tuning element.

1,807,301. CARBON CONTROLLER FOR TYPEWRITING MACHINES. EDWARD KIRBY BOTTLE, Elmira, N. Y., assignor to American Sales Book Company, Limited, Toronto, Canada, a Corporation of Ontario. Filed Nov. 15, 1926, Serial No. 148,361. Renewed Oct. 22, 1930. 25 Claims. (Cl. 197—126.)

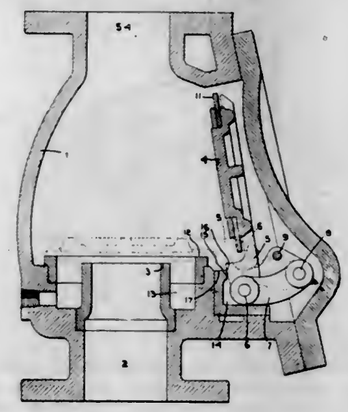


25. In a machine of the character described, in combination, printing mechanism shiftable in line spacing and in letter spacing directions, a platen, a transfer sheet extending across said platen, a transfer sheet supporting frame reciprocally shiftable longitudinally of said platen and relative to said printing mechanism, and means adapted operatively to connect said sheet with said frame at opposite sides of said platen so that said sheet shifts with said frame in each direction while remaining in subtantially flat manifolding condition.

1,807,302. CONTROL SYSTEM FOR BURNERS. MARSHALL H. BRADEN, Rock Island, Ill., assignor to The Nu-Way Corporation, Rock Island, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 30, 1927. Serial No. 179,429. 27 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

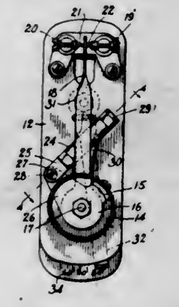
1. In a control system for burners, the combination with a burner motor, of a main supply circuit therefor, thermally responsive means controlling said supply circuit, an electrically operated control unit adapted to be energized upon the energization of said supply circuit and comprising a moving element, having movement in two directions, an ignition circuit, an ignition switch controlling the energization of said ignition circuit from said supply circuit, said ignition switch normally being in closed position during the nonoperating intervals of the burner, and means for controlling the position of said ignition switch, said means being operated by the movable element in one direction only.

1,807,303. TRAILER HITCH. GEORGE C. BURKETT, Indiahoma, Okla. Filed Oct. 15, 1929. Serial No. 399,802. 1 Claim. (Cl. 280—33.55.)



A device of the class described comprising an axle, spindles mounted on the axle, pairs of front and rear clamping members straddling the axle, means for securing said members to the axle, a U-shaped member, a link pivotally connecting said member to the crank case of the vehicle to be towed, said rear clamping members securing the U-shaped member to the axle, and the front clamping members having forwardly extending recessed portions, a vertically swingable block provided with integral extensions journaled in the recessed portions of said front clamping members, a vertically arranged bolt passing through said block and a draft member pivoted thereon for horizontal swinging movement, angle blocks secured to the draft bar, bifurcated members pivotally connected to said angle blocks and having rods adjustably secured thereto and to the axle spindles of the vehicle.

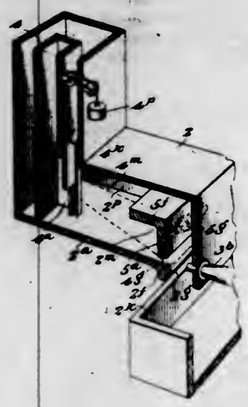
1,807,304. ESTER OF DIETHYLENE GLYCOL. ROBERT CALVERT, Wilmette, Ill., assignor to Van Schaack Bros. Chemical Works, Inc., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 25, 1928. Serial No. 288,305. 10 Claims. (Cl. 260—106.)



1. A composition of matter comprising an ester of an alcohol containing at least one ether group and originally at least two hydroxyl groups, one of which hydroxyl groups is replaced, in the finished ester, by the radical of an aliphatic acid containing less than five carbon atoms to the molecule, and another hydroxyl group is replaced by the radical of an aliphatic acid containing more than ten carbon atoms to the molecule.

1,807,305. VALVE FOR SPRINKLER SYSTEMS. EZRA E. CLARK, Newtonville, Mass.; Frances Clark executrix of said Ezra E. Clark, deceased. Filed June 8, 1928. Serial No. 283,969. 6 Claims. (Cl. 169—22.)

1. In a valve structure for sprinkler systems, the combination with a valve casing having a valve seat, of a valve therefor, a movable member to which the valve is pivotally connected for swinging movement toward and from the valve seat, said member and valve being arranged to have a gravitational movement after the valve is opened, and means co-operating with said valve and member when in the position to which they gravitate to lock the valve against closing movement.



1,807,306. THERMOSTAT. HOWARD D. COLMAN, Rockford, Ill. Filed Jan. 21, 1928. Serial No. 248,348. 4 Claims. (Cl. 297—11.)

1. A control thermostat for a temperature regulating system, comprising, in combination, a thermal element having an adjustable mounting, control means actuated by the movement of said element upon temperature changes in the air to which the element is exposed, a member whose dimensions change upon the absorption and loss of moisture, and means for communicating the dimensional changes of said member to the mounting for said element whereby to change the operative position of the latter.

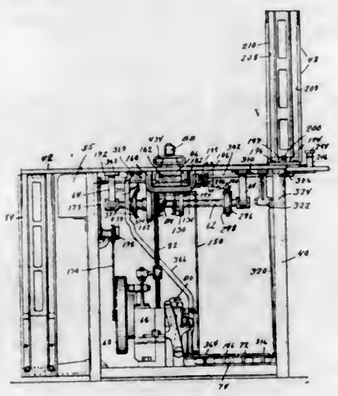
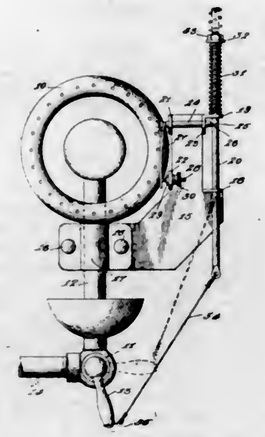
1,807,307. APPARATUS FOR MELTING FINELY DIVIDED MATERIALS. ADRIEN DAWANS, Brussels, Belgium. Filed July 12, 1928, Serial No. 292,211, and in Belgium July 29, 1927. 6 Claims. (Cl. 263—27.)



1. Apparatus for melting finely-divided material, comprising a chamber provided with an inclined, fixed bed plate; a vertical duct situated at the upper end of the bed plate and through which the finely-divided material is introduced, said duct having an aperture in its bottom through which the material escapes and forms a pile extending along the bed plate and having its greatest height comprised between the upper edge of said aperture and the bed plate; melting means acting upon a definite portion of material situated at the intersection of the upper inclined surface of the pile and the plane of the bed plate; and a chimney surrounding the duct for discharging the gases of combustion.

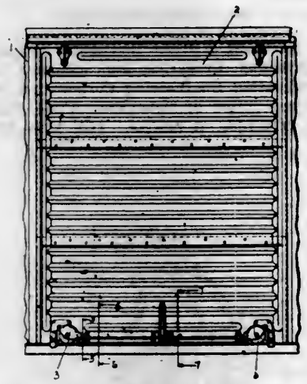
1,807,308. MASSAGE BELT. JAY G. DE REMER, Greenwich, Conn., assignor, by mesne assignments, to J. G. De Remer Research Corporation, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 22, 1928. Serial No. 287,470. 2 Claims. (Cl. 128—63.)



1. A reciprocating massage belt having a relatively stiff body part provided with shoulders and a removable soft fabric casing thereon having shir strings to constrict it upon said shoulders.

1,807,309. ADDRESSING MACHINE. HARMON PARKER ELLIOTT, Watertown, Mass. Filed Jan. 13, 1927. Serial No. 160,872. 101 Claims. (Cl. 101—48.)

1. An addressing machine having a stencil track, a stencil holder, a pile of stencils contained in superimposed order in said holder, said stencils characterized by each having ledger data on one face thereof and an address which is inverted with respect to said ledger data, means to transfer successive stencils to said track and to move them along said track to a receiving position with the face bearing the ledger data uppermost, a platen disposed above said track, a printing roll disposed below said track and platen, means to support an address-receiving article in position under said platen and above said track, means to disable said printing roll and platen for the skipping of a selected stencil, and means under control of the machine-operative to divert the skipped stencil away from the receiving position.



1,807,310. SAFETY DEVICE FOR STOVES. WOLFGANG ELLMAN, Sheboygan, Wis. Filed July 6, 1929. Serial No. 376,466. 1 Claim. (Cl. 158—117.1.)

In combination, a stove burner having a supply pipe extending therefrom and a burner valve in said pipe, said valve being provided with a handle, a substantially L-shaped plate formed from a single piece of metal and comprising a flat body adapted to have one end secured to the burner supply pipe, spaced parallel ears extending from one edge of the body and having axially aligned openings therein, spaced apertured ears extending upward from the other edge of the body, and an apertured ear extending upward from the first referred to edge in transverse axial alignment with one of the spaced apertured ears mentioned, a rod slidable in the openings of the spaced parallel ears, a spring to yieldingly resist movement of the rod in one direction, means connecting the rod with the valve handle to move the rod against the action of the spring when the valve is opened, means slidable through the transversely aligned apertured ears to engage the rod, and thermostatic means carried by one of the spaced apertured ears and engaging the rod engaging means to control the operation of the latter.

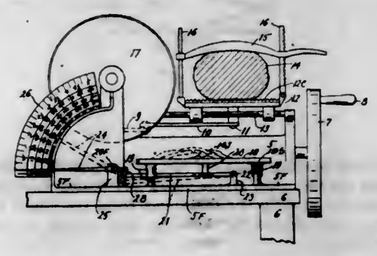
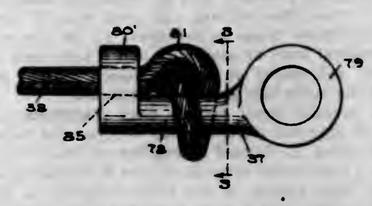
1,807,311. CAR DOOR STRUCTURE. EUGENE J. FEHR and KENNETH J. TOBIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Camel Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Jan. 27, 1928. Serial No. 249,824. 8 Claims. (Cl. 16—99.)



1. In combination, a sliding door, a track member, rollers, retainers for said rollers carried by said door and movable relative to said door, aligned rods cooperating with said retainers, and means for moving said rods apart to transmit a leverage lifting movement to said door about said rollers as fulcrums.

1,807,312. CONTINUOUS REVERSIBLE TOASTER. WILLIAM J. HENLEY, Jr., Rushville, Ind. Filed Jan. 10, 1927. Serial No. 160,147. 13 Claims. (Cl. 126—41.)

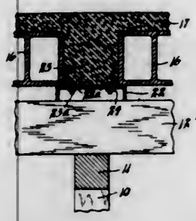


1. A toaster comprising endless conveyor means, heating means adjacent thereto for a portion thereof, and means in juxtaposition to said conveyor means and intermediate the heated portion thereof for receiving an article from the conveyor means, turning said article to present another side to the heating means and delivering the turned article to the conveyor means for heating the last mentioned side of the turned article.

1,807,313. WEIGHING ATTACHMENT FOR MEAT SLICERS. FRANK S. HINES, Northfield, Minn. Filed May 24, 1928. Serial No. 280,211. 1 Claim. (Cl. 265—39.)

The combination of a meat slicing machine of the class described, a scale platform mounted thereon adjacent and under the cutting element of said machines, and indicator means operatively connected with said platform to indicate the weight and value of meat on the platform, said platform mounted in a plane above the forward base part of the slicing machine, downwardly projecting tubular projections integral on the under side of said tray, corresponding posts on said base each arranged to telescopically engage in the bore of one of said platform posts and yieldable means provided within each said tubular projection to resist increasing weight on the platform, a single lever bar fulcrumed to a fixed part of the slicing machine base and its opposite end operatively connected with the hand of the weight indicating device, a pivotal connection between an intermediate part of said bar and a fixed central part of the under side of said platform to depress the bar and operate the indicator hand as described.

1,807,314. CABLE CONNECTER. WALTER G. HUMPHREYS and OMAR R. HUMPHREYS, Omaha, Nebr. Original application filed Sept. 5, 1928, Serial No. 304,128. Divided and this application filed July 15, 1929. Serial No. 378,293. 4 Claims. (Cl. 24—129.)



1. In a cable connecter, the combination of a shank member provided with a cable receiving opening, the side walls of said opening being in substantial alinement with and to one side of said shank, a cable wrapped about the shank and extending through said opening, said cable being looped under itself in a manner whereby stresses applied to said cable or said connecter are adapted to cause a binding engagement between said shank and said cable.

A concrete form structure for floors, comprising spaced supporting means, spaced members extending transverse-

ly of said means having top surfaces, tiles spanning the spaces between said members and resting on the edges thereof, strips carried by said members having faces extending parallel to, within and adjacent the longitudinal edges of said members against the outer sides of which faces said tiles engage, said strips being adjustable and adapted to be positioned different distances from the edges of said members, and means for holding said strips in stationary position.

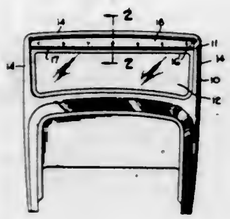
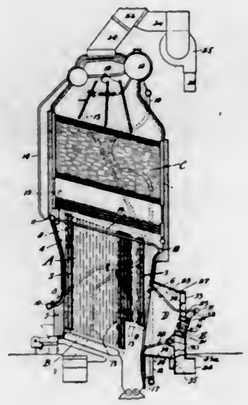
1,807,316. PRESSED METAL VEHICLE BODY. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Co., Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 9, 1925. Serial No. 13,949. 24 Claims. (Cl. 296—28.)



1. A pressed metal automobile body comprising a body side sill of inverted channel cross section, the outer side wall of which is provided with an outturned flange having a down turned edge defining the lower edge of the body, which outturned flange is depressed at its forward end to the general level of said edge, and a body post having its lower end seated on said depressed portion and secured to the outer side wall of said channel.

15. A pressed metal vehicle body comprising a body sidesill of inverted channel cross section, the inner side wall of which is flanged outwardly of the channel to provide a floor board support, a post D bracket generally of angle cross section in the angle of which is disposed said sill section, and a body cross brace of channel cross section presenting upwardly, having one side wall connected with said floor board support flange and the other side wall depressed and connected with the lower branch of the angle of said post D bracket.



1,807,317. WINDSHIELD MOUNTING. JOSEPH LEDWINKA, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Edward G. Budd Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 26, 1928. Serial No. 280,695. 3 Claims. (Cl. 296—92.)

1. In a windshield mounting, a windshield frame having a reentrant portion ot receive a windshield, said reentrant portion having an upper and rear surface at the top, a mounting strip of channel shape secured with the mouth thereof presenting toward the rear wall of said reentrant portion and having its top side conform to the top wall of said reentrant portion, means bridging the mouth of the channel and means associated with said bridging means for securing the mounting strip to the rear wall of the reentrant portion.

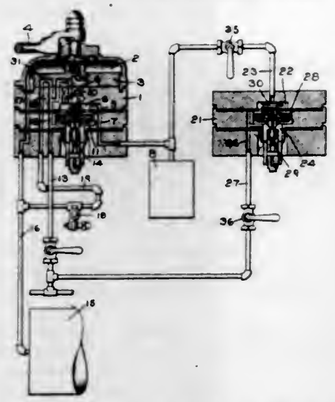
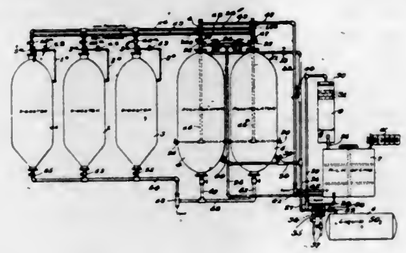
1,807,318. STOKER FIRED BOILER INSTALLATION. EDWIN LUNDGREN, Frederick, Md., assignor to International Combustion Engineering Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 5, 1927. Serial No. 210,758. 5 Claims. (Cl. 122—235.)



1. A boiler installation including a stoker fired combustion chamber having an extension chamber, spaced water tubes in said extension chamber so located as to provide air chambers in said extension chamber, means for admitting air to said air chambers, and burner means located in said extension chamber for introducing finely divided fuel to be burned in space, the air from said air chambers passing through the spaces between said water tubes for admixture with the finely divided fuel.

1,807,319. BRAKE VALVE DEVICE. JOSEPH C. McCUNE, Edgewood, Pa., assignor to The Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Wilmerding, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 8, 1930. Serial No. 426,892. 3 Claims. (Cl. 303—55.)



1. In a fluid pressure brake apparatus, the combination with a brake pipe, an equalizing reservoir, and an equalizing discharge valve mechanism subject to the opposing pressures of the brake pipe and the equalizing reservoir for controlling the venting of fluid from the brake pipe, of an additional equalizing discharge valve mechanism subject to the opposing pressures of said brake pipe and said equalizing reservoir for also controlling the venting of fluid from the brake pipe.

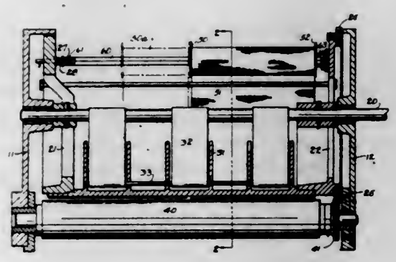
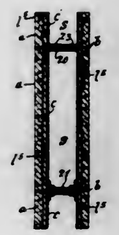
1,807,320. DIGESTING AND COOKING LIQUOR PREPARATION SYSTEM. ALBERT DAVIES MERRILL, Watertown, N. Y. Filed June 24, 1930. Serial No. 463,438. 22 Claims. (Cl. 92—11.)



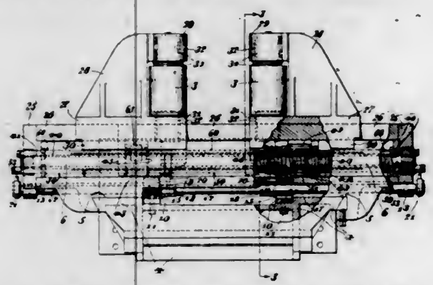
1. A method of the character described, comprising feeding milk of lime to a pressure accumulator, conducting SO_2 to the accumulator, contacting these substances to make acid liquor, and mixing a digester relief fluid with such acid liquor.

1,807,321. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR THE PRODUCTION FROM HYDROCARBON OIL OF BLACK PIGMENT CONSISTING OF CARBON. AMOS L. MILLER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Ault & Wiborg Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Feb. 4, 1928. Serial No. 251,808. 8 Claims. (Cl. 134—60.)



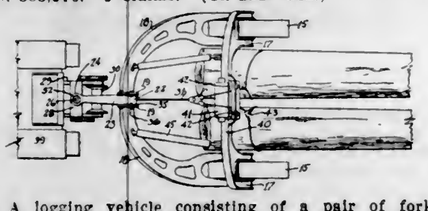
1. A process of producing lamp black from hydrocarbon oil which comprises decomposing a portion of such material in an inner zone protected against substantial combustive exposure, such decomposition being effected by the heat in an outer zone of combustion of another portion of such material enveloping said inner zone, and continually supply additional hydrocarbon oil to be decomposed directly into the decomposition zone while supplying air for the partial combustion thereof solely to the outer or combustion zone.

1,807,322. RIBBON HOLDING AND FEEDING DEVICE FOR PRINTING MACHINES. LAWRENCE H. MORSE, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to American Multigraph Co., Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 11, 1929. Serial No. 391,716. 11 Claims. (Cl. 101—244.)



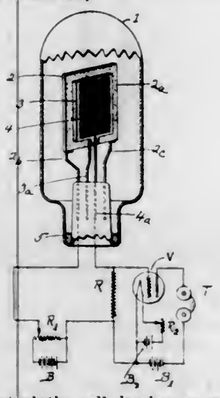
1. The combination of a rotary printing drum, a pair of ribbon spools carried thereby in a manner enabling them to be adjusted into various positions lengthwise of the drum without changing the driving action of the spool, and mechanism for driving one of the spools as the drum rotates.

1,807,323. CONCRETE, MASONRY AND STEEL CONSTRUCTION. JOHN JAMES O'REILLY, New York, N. Y. Filed June 25, 1927. Serial No. 201,573. 2 Claims. (Cl. 72—1.)



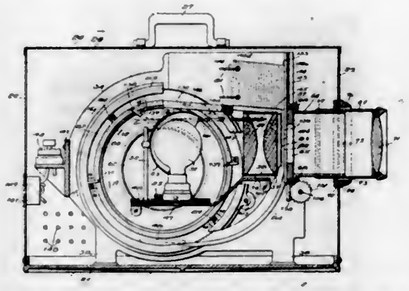
1. A building unit comprising two equally dimensioned parallel slabs in relative spaced alignment each slab having an exposed facing of spaced particles of building material with a cementitious filling moulded solidly in the outer portion of the spaces or joints between said particles and a metal matrix moulded solidly in the inner portion of the spaces between said particles and over the backs thereof forming a solid continuity of metal extending to the side and end edges of the aforesaid slabs, intermediary connecting members fastened to the metal backing of both slabs holding them rigidly in spaced relation, and means in the unit for assembling same together with other similar units in a building structure.

1,807,324. STRAIGHTENING MACHINE. EDWARD T. PETERSON, Reading, Pa., assignor to Birdsboro Steel Foundry and Machine Company, Birdsboro, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 4, 1926. Serial No. 146,091. 14 Claims. (Cl. 153—54.)



1. In a straightening machine, the combination of tail straightening rolls, and means for adjusting the said rolls toward and from and laterally with respect to the said machine.

1,807,325. LOGGING VEHICLE. HARRY H. RICHMOND, Portland, Oreg., assignor to Electric Steel Foundry Company, Portland, Oreg. Filed Aug. 6, 1929. Serial No. 383,970. 6 Claims. (Cl. 212—142.)



1. A logging vehicle consisting of a pair of forked tongue members sloping upwardly towards the forward end, a neck joining the forward ends of said tongue, an arch spanning said forked ends and hingedly connected thereto, brace means between said arch and tongue and ground engaging elements supporting the opposite sides of said arch.

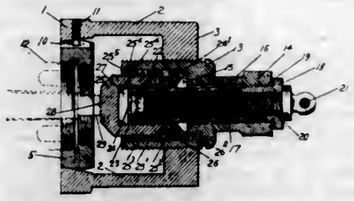
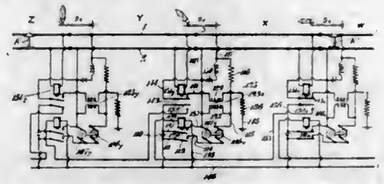
2. A photo-electrolytic cell having a copper electrode plate with a surface layer of cuprous oxide, a cooperating reticular electrode plate and a translucent, electrolytically conductive crystal plate interposed between and in surface contact with the electrodes.

1,807,327. STEREOPTICON. JOHN F. STUBNER, Chicago, Ill., assignor of one-third to Albert Besser and one-third to Max J. Olshansky. Filed May 5, 1927. Serial No. 188,915. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—28.)



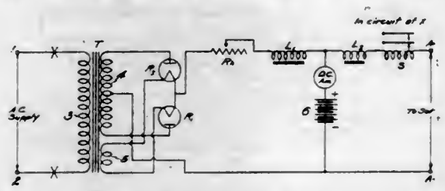
2. In an automatic projecting machine, means for forming a projecting beam of light, a magazine for a plurality of slides above the beam of light, means for moving the foremost slide vertically into the path of the beam, means for moving the next foremost slide into the path of the beam so that its lower edge strikes against the top edge of the first slide to eject said first slide, and means for returning the ejected slide into upright position at the rear of the magazine.

1,807,328. REGULATION OF PUMPS, COMPRESSORS, BLOWERS AND LIKE MACHINES. THOMAS REGINALD WARREN, Norton-on-Tees, England, assignor to Imperial Chemical Industries Limited, London, England, a Company of Great Britain. Filed Sept. 14, 1929, Serial No. 392,586, and in Great Britain Nov. 16, 1928. 7 Claims. (Cl. 103—11.)



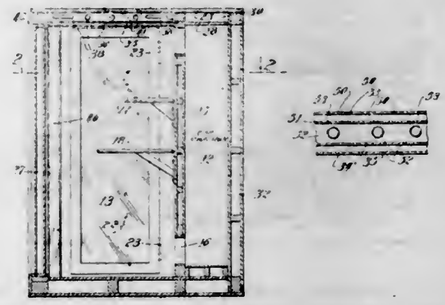
1. In a pressure-regulating arrangement for a group of pumps, compressors, blowers or like machines discharging into a common system, the combination of a reversible electric motor associated with each machine, means whereby such motor acts in accordance with its direction of rotation to raise or lower the speed of operation of the machine, a source of intermittently interrupted electric current, a device responsive to the pressure in the common discharge system, and contacts actuated by the pressure-responsive device controlling the supply of current from the source for determining the direction of rotation of the reversible motors, the arrangement being such that the reversible motors are caused to raise or lower the speed of the machines in accordance with whether the pressure in the system is below or above a predetermined value.

1,807,329. WHEEL DRAWER FOR USE ON MOTOR VEHICLES. FREDERICK BERTRAND WEST and KEVIN JOSEPH PIDCOCK, Kyogle, New South Wales, Australia. Filed Nov. 29, 1929, Serial No. 410,575, and in Australia Sept. 18, 1929. 2 Claims. (Cl. 29—86.)



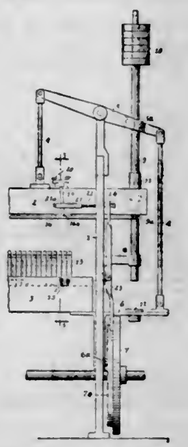
1. A wheel drawer comprising a split ring nut having a tapered outer surface, a spider having a ring with a tapered inner surface which is engaged by the tapered surface of the said nut, in the spider a head and screwed into the said head a cylinder of a fluid ram assembly, within the cylinder a plunger, secured within the cylinder and opening into the bore thereof a smaller cylinder, within the smaller cylinder a plunger and a manually rotatable screwed spindle to reciprocate the said plunger within the smaller cylinder.

1,807,330. TRACK CIRCUIT SYSTEM. ARBA G. WILLIAMSON, Carnegia, Pa., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Feb. 3, 1927. Serial No. 165,603. 26 Claims. (Cl. 246—34.)



1. A track circuit system comprising: traffic rails divided into blocks, a source of current, a circuit including both rails of a block, a circuit between ground and at least one of said rails, and an interrupter for supplying an interrupted current to said circuits from said current source.

1,807,331. BATTERY CHARGING UNIT. CHARLES A. WRIGHT, Lakewood, Ohio, assignor to National Carbon Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 8, 1927. Serial No. 231,933. 1 Claim. (Cl. 175—363.)



A charging system for a dry cell battery comprising, in combination, a transformer provided with a primary winding adapted to be connected to a source of alternating current and with a secondary winding adapted to furnish a battery-charging potential, a rectifying device connected in circuit with said secondary winding, and means adapted for connecting in the secondary circuit the battery to be charged, said transformer being so designed and proportioned as to operate at or above its saturation point under the intended load conditions, whereby the effects of voltage fluctuations in a supply source connected to said primary winding tend to be reduced or suppressed.

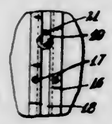
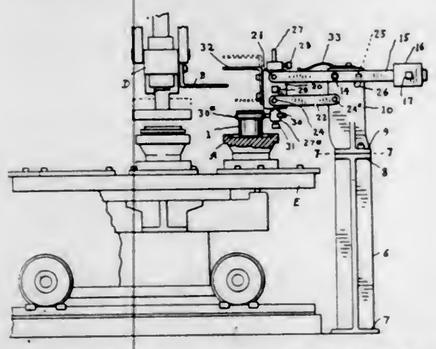
A refrigerated show case, comprising bottom, top, rear and side walls, a multi-layered window closing the front of said case, multi-layered glazed doors for closing the sides of said case, and a multi-layered glass top for said case, a vertical wall disposed adjacent the rear wall and spaced therefrom to form a cooling chamber and a display chamber, the said wall being spaced from the top and bottom walls of the case to provide passages for the circulation of air between said cooling and display chambers, the multi-layered glass top comprising a pair of spaced double plate glass sections between which is formed a compartment adapted to permit the mounting therein of a plurality of incandescent bulbs for illuminating the display chamber, the outer one of said double plate glass sections forming the top wall of the case being provided with a plurality of staggered ventilatng openings for permitting the escape of the heated air from said lamp compartment.

1,807,333. SHUTTLE OPERATING MECHANISM. JOHN E. BARBOUR, Paterson, N. J., assignor to National Net & Twine Co. Inc., Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 4, 1930. Serial No. 499,876. 12 Claims. (Cl. 96—21.)



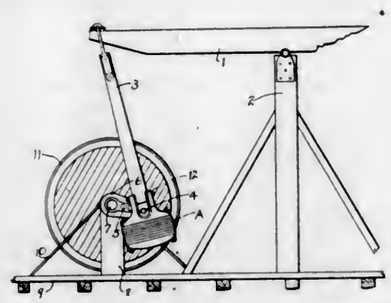
1. A shuttle-motion mechanism comprising, in combination, a frame, an up-and-down-moving system therein including upper and lower lays connected to move together toward and together from each other, a shuttle load and a counterbalance load, and means to impose said loads respectively on the lays on the alternate approaches of the lays toward each other and to impose each load on the relatively opposite lay on the remaining approaches of the lays toward each other.

1,807,334. LOCOMOTIVE STRUCTURE. JAMES G. BLUNT, Schenectady, N. Y. Filed Mar. 1, 1930. Serial No. 432,386. 19 Claims. (Cl. 105—172.)



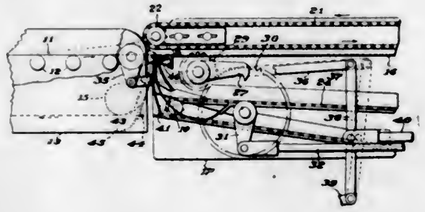
2. In a locomotive structure, the combination of a pair of side front frame members; a cylinder saddle disposed intermediate the length thereof; and a cross-tie member detachable from the front frame members and the saddle and having a portion disposed beneath the saddle, a portion extending rearwardly of the saddle, and a portion extending forwardly of the saddle.

1,807,335. BUILDING WALL. GEORGE CASTELYNS, LEONARD STANS, and ARMAND VINCK, New York, N. Y. Filed July 3, 1929. Serial No. 375,648. 4 Claims. (Cl. 72—46.)



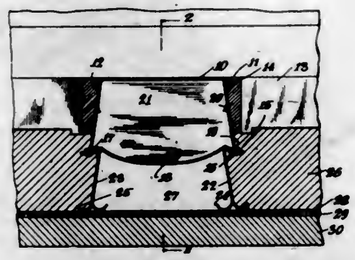
1. In a wall structure, a strip for attachment upon an object and formed with a dove-tailed groove, hooks slidably mounted being provided with tongues engaging in the said groove, and means for locking the hooks in fixed positions along the length of the grooves.

1,807,336. GLASS-GOB DISPOSING MEANS. JEDDIAH B. CLARK, Dunkirk, Ind. Filed Oct. 11, 1928. Serial No. 311,908. 4 Claims. (Cl. 49—14.)



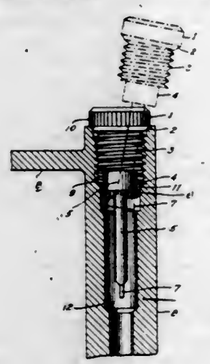
3. In combination with a machine for making articles of pressed ware, having molds arranged in circular serial formation and carried rotatively about a vertical axis, plunger and pressing mechanisms for said molds, and a feeding means for separating mold charges from the source of supply at a distance above the mold, a disposer head having a funnel shaped bore, there being a recess in the bottom of the head communicating with and flaring from the mouth of said bore, a frame disposed at position adjacent to said machine, a vertically reciprocable rocker member on the frame, a cross head swiveled on the forward end of the rocker member so as to operate in vertical alignment, a support rod retained adjustably, vertically and rotatably in said cross head, and having an integral cross head thereon, a yoke member in which the disposer head is removably retained, the said yoke member having an arm to be engaged in the crooss head of said support rod, means to fasten the said arm in the cross head of said support stem, means on the frame to limit the downward stroke of the forward portion of said rocker member, a counter balance weight adjustable on the rearward portion of the rocker member, a spring on the frame to resist the force of the upward stroke of the rocker member, and a catch bar carried by the plunger mechanism of the machine, whereby with the completion of pressing and during the upward movement of the plunger carrier mechanism, the disposer head is raised.

1,807,337. COUNTERBALANCE FOR PUMPING RIGS. FRED GRAHAM, Lufkin, Tex., assignor to Lufkin Foundry & Machine Company, Lufkin, Tex. Filed Feb. 3, 1928. Serial No. 251,505. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—71.)



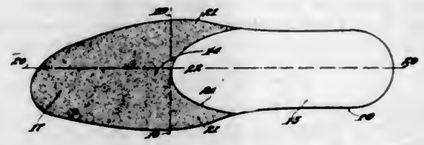
1. In a pumping rig or the like, a rotatable power shaft, a crank arm thereon, a walking beam, a pitman connected with said walking beam and to said crank arm, a yoke secured to the lower end of said pitman, and a plurality of plates secured detachably to said yoke to form a variable weight upon said pitman.

1,807,338. CONFECTION CONVEYING MACHINE. FREDERICK W. GREER, Cambridge, Mass. Filed Mar. 28, 1931. Serial No. 525,913. 7 Claims. (Cl. 197—7.)



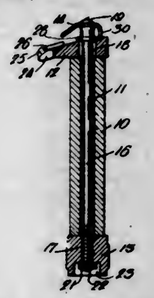
1. In a machine of the class described, mechanism for loading flexible plaques, comprising in combination, a plaque supporting surface, mean for carrying successive plaques upwardly around the edge of said surface and along the surface, a conveyor apron having the end of its upper run positioned close to the end of said surface to deliver article upon a plaque passing upwardly therebetween, and mechanism for momentarily shifting the conveyor apron away from said surface to clear the forward end of a plaque passing upwardly therebetween.

1,807,339. AIR SPACE EXPANSION JOINT. CHARLES LEHNING, Astoria, N. Y. Filed Sept. 30, 1930. Serial No. 485,427. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—107.)



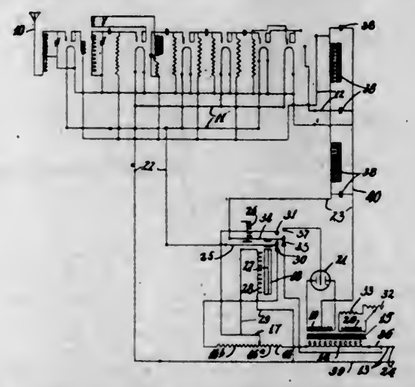
2. An expansion joint of the class described comprising a copper frame, slanting side walls formed therewith having outwardly bent lower ends bent upon themselves in spaced relation, a curved bottom having its end held in the spaces between the bent ends and bolts securing said bottom ends ot aid side wall, legs formed integrally with said side walls, and anchoring feet on said legs.

1,807,340. OILER. JOHN F. MARTIN and FRANK E. WATTS, Springfield, Mass., assignors to American Bosch Magneto Corporation, Springfield, Mass., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 3, 1928. Serial No. 258,883. 15 Claims. (Cl. 184—38.)



3. The combination with an internally threaded and bored casing, of an oiler comprising a screw having a pilot of reduced cross section and a spatulated stem, and a washer in said bore for preventing removal of said oiler.

1,807,341. CUSHIONING INSOLE FOR BOOTS AND SHOES. MATIE C. MESSLER, Providence, R. I., assignor to Madge Messler, Providence, R. I. Filed Oct. 29, 1927. Serial No. 229,637. 3 Claims. (Cl. 36—28.)



1. A cushioning insole for boots and shoes composed of soft rubber and provided with heel and shank portions of substantial and uniform thickness, a front member of substantial length tapering from the front end of the toe portion to near a transverse plane through the insole at its widest portion, and a ball portion intermediate said tapering front member and said shank portion and having tapering sides extended rearwardly from said transverse plane and a center portion intermediate said tapering sides and of substantially the same thickness as the shank and heel portion, said center portion having on one surface a curved edge or outline at the rear of said transverse plane and formed by said front portion and said tapering sides.

1,807,342. SAFETY RAZOR. FRANK PELOSI, Haverhill, Mass. Filed May 28, 1930. Serial No. 456,425. 4 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)

1. A safety razor comprising a hollow handle, a guard member mounted at one end of the handle, a stem extending through the handle and guard, a locking plate secured at one end of the stem and cooperating with the guard to hold a blade therebetween, a nut threading on the opposite end of the stem and bearing against the end of the handle to draw the plate toward the guard member and clamp the blade therebetween, and means on the stem engaging the nut to limit outward rotation of the nut.

1,807,343. RADIO RECEIVING APPARATUS. ALEXIS PONCEL, Long Island, N. Y., assignor of forty-nine per cent to Paul Desfosse, New York, N. Y. Filed May 14, 1930. Serial No. 452,186. 6 Claims. (Cl. 250—27.)

1. A radio receiving apparatus arranged to operate universally from a direct as well as an alternating current power supply, comprising a radio receiving system including a filament circuit and a plate circuit, a power circuit in series with a source of direct or alternating current and connected in series with said filament and plate circuits and including the primary of a transformer connected in series with a resistance divided into sections by a tap and an electrically operated switch controlled by the passage of direct current in said power circuit for connecting the entire resistance in said filament circuit and by the passage of alternating current for connecting said tap for connecting part of said resistance in said filament circuit, said transformer having a secondary of two windings, means for changing the resistance of one of said windings for changing the inductance of said primary, said power circuit also including a rectifier, and said electrically operated switch being also controlled by the passage of direct current in said power circuit for disconnecting said rectifier and by the passage of alternating current for connecting the plate circuit with said rectifier.

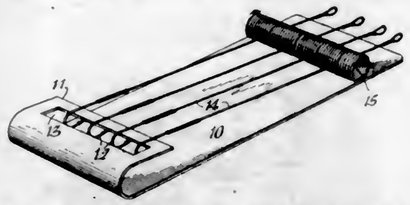
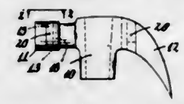
1,807,344. WARNING DEVICE FOR ELECTRIC PUSH-BUTTONS, ETC. BENJAMIN ROTH, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Oct. 6, 1930. Serial No. 486,522. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—10.)

1. A warning device comprising a movable shield provided with a supporting arm that is adapted for permanent attachment to an operative electric device, said shield normally hiding the electric device and adapted to be moved to expose said device for operation and to return to its normal position automatically, substantially as described.



1,807,345. DRAFT KEY FOR CAR COUPLERS. ERNEST H. SCHMIDT, Cleveland Heights, Ohio, assignor to National Malleable and Steel Castings Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 6, 1927, Serial No. 224,316. Renewed Apr. 16, 1929. 7 Claims. (Cl. 213—71.)

6. In railway draft rigging, a coupler having a horizontal slot therethrough, said slot having projecting therein a forwardly facing convex protuberance movable with the coupler shank on draft, a yoke having arms with slots therein registering with said first named slot, a draft key passing through all of said slots to connect said shank and yoke, the slot in the shank providing sufficient clearance for said key to enable the same to angle therein, said key having a rearwardly facing concave notch therein seating against and having radial bearing on said protuberance for permitting horizontal angling therebetween.



1,807,346. FISHHOOK HOLDER. WALTER A. SCHNEGENBURGER, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Oct. 3, 1929. Serial No. 397,106. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—32.)

1. A fish-hook holder, comprising a base plate having an up-turned flange at its front end terminating in a horizontal portion overhanging and spaced from said base plate, said portion containing an opening for detachably receiving a fish-hook, the curved and pointed end of the hook being disposed in the space between the base plate and the overhanging portion of the flange, and a yieldable retaining device at its other end for frictionally receiving the gut-string of the hook.

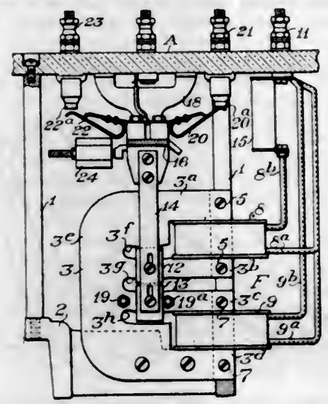
1,807,347. INTERCHANGEABLE HAMMER. FREDERICK SCHWEIGERT, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 17, 1930. Serial No. 445,109. 2 Claims. (Cl. 145—29.)

1. In combination with a hammer head having a removable striking end and nail puller, a tongue projecting from one of said elements and consisting of an outer portion extending completely from end to end of said element and an inner portion extending from one end to near the other end, and said tongue engaging into a groove in the other of said elements, said groove having an inner portion extending from end to end of said element receiving said outer element of the tongue and an outer portion extending from one end to near the other end leaving a bridge portion on said element for abutting against said inner portion of the tongue, said bridge portion being made of separate sections pivotally supported, means for normally holding the bridge sections across said groove and for allowing pivoting of these sections out of the groove.

1,807,348. DEVICE FOR TRIMMING CORN. HENRY A. SHELDON, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to Sprague-Sells Corporation, Hoopeston, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 3, 1929. Serial No. 352,288. 15 Claims. (Cl. 130—9.)



1. A device for tapering the ends of ears of corn, comprising a rotary head, means for rotating said head, and knife means carried by said head, the edge of said knife means projecting toward the axis of said head and being arranged to taper and to cut a transverse substantially flat portion at the end of the ear inserted in said head.

1,807,349. ALTERNATING CURRENT RELAY EMPLOYING A MOTOR ELEMENT. PAUL P. SOSINSKI, Swissvale, Pa., assignor to The Union Switch & Signal Company, Swissvale, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 7, 1930. Serial No. 442,137. 14 Claims. (Cl. 175—338.)

1. A relay comprising a core member having two magnetic paths each including a pair of legs which are connected at one end by a backstrap and which have an air gap between them adjacent the backstrap, means for creating periodic fluxes in each of said paths, and a movable armature provided with means reacting with the flux in both of said air gaps to exert a force on the armature.

1,807,350. REFLECTING DEVICE. JONATHAN CASS STIMSON, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Nov. 3, 1928. Serial No. 316,997. 11 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.)

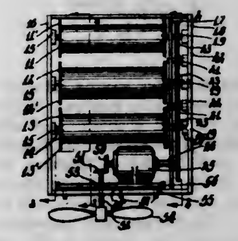
1,807,351. JACK. MILTON C. SUPAN, Mineral, Calif. Filed Oct. 5, 1927. Serial No. 224,238. 1 Claim. (Cl. 254—133.)

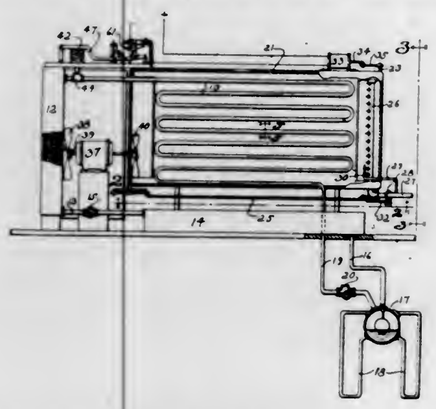


A jack comprising a substantially rectangular body, a rack bar slidably arranged within the body and terminating to provide an offset apertured extremity at its upper end, manually operated means for raising and lowering the rack bar, a threaded rod having its upper end received by the aperture of said offset extremity, nuts arranged above and below the extermity and associated with the rod to support the latter, said rod being arranged exteriorly of the jack body and in spaced parallel relation thereto, a yoke slidably mounted upon the rod and extending in the direction of the jack body, and arranged to straddle the latter, a shoe supporting plate slidable on said rod and projecting in an opposite direction from the yoke, the adjacent ends of said yoke and plate being arranged in superposed relation on said rod, and nuts threaded on said rod above and below the yoke and plate for holding the parts in a given adjusted position.

1,807,352. RADIATOR INCLOSURE. SAMUEL TANGER, Lynbrook, N. Y. Filed Mar. 25, 1930. Serial No. 438,759. 6 Claims. (Cl. 257—138.)

3. In a radiator inclosure, a casing, and cover therefor comprising a composition cork board of substantial thickness and of the size for the cover, the top and edges of which are covered with relatively thin sheet metal which in turn is bent back a short distance on the under side of the front and ends of the cork board, and a sheet metal flange along the back edge of the cover extending down below the under surface of the cover and movably attached to the casing and adapted to direct hot air from a radiator in the enclosure toward the front of the enclosure.

1,807,353. HELICOPTER. RALPH TARSHIS, Brooklyn, N. Y. Refile for abandoned application Serial No. 311,448, filed Oct. 10, 1928. This application filed Jan. 23, 1930. Serial No. 422,969. 6 Claims. (Cl. 244—19.)



1. A helicopter of the class described, comprising a frame, spaced hollow cylinders rotatively mounted therein, an engine with an exhaust pipe discharging exhaust gas and connected for driving the cylinders in one direction, a pipe connected with the said exhaust pipe, and provided with a plurality of downwardly directed nozzles for forcing the helicopter upwards into the vacuum created by the said cylinders.

1,807,354. REFRIGERATING MECHANISM. CHARLES C. THOMAS, Detroit, Mich., assignor to Copeland Products, Inc., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Jan. 18, 1928. Serial No. 247,683. 18 Claims. (Cl. 62—5.)

1. In a refrigerating system of the class described, a refrigerant transformer, a condenser and an evaporator connected therewith, heat suppiying means for said transformer, and means for rendering said heat supplying means inactive actuated by a predetermined drop in pressure in said system from a maximum cycle pressure therein.

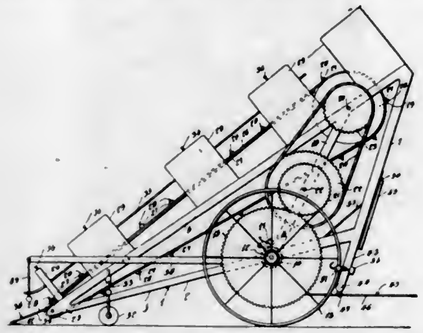
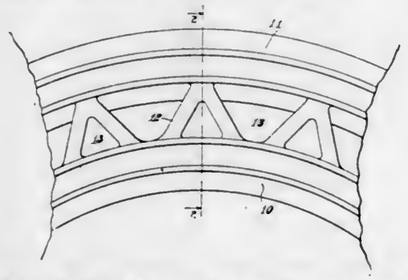
1,807,355. TREATMENT OF RUBBER. WILLIAM P. TER HORST, Packanack Lake, N. J., assignor to The Naugatuck Chemical Company, Naugatuck, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed May 19, 1930. Serial No. 453,864. 27 Claims. (Cl. 18—50.)

1. A process of treating rubber which comprises incorporating therewith the reaction product of an aliphatic ketone and a secondary aromatic amino compound.



1,807,356. CHECKBOOK. WALTER N. VANCE, Chicago Heights, Ill., assignor to Lyon Metal Products, Incorporated, Aurora, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 14, 1928. Serial No. 306,065. 1 Claim. (Cl. 248—22.)

In combination, a holder having inturned flanges at its sides to provide grooves, a resilient relatively flat hook carrying member in said grooves, said member being of substantially disk-shape having diametrically opposite cut away portions, and having a diameter slightly greater than the width of the holder between the grooves, whereby said cut away portions provide for the insertion of the member between the flanges, and subsequent rotation of the member engages the edges of the member in the grooves, thereby bowing the member outwardly in the center to provide for frictional engagement between the member and the holder.



1,807,357. HAY RAKE, GATHERER, LOADER AND BUNCHER. WILLIAM B. VAUGHN, Baker, Oreg. Filed Nov. 14, 1928. Serial No. 319,285. 2 Claims. (Cl. 56—349.)

1. A machine of the class described having connected angularly disposed top bars, rear bars and bottom bars forming spaced triangular frames, an intermediate bar extending from the bottom bar to the top bar and forwardly of the rear bar, ground wheels connected to the bottom bars adjacent the junction of the latter with the intermediate bars, a drum journaled on the top bar adjacent the junction thereof with the intermediate bars, a smaller drum journaled at the junction of the top and bottom bars, a conveyor traversing said drums, gearing partly supported on the intermediate bar, being in driving relation to the ground wheel means and to the first mentioned drum, and a plurality of side members extending upwardly from the top bars and being of different height progressively in an upward direction, spring means on said side members, and presser bars supported by the spring means in substantial parallelism with the upper run of the conveyor.

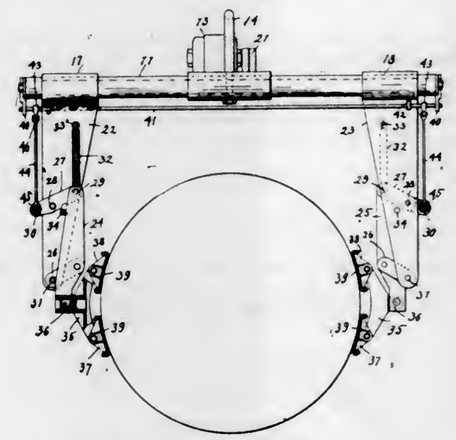
1,807,358. DAM CONSTRUCTION. OSCAR WARTEMANN, College Point, New York, N. Y. Filed June 1, 1928. Serial No. 282,060. 1 Claim. (Cl. 61—30.)

A dam comprising a pair of concentric arc-shaped walls disposed with their bulge in the upstream direction, each wall having a cross section tapering from the base towards the top, and V-shaped transverse walls integral at their apices and base ends, respectively, with the opposed faces of the two walls, the arms of the said transverse walls being disposed at an angle to the radii of the curve of the arched walls and having the portions at the apices inclined in the direction of the inner face of the upstream wall.



1,807,359. HEATER FOR PROPELLERS. WILLIAM WATERS, Boston, Mass. Filed Oct. 28, 1927. Serial No. 229,444. 1 Claim. (Cl. 170—172.)

In a device of the class described, a shaft, a hub fitted to the shaft and rotatable therewith, blades radiating from the hub, a sleeve in which the shaft is rotatable, one side of the hub being in engagement with the end of the sleeve, the said side of the hub being provided with annular grooves concentric to each other and to the axis of the hub, a collector ring in each of said grooves, an electrical resistance in each of said blades, a conductor bridging corresponding terminals of the resistances, conductors connecting the other terminals of the resistances, each with a respective one of the rings, the sleeve being provided with sockets at opposite sides of its axis and each in communication at its outer end with a respective one of the grooves, contact brushes slidably mounted in the sockets, current conductors connected with the brushes, and means in the sockets yieldably holding the brushes in contact, at their outer ends, with the respective connector rings.

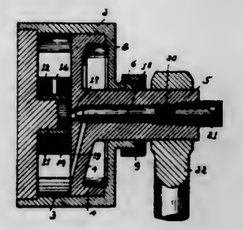
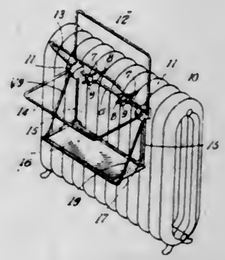
1,807,360. PAPER ROLL HANDLING MECHANISM. WILLIAM G. WEHR, East Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Cleveland Crane & Engineering Company, Wickliffe, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 17, 1928. Serial No. 262,506. 11 Claims. (Cl. 294—106.)



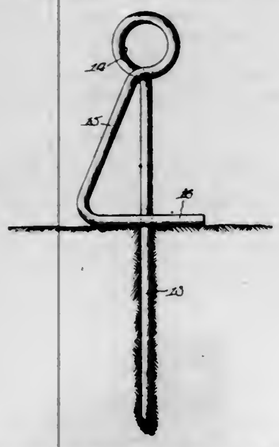
1. A handling mechanism comprising supporting members, members slidably mounted on said supporting members for relative movement toward and away from each other, and work engaging means movable bodily with said last mentioned members and connected thereto for independent relative movement into work supporting position as the work is being lifted.

1,807,361. LIFTING DEVICE. CHRIST G. WEINREICH, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Mar. 17, 1928. Serial No. 262,409. 2 Claims. (Cl. 114—51.)



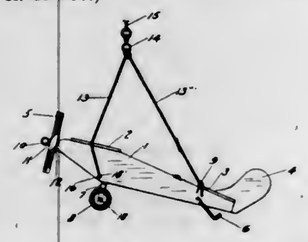
1. In a lifting apparatus, a pair of spaced pontoons, a bridge structure spanning the gap between said pontoons and supported thereby, a lifting member, vessel gripping arms pivotally supported by said lifting member, means for lowering and raising said lifting member including the vessel gripping arms, means whereby the vessel gripping arms are spread apart at their lower ends when lowering the lifting bar including the vessel gripping arms and means whereby the lower ends of the vessel gripping arms are moved toward each other for engagement with the hull of the vessel upon raising movement of the lifting arm to raise a sunken vessel with the lifting member and vessel gripping arms.

1,807,362. HYDRAULIC SHOCK ABSORBER. LE ROY A. WESTMAN and GLENN B. CARMAN, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Jan. 19, 1929. Serial No. 333,661. 12 Claims. (Cl. 188—89.)



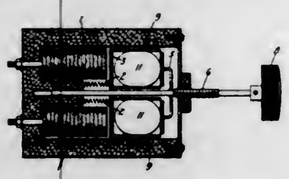
1. A shock absorber, including a liquid chamber, a rotatable disk within said chamber and axially aligned therewith, an eccentric device, and a liquid displacement piston operatively connected with said disk and said eccentric device, said piston having a liquid transfer passage associated with said device to restrain in varying degree the flow of liquid displaced by the piston.

1,807,363. COLLAPSIBLE RACK FOR RADIATORS. VIOLETTE E. WHEATCROFT, West New Brighton, N. Y. Filed Feb. 6, 1929. Serial No. 337,774. 4 Claims. (Cl. 211—86.)



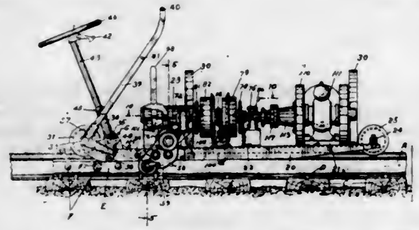
1. In a drying device, a pivot block (having a smooth arcuate outer face, a fixed support rod set axially in said block, a pendant rod fixed in the under side of said block, a plate pivotally connected to said pendant rod, and means to support the free edge of the plate.

1,807,364. DOWEL BAR SUPPORT. WILLIAM E. WHITE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Kalman Steel Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 8, 1929. Serial No. 369,437. 3 Claims. (Cl. 94—39.)



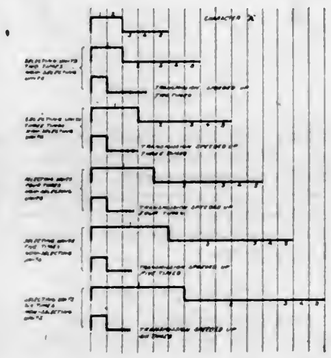
1. A bar support formed from a length of wire rod having a vertical leg adapted to enter the soil, a complete turn of the wire at the top of the leg providing an eye, the rod then extending downward and terminating in a horizontal portion located midway of the height of the leg and acting as a stop.

1,807,365. FLYING TOY. WILLIAM C. WOOD, Davenport, Iowa. Filed Mar. 6, 1929. Serial No. 344,810. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—50.)



1. A tethered toy aeroplane comprising a longitudinal body, a transverse front wing attached to the upper edge of the body, small openings formed in the front wing near the outer ends thereof, a triple sling comprising a tail line attached to the body near the tail thereof and a loop passing through the wing openings and adjustably secured to the lower part of the body below the front wing, and a tether connected to the sling.

1,807,366. COMPRESSIBLE PILE RHEOSTAT. VIRGIL E. WOODCOCK, Washington, D. C., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 27, 1929. Serial No. 381,530. 8 Claims. (Cl. 201—51.)



7. A rheostat comprising one or more compressible piles, gas inflated containers therefor formed of material which may be stretched, means for applying pressure on said containers distending the same and thence to said piles, whereby only a fraction of said pressure is transmitted to said piles.

1,807,367. RAILWAY BOLT TIGHTENER. HORACE E. WOOLERY, St. Paul, Minn., assignor to Woolery Machine Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Jan. 30, 1929. Serial No. 336,296. 23 Claims. (Cl. 81—54.)

1. A machine of the character described comprising a frame adapted to be supported and travel on a pair of rails, and with its center of gravity substantially above one of the rails whereby the entire machine may be quickly tumbled off the rails, and longitudinally spaced rockers for supporting the machine when tumbled from the rails.

1,807,368. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR OPERATING CABLE TELEGRAPH SYSTEMS. HERBERT ANGEL and JAMES W. ROBINSON, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignors to The Western Union Telegraph Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 30, 1929. Serial No. 351,379. 13 Claims. (Cl. 178—2.)

1. The method of transmitting telegraph code signals over a line or cable from a transmitting station to a receiving station which consists in transmitting the elements of the code characters in such a manner that succeeding selecting or marking elements shall be of opposite polarity, the spacing or nonselecting elements of the same polarity as the preceding selecting element, the selecting elements having a duration of at least one time unit and the spacing elements having a duration less than the selecting elements.

1,807,369. GEAR SHIFT LEVER GRIP FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. CHARLES W. BECK, Toledo, Ohio, assignor, by mesne assignments, to Nellie M. Beck, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Apr. 23, 1928. Serial No. 272,164. 3 Claims. (Cl. 16—121.)

1. A gear shift lever wood grip comprising a plurality of lamina of wood having a central opening through a plurality of the lamina transversely of the grain of the wood of the lamina and short of extending through the grip, and an externally roughened internally threaded ferrule for mounting the grip, said ferrule being of larger external diameter than said opening and being press-fitted into said opening in supplementally interlocking the lamina of the grip adjacent the ferrule.

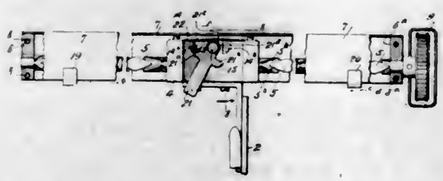
1,807,370. PROCESS FOR THE PREPARATION OF VISCOSE. JACQUES MARC BERNARD, Paris, France. Filed May 27, 1927, Serial No. 194,851, and in France June 24, 1926. 5 Claims. (Cl. 260—100.)

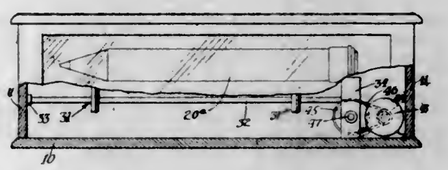


1. A process for the manufacture of liquid viscose which consists in impregnating cellulose with carbon disulphide, adding thereto a solution of caustic soda, allowing the caustic soda to transform the cellulose into liquid xanthate of cellulose, and diluting in an aqueous bath to the viscosity of the viscose to be produced, all these operations being performed at ordinary temperature.

1,807,371. LUGGAGE CARRIER FOR VEHICLES. GERALD L. BINNS, Ypsilanti, Mich. Filed Apr. 25, 1929. Serial No. 358,065. 6 Claims. (Cl. 224—29.)

1. A luggage carrier for vehicles comprising brackets for attachment to the vehicle, a bed frame supported at its inner edge between the brackets and embodying hingedly connected sections capable of being rolled upon one another above the brackets, a brace arm pivotally connected between each bracket and the adjacent end of the frame, and means carried by each brace arm for engagement with one of the frame sections for preventing unrolling of the frame.

1,807,372. CARRIAGE REVERSING MECHANISM FOR WINDSHIELD CLEANERS AND THE LIKE. HOLGER BJORNWALD, New York, N. Y. Refiled for abandoned application Serial No. 539,875, filed Feb. 28, 1922. This application filed June 27, 1930. Serial No. 464,187. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)



1. Carriage-reversing mechanism for windshield cleaners and the like embodying, in combination, a rotatable screw having oppositely-disposed threads, means for rotating the screw, a carriage mounted to travel on the screw, nuts rotatably mounted in said carriage and having interior threads engaging respectively with the oppositely-disposed screw-threads of the screw and also having exterior projections; a pivoted connecting bar mounted on said carriage and adapted alternately upon pivotal movement to connect with and prevent rotation of either of said nuts, comprising a reversing pawl having arms extending substantially at right angles and pivoted on the pivot of said bar and stops at opposite ends of said screw for swinging said pivotal pawl to engage the pivoted bar and lock the carriage to the nuts.

1,807,373. CONNECTING ROD FOR LOCOMOTIVES. JAMES G. BLUNT, Schenectady, N. Y. Filed Apr. 13, 1925. Serial No. 22,761. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)

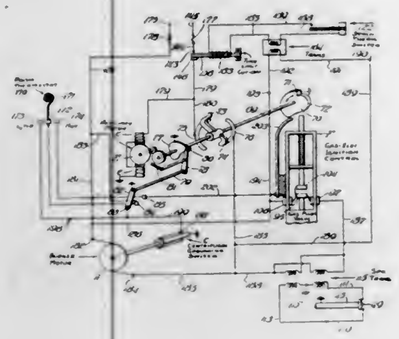
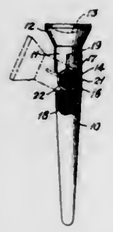
1,807,374. REFLECTOR SIGN. FRED W. BOWERMAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 16, 1929. Serial No. 363,516. 15 Claims. (Cl. 40—130.)



1. In a display sign, the combination of an object-strip, a flexible reflector arranged with respect to the strip so as to produce an image of the latter, means for deflecting the reflector back and forth to cause the reflected image to change in size or shape, and a motor connected to operate said means and effect a continuous and automatic deflection of the reflector.

1,807,375. ELECTRIC CONDENSER AND METHOD OF REMOVING IMPURITIES FROM THE ELEMENTS OF OR FOR SUCH CONDENSERS. SYLVESTER BOYER, Lynn, Mass., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 27, 1927. Serial No. 201,766. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—41.)

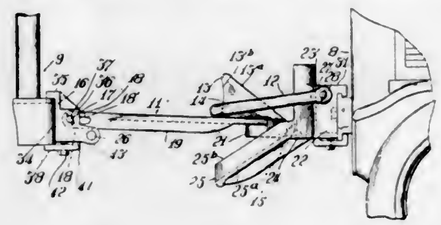


1. The method of removing impurities from the elements of an electric condenser which consists in washing the condenser in a dielectric fluid by compressing and releasing the elements of the condenser in the fluid.

1,807,376. LIQUID FUEL BURNING SYSTEM. MARSHALL H. BRADEN, Rock Island, Ill., assignor to The Nu-Way Corporation, Rock Island, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 9, 1925. Serial No. 14,151. 12 Claims. (Cl. 158—28.)

9. A liquid fuel burning system comprising an electric motor, means actuated thereby for supplying fuel to a combustion chamber, a high voltage circuit for said motor, a switch in said high voltage circuit for controlling the operation of said motor, a room thermostat in said high voltage circuit, electrical means responsive to said thermostat for opening and closing said switch, a circuit breaker in said high voltage circuit, a thermostatic switch operable by the heat generated by the combustion of the fuel, a low voltage circuit connected with said thermostatic switch, means responsive to said low voltage circuit and operatively connected with said circuit breaker whereby said circuit breaker is caused to open should ignition fail or combustion cease, and a transformer having its primary winding connected to the high voltage circuit and its secondary winding connected to said low voltage circuit, said primary winding being connected to said high voltage circuit whereby the operation of said circuit breaker interrupts the operation of said motor and also interrupts the flow of current in said primary winding.

1,807,377. GOLF TEE. DE WITT P. BROKAW, North Plainfield, N. J. Filed May 16, 1930. Serial No. 452,831. 5 Claims. (Cl. 273—33.)

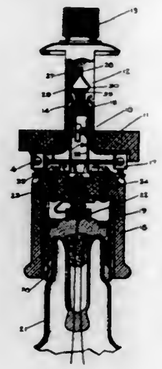


1. A tee comprising a ground penetrating peg portion, and a separate body portion having a tee seat, a pivot element connecting the peg portion to the body portion, and a spring element at the pivot connection adapted to return the body portion to its original vertical driving position after being displaced therefrom when the ball is struck from the tee.

1,807,378. FILTER FOR AIR AND GASES. ELEONORE BUDIL, Born Meixner, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany. Filed July 28, 1927, Serial No. 209,137, and in Germany July 31, 1926. 8 Claims. (Cl. 183—79.)

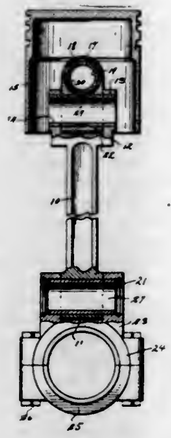
1. In a filter for air and gases, filtering-elements of tubes, from the walls of which tubes series of flaps are stamped out, disposed staggered towards each other, said flaps being bent under different angles toward the inside of the said tubes.

1,807,379. DRAFT COUPLING FOR TRACTORS AND TRAILERS. ROBERT J. BURROWS, Buchanan, Mich., assignor to Clark Tructractor Company, Buchanon, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Sept. 17, 1926. Serial No. 136,025. 11 Claims. (Cl. 280—33.44.)



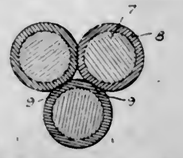
11. A coupling device comprising a relatively short vertically swinging draw bar having a hook on its upper side, a draw head adapted to receive said bar, said bar being adapted to have a limited lateral swinging movement, means on the draw head to guide the draw bar vertically to automatically engage the same with the coupling member, and a coupling member pivotally carried by said draw head and adapted to fall from the force of gravity over said hook.

1,807,380. OAR. GLENN C. BUTLER, Rochester, Mich. Filed July 16, 1930. Serial No. 468,335. 1 Claim. (Cl. 9—24.)



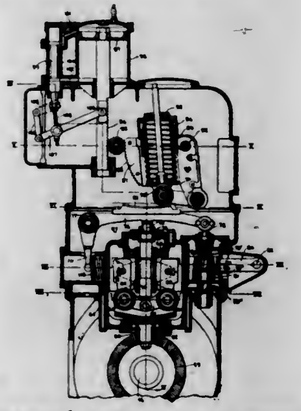
An oar of the class described, comprising: a shaft having one end bifurcated; a metallic paddle strip engageable between the bifurcations of said shaft; a neck on one end of said paddle strip, said neck lying between said bifurcations and being of no greater width than the width of said shaft, said shaft terminating inwardly of the other end of said paddle strip; and means for securing said strip between said bifurcations.

1,807,381. CUT-OUT FOR SERIES INCANDESCENT STREET-LIGHTING CIRCUITS AND THE LIKE. HENRY E. BUTLER, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 24, 1929. Serial No. 357,834. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—87.)



1. The combination with a lamp socket having lamp terminal connections and a pair of contact arms electrically connected to said terminals, of a cutout structure held between said contact arms comprising an insulating means for holding said arms from electrical contact with each other, an electro-magnet having the terminals of its windings connected to said arms, and a conductor which is moved by the electromagnet to connect electrically said contact arms.

1,807,382. UNIVERSAL CONNECTION FOR PISTON RODS. JOHN R. BUTLER, Durango, Colo., assignor of one-half to Jennie C. McLean, Durango, Colo. Filed Jan. 15, 1929. Serial No. 332,583. 4 Claims. (Cl. 74—108.)

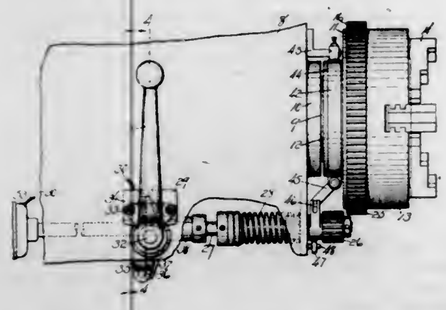


1. A piston rod bifurcated at its upper end to provide two apertured ears, a trunnion block disposed and fitting between said ears and having a transverse passage in one end, the other end of the trunnion block being formed to fit between the inwardly extending bosses of a trunk piston and having a passage disposed at right angles to the first named passage, a pair of tubular pins extending through both of said passages one of said pins having an annular channel at a point spaced inwardly from the opposite ends thereof, the other pin being adapted to rotatably seat in said annular channel whereby to lock said first pin against longitudinal movement, and means engaging the walls of said passages for holding the pins in place.

1,807,383. GRINDING METHOD AND APPARATUS. GEORGE HOLMES CARNAHAN, New York, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Rubber Surfacers, Inc., Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 29, 1928. Serial No. 309,363. 9 Claims. (Cl. 83—9.)

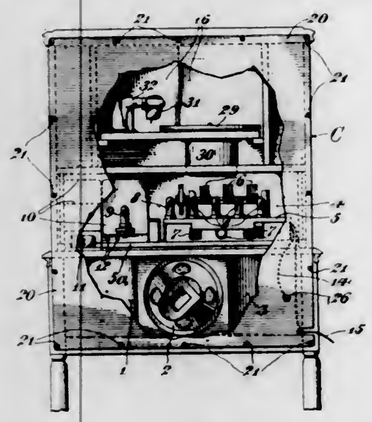
1. The improved method of grinding or disintegrating materials in ball mills or tube mills which comprises subjecting the same to the action of grinding balls having resilient rubber wearing surfaces which flatten under pressure where the balls come into contact with each other, the resilient surfaces of said balls being of substantial thickness and the heavy metal core being of sufficient weight to cause the balls to flatten where they come in contact with each other during the grinding operation, whereby the resilient surfaces have substantial surface areas in contact with each other during the grinding operation.

1,807,384. INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINE CONTROL MECHANISM. ALAN ERNEST LEOFRIC CHORLTON, London, England. Filed Feb. 15, 1928. Serial No. 254,346. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—140.)



1. The combination with an internal combustion engine provided with a fuel injection device having means for varying the duration of injection and means for varying the timing of injection, of a governor operated by the engine and including centrifugal weights, spring means for opposing the centrifugal effort of the weights, means under control of the weights and of the spring means and connected to the injection duration varying means for controlling the latter in accordance with the load imposed upon the engine, means for varying the effective scale of the spring means so as to obtain various operating speeds of the engine, and means responsive to said speed-varying means for effecting adjustments in the time of fuel injection.

1,807,385. CHUCK. ALBERT E. CHURCH, New Britain, Conn. Filed Jan. 25, 1929. Serial No. 335,182. 16 Claims. (Cl. 279—114.)



1. A chuck including a chambered body having chuck jaws radially movable thereon and a scroll member engaged with said jaws, an internally toothed member secured to said scroll member, a pinion engaged with said toothed member, an internally and externally toothed jaw actuator rotatably mounted on the exterior of said body, and a geared connection between said actuator and said pinion, said connection including a gear rotatably mounted on said body and in mesh with the teeth on said actuator.

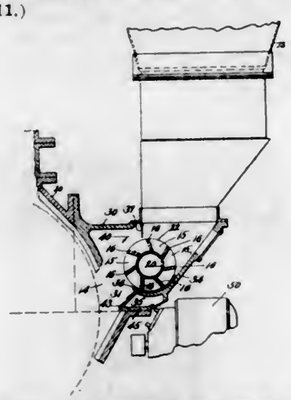
1,807,386. CABINET FOR RADIO RECEIVING APPARATUS. CAROLE A. CLARKE, Moorestown, N. J., assignor to Victor Talking Machine Company, a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 10, 1928. Serial No. 311,516. 6 Claims. (Cl. 250—14.)

1. The combination with radio apparatus of a casing therefor, the wall structure of the casing including a metallic plate constituting the coupling between said apparatus and an electro-radiant energy transmission medium and acting as a closure member for said casing.



1,807,387. MOP HOLDER AND WRINGER. ANTONY COLANGELO, Revere, Mass. Filed Apr. 29, 1930. Serial No. 448,352. 1 Claim. (Cl. 15—120.)

A mop holder and wringer comprising an elongate handle, means at the lower end of the handle for holding one end of a mop, a sleeve slidable along the handle and having an arm extending transversely thereof, a hub on said arm, a crank shaft rotatable and longitudinally slidable in said hub, the lower end of the shaft having a transverse loop for holding the opposite end of the mop and the other end being bent to form a transverse shoulder and operating lever, and a coiled spring surrounding the shaft between said hub and said shoulder and tending to hold said loop adjacent said arm, the hub being spaced from the lower edge of the arm so that the loop normally engages the arm and is thereby prevented from rotation when the mop is in use.

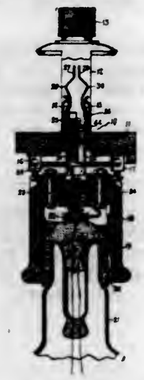
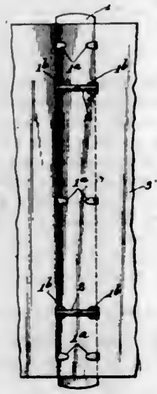
1,807,388. APPARATUS FOR FEEDING COAL AND LIKE MATERIAL. CYRUS CORLISS, Boston, Mass. Filed June 29, 1929. Serial No. 374,663. 5 Claims. (Cl. 83—11.)



1. In a feeding apparatus of the character described, in combination, a rotatable bucket member provided with axially extended walls spaced a substantial distance apart at both their inner and outer ends to form a plurality of buckets open at their inner and outer ends continuously throughout the length thereof, a closure member cooperating with the inner ends of said buckets to substantially close the same and about which the bucket member is revolved, said closure member being constructed and arranged to maintain said buckets substantially closed at their inner ends from a position in which they are loaded by gravity through their open outer ends into a position wherein they are unloaded by gravity through said open outer ends, said walls co-operating with said closure member to effect bodily movement of the material in the buckets with relation to said closure member while said material is being discharged by gravity from said buckets.

1,807,389. CUTOUT FOR SERIES INCANDESCENT STREET LIGHTING CIRCUITS AND THE LIKE. HARRY R. CRAGO, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed May 15, 1930. Serial No. 452,790. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—111.)



1. The combination with a lamp socket having lamp terminal connections and a pair of contact arms electrically connected to said terminal connections, of a cutout located between said contact arms, comprising an electromagnet mounted on one of said arms and having its winding connected to said arms, a movable plunger for said magnet, a spring contact carried by one of said arms, and a contact carried by the other arm and adapted to be engaged by said spring contact, said spring contact being normally held from engagement with said other contact by said plunger and being brought into engagement therewith when the electromagnet is energized and the plunger is moved to release the spring contact.

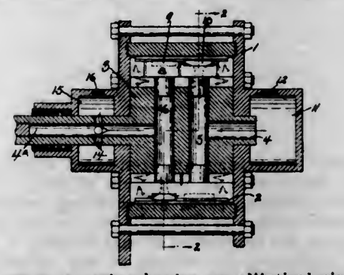
1,807,390. LOOSE LEAF BINDER. GEORGE LOCKE CROSBY, East Orange, N. J. Filed Dec. 14, 1929. Serial No. 413,956. 6 Claims. (Cl. 129—1.)

1. A loose leaf binder comprising a main element having inwardly projecting oppositely located perforated projections, and inwardly extending clamping projections, rings pasaing through the perforations, and a cover clamped to said main element by said clamping projections.



1,807,391. WALKING TOY ANIMAL. JOHN M. DANKO and JOHN KASARDA, Freeland, Pa. Filed Mar. 21, 1930. Serial No. 437,710. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)

1. A mechanical toy comprising the figure of a four-legged animal, the legs of which are free to swing and be raised and lowered, the head of which is pivoted to the body so as to be swung up and down, a train of gears positioned within the body, a motor for driving said gears, crank discs revolvable by said gears, operating levers pivoted to said crank discs, said levers being so mounted as to receive a four-way motion from the crank discs, leg levers to which said operating levers are pivoted, said leg levers being slidably pivoted so as to follow the motions of the operating levers, a centrifugal governor for regulating the speed of the train of gears, and means connected with the head of the figure for starting and stopping said train of gears.

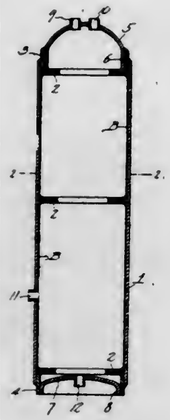
1,807,392. CONTINUOUS CIRCULATING PUMP. CLAUD FLEMING DAVIS, Shadyside, Ohio. Filed May 28, 1929. Serial No. 366,610. 8 Claims. (Cl. 103—136.)

2. In a pump, a casing having an elliptical circumferential wall, a cylindrical rotor within the casing having oppositely disposed hollow journals rotatably mounted in the side walls of said casing, said rotor having therein spaced diametrical bores having their opposite ends opening into the interior of the casing, the interior of each journal being in open communication at its inner end with the adjacent bore, centrifugally-responsive members having their inner ends slidably received in the outer ends of each bore, said members having their outer ends seated upon the circumferential wall of the casing and having ports opening outwardly in opposite directions through which communication is had between said bores and the interior of the casing at both the front and rear sides of said members.



1,807,393. REFLECTING DEVICE. HERMAN FREDERICK DELMANHORST, Louisville, Ky., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Louisville Frog, Switch & Signal Company, Louisville, Ky., a Corporation. Filed May 5, 1928. Serial No. 275,485. 9 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.)

9. In a reflecting device, a lens holder comprising a hollow body open at its outer end and closed at its inner end, said body formed with an inner threaded part and an outer non-threaded part, said non-threaded part offset with respect to the portions of smallest inner diameters of said threaded part and having its outer diameter corresponding to the portions of the largest diameters of said threaded part, said parts coacting to provide a support for a combined securing and sealing medium for the lens adapted to be positioned in said body and further acting as a seal for said threaded part.

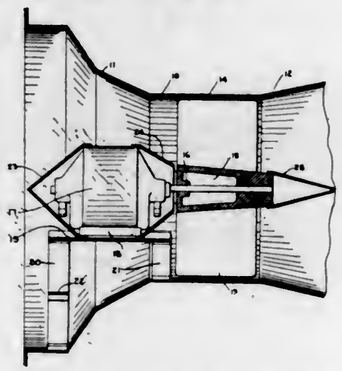
1,807,394. INTERIORLY ENAMELED BOILER. ARTHUR L. DUNHAM, New York, N. Y. Filed July 30, 1927, Serial No. 209,627. Renewed Jan. 9, 1931. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—63.)

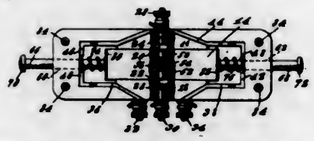
A boiler comprising an open-ended cylinder formed from a single piece of corrodible material, a plurality of spaced stiffening rings, attached and extending from the interior surface of said cylinder, the end rings being spaced from the extremities of said cylinder, a coating of enamel applied to the interior of said cylinder and directly covering the exposed portions of said rings and closure means of non-corrodible material for sealing the ends of said cylinder, and adapted to be attached thereto after the application of the enamel, each of said closure means being partially overlapped by the ends of the cylinder.

1,807,395. BUILDING WALL STRUCTURE. GEORGE H. ELLIS, St. Paul, Minn., assignor to The Insulite Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Nov. 12, 1928. Serial No. 318,776. 4 Claims. (Cl. 20—4.)



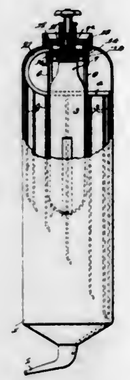
1. In a building wall, the combination with spaced studding having outer and inner wall sections secured to their opposite edges, of insulating panels arranged between adjacent studding and each having one edge secured to one of said studdings, the opposite edges of said boards being beveled and abuttingly engaged with each other, and said beveled edges also engaging one of said wall sections.

1,807,396. MEANS FOR STRINGING BEADS. PERCY G. ELLSWORTH, Burlington, Vt. Filed May 6, 1929. Serial No. 360,933. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—1.)



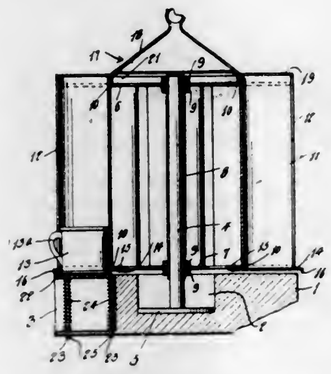
1. In a bead stringing board, elongated elements each having longitudinal grooves on their upper faces adapted to hold beads and a series of graduations parallel to said grooves progressively increased numerically in opposite directions from a central zone, and means for hingedly connecting the elements together.

1,807,397. PROPELLER TYPE PUMP OR FAN. CARL J. FECHHEIMER, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 20, 1927. Serial No. 192,967. 8 Claims. (Cl. 103—89.)



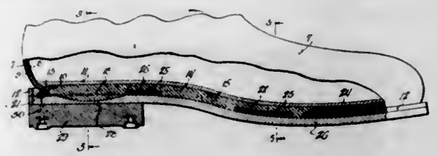
1. A propeller type pump or fan comprising a casing and a bladed propeller having a hub tapered in the direction of flow and mounted within the casing, the blades of the propeller having an increasing axial pitch from their leading to their trailing edges, said blades being also relatively thickened toward their leading edges, whereby the passages between the casing and the hub and the respective blades are divergent in the direction of flow, the angle of divergence of said passages being between 5.5 degrees and 8.0 degrees for efficient conversion of velocity into static head in ducts of similar section.

1,807,398. SWITCH. ROY E. FLEEK, Oil City, Pa. Filed Feb. 13, 1929. Serial No. 339,671. 1 Claim. (Cl. 200—16.)



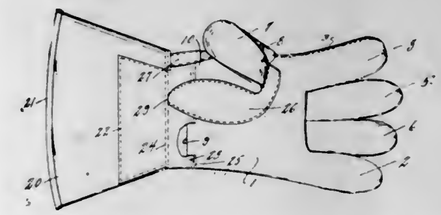
In a switch of the class described, a casing of insulating material, a block of insulating material mounted for sliding movement longitudinally in the casing, means connected with the block whereby it may be adjusted, springs engaging the opposite ends of the block to yieldably hold the same in an intermediate position, fixed contacts upon opposite side walls of the casing intermediate the ends thereof, contacts slidably mounted in the opposite sides of the block, a spring disposed between the last mentioned contacts to hold the same in engagement with the first mentioned contacts when the block is in its normal, intermediate position, a pair of spaced fixed contacts upon each end wall of the casing, a corresponding contact of each pair being in circuit with one of the first mentioned fixed contacts, conductor wire connecting means in circuit with the said one of the fixed contacts, and a conductor wire connecting means in circuit with each of the other contacts of the pairs.

1,807,399. DRY FIRE EXTINGUISHER. WILHELM FRIEDRICH, Berlin-Lichterfelde. Filed Apr. 11, 1928, Serial No. 269,252, and in Austria May 27, 1927. 3 Claims. (Cl. 169—31.)



1. In a fire extinguisher having a discharge outlet, a powder container, a gas bottle supported therein having its outlet normally sealed, means for rendering ineffective said sealing means, a closure for the powder container having a chamber therein, means for rendering said chamber fluid tight, means for establishing communication between said gas bottle and said chamber, a conduit arranged within the powder container and having a communication with the chamber in the closure, and a plurality of branch conduits leading from the first named conduit to different points throughout the container and into said discharge outlet.

1,807,400. CUP CONTAINER. ARTHUR J. GALLAGHER, Warren, Ohio. Filed Apr. 2, 1929. Serial No. 351,983. 3 Claims. (Cl. 312—42.)

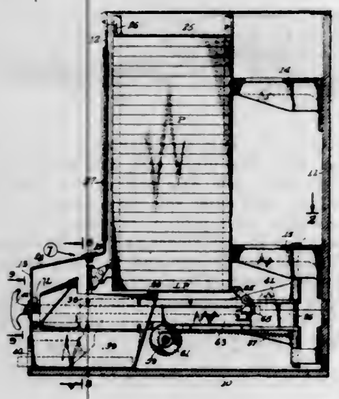


1. A cup container comprising a spring supported plate, a series of cup carrying tubes provided with slots through which the handles of the cups extend, pivoted bars extending across the lower ends of the tubes, and means for rotatably supporting the tubes to permit them to be successively alined with the plate.

1,807,401. SHOE. JAMES F. GILKERSON, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Feb. 13, 1930. Serial No. 428,045. 5 Claims. (Cl. 36—17.)

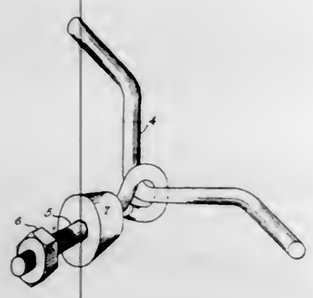
5. In a Goodyear welt shoe having a sewed seat, the combination with the inner sole, the welt, the inseam ridge and the outer sole, of a cushion sole interposed between the inner and outer sole comprising a soft rubber member having a filler portion extending under the insole, between the inseam ridges at the heel and shank of the shoe, and secured thereto and having a bottom cavity formed therein beneath the metatarsal bones of the foot and a bottom cavity extending from the heel adjacent its breast outwardly beyond the same, material stiffer than said member filling said cavities, stitching securing the welt and outer sole directly together around the shoe, a heel, and fastening means for said heel secured to the outer sole.

1,807,402. GLOVE. HERMAN GILLIAN, Columbus, Ohio. Filed Jan. 7, 1930. Serial No. 419,119. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—162.)



1. A hand covering having a gauntlet, a palm spaced from the gauntlet to provide clearance therebetween, a gauntlet facing bridging said clearance, a thumb, and a facing extending from the thumb crotch over the palm and bridging portion to the gauntlet.

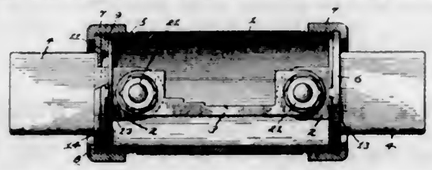
1,807,403. DISPLAY DEVICE. DOUGLAS B. GORDON, Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. Filed Apr. 23, 1928. Serial No. 272,203. 12 Claims. (Cl. 40—130.)



1. In a display device, a frame having spaced end walls provided with inwardly projecting flanges at their top edges, angular strips secured to the end walls and having inwardly extending flanges spaced from the flanges aforesaid and cooperating therewith to form guideways, an inclined wall joining said end walls, a second set of angular strips secured to said end walls adjacent said inclined wall and forming therewith guideways, a sheet of material having a reflecting surface supported upon said inclined wall and secured in said last mentioned guideways, and a transparent sheet of material having symbols applied thereto, secured in said first mentioned guideways.

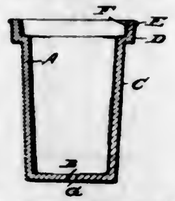
1,807,404. CIRCULAR VENDING MACHINE. HARRY T. GOSS, Rutherford, N. J., assignor to Pack Shops, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 4, 1926. Serial No. 92,107. 10 Claims. (Cl. 312—67.)

1. In a vending machine, the combination of a plurality of vertically disposed package containing reservoirs radially disposed about an axis, a plurality of mechanism locating spring retainers, one for each reservoir, a single package ejecting mechanism pivotally mounted to be swung about said axis and including an ejecting rod coacting with said spring retainers and adapted to be positioned selectively in operative engagement to eject the lowermost package from any one of the reservoirs.



1,807,405. MEANS FOR ATTACHING LINTELS TO CONCRETE SPANDRELS. ARTHUR C. HEITMANN, Oakwood, Ohio. Filed June 10, 1929. Serial No. 369,547. 3 Claims. (Cl. 72—101.)

1. Means for attaching a support to a monolithic member, comprising anchors for embedment in said member, fastening elements to whose inner ends the anchors are secured, said support formed with holes to receive said fastening elements, and a spacing sleeve on each fastening element for embedment in the monolithic member near its face portion for the purpose specified.



1,807,406. REFILLABLE ELECTRIC FUSE. JOHN H. HICKEY, San Francisco, Calif., assignor to Hickey Fuse & Manufacturing Company, San Francisco, Calif., a Corporation of California. Filed Dec. 19, 1928. Serial No. 327,119. 10 Claims. (Cl. 200—132.)

1. The combination with a casing and terminal member of an electric fuse, of a plate adapted to seat upon an end of the casing and slotted to receive the terminal member; a clamping member mounted adjacent the outer face of the plate and provided with inclined surfaces movable to engage notches formed in the terminal member to clamp the plate and terminal member together; and means for centering the clamping member relative to the plate and terminal member.

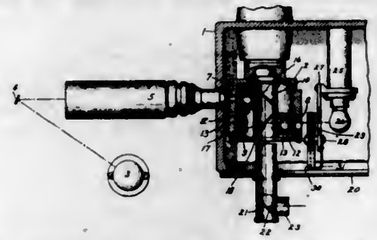
1,807,407. PAPER FLOWERPOT. WILLIAM J. HOHNHORST, Auchorville, Mich. Filed Aug. 5, 1927. Serial No. 210,808. 2 Claims. (Cl. 47—34.)

1. In combination with an earthen flower pot provided at its bottom with a drainage hole; a paper container therefor consisting of a smooth uncreased and undivided annular paper shell having a drainage hole at the bottom of the shell registering with the drainage hole of the earthen flower pot, said paper shell near its upper edge having an outwardly projecting horizontal flange with an upwardly directed outer rim complementary to the shape of the earthen pot and terminating in an outwardly rolled beaded reinforcing edge, substantially flush with the upper edge of said earthen flower pot, said beaded reinforcing edge being adapted to guide the entry of the earthen pot into the container.



1,807,408. FURNACE CONSTRUCTION. LOUIS H. HOSBEIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to M. H. Detrick Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 5, 1923. Serial No. 649,472. 19 Claims. (Cl. 110—99.)

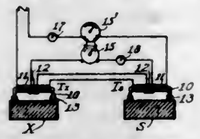
1,807,409. SOUND RECORDING APPARATUS. CHARLES A. HOXIE, Alplaus, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed June 25, 1929. Serial No. 373,664. 5 Claims. (Cl. 88—23.)

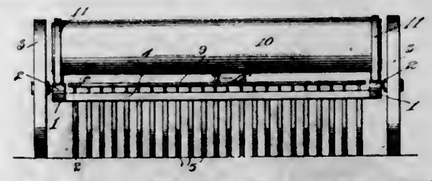
1. Sound recording apparatus comprising a drum adapted to support a sensitive film, a recording lamp arranged to direct a light beam on said film, said drum having an opening therein through which said beam may pass, a tubular member within the drum having an observation opening, means for reflecting the light of said beam after passing through said opening through said



tubular member, a reference lamp, and means in said tubular member for restricting the light observed from one of said lamps to a circular area and the light observed from the other lamp to a ring surrounding said circular area.

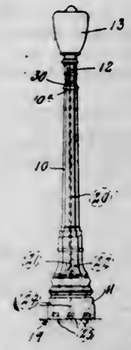
1,807,410. SUPPORTING ELEMENT FOR ELECTRICAL DEVICES. FRANK H. HUBBARD, Wauwatosa, Wis., assignor to Cutler-Hammer, Inc., Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 7, 1929. Serial No. 384,157. 7 Claims. (Cl. 247—21.)

1. The combination with an electrical device to be supported in a wall outlet box, of supporting means for said device attached thereto and having projecting lugs to be attached to the outlet box and projecting wall engaging parts to position said device relative to the wall, said lugs and wall engaging parts being coordinated to occupy the same plane and said lugs being bendable out of the plane of said parts to approach the outlet box.



1,807,411. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR TESTING MAGNETIZABLE OBJECTS. ELMER S. IMES, Jersey City, N. J., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Magnetic Analysis Corporation, Long Island City, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 4, 1925. Serial No. 34,903. 27 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)

1. A method of determining the depth of the surface portion of an object having body and surface portions that differ as to certain physical characteristics, which consists in generating a varying magnetic field of such values that the main body of magnetic flux will penetrate a standard to a pre-determined depth, subjecting the surface portion of the object to said flux, and observing the resultant modification of said field.



1,807,412. ROAD TREATING APPARATUS. HENRY A. INGALLS, Bakersfield, Calif. Filed Oct. 30, 1928. Serial No. 315,959. 2 Claims. (Cl. 94—39.)

1. Road surface treating equipment comprising a wheeled vehicle having a road traversing member, a plurality of scarifying bars depending substantially vertically therefrom in laterally spaced relation terminating at their lower ends in road way grooving broad edged teeth, a reservoir for holding road treating fluid mounted on said vehicles, and a conduit fixed to each of said bars at its rear face and depending therewith to a lower terminal discharge point above its lower toothed end, the upper end of each conduit having communication connection with said reservoir.

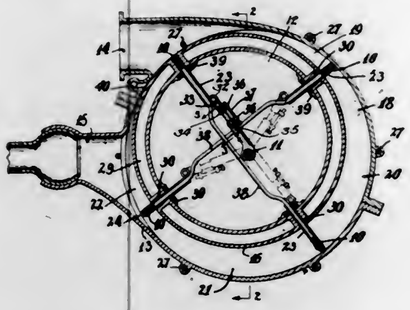
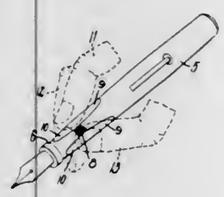
1,807,413. LAMP POST. GEORGE G. KING, Sheffield, Ala., assignor to King Company, Sheffield, Ala., a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Oct. 22, 1928. Serial No. 314,184. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—84.)



2. In a lamp construction, the combination of a hollow ornamental metallic standard having an enlarged base and an upwardly flanged upper end, a tubular metallic safety member arranged coaxially within said standard and having its lower end terminating short of said base and having its upper end externally threaded and extending above the flanged upper end of said standard, a plurality of resilient steel rods secured to the lower end of said safety member and divergent therefrom, the lower ends of said rods terminating in horizontally disposed perforate feet arranged on a horizontal plane with the lower edge of said base, said feet being spaced from the wall of said base and said rods forming a resilient support for said safety member, a foundation, anchoring bolts embedded in the foundation and projecting upwardly therefrom through said perforate feet, nuts screw-threaded on the upper ends of said bolts and holding said perforate feet anchored, a coupling resting on the upper end of said standard and provided with a central internally threaded opening for engaging the threaded end of said safety member, said coupling having its lower end provided with an annular flange enclosing the flange of said standard, a lamp fixture arranged on the upper end of said coupling, and means for detachably securing said fixture to said coupling independently of said safety member and said standard.

1,807,414. ROTARY ENGINE. JOSEPH KUHAJDA, Mapeth, N. Y. Filed Nov. 20, 1929. Serial No. 408,474. 2 Claims. (Cl. 121—88.)



2. In a device of the class described, a casing formed with a circular hollow, an axle coinciding with the axis of the circular hollow and rotatively mounted within said casing, radial arms consisting of telescopic sections mounted on said axle, piston blades pivotally connected to the radial arms and engaging against said casing, and means for holding the telescopic sections of the said radial arms in various longitudinal positions for constituting an adjustment of the piston blades comprising lugs projecting from each of the sections of the radial arms, and a screw having right and left hand threads threadedly engaged through the said lugs so that upon rotation of the sections of the radial arms move together or apart.

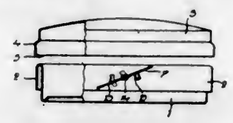
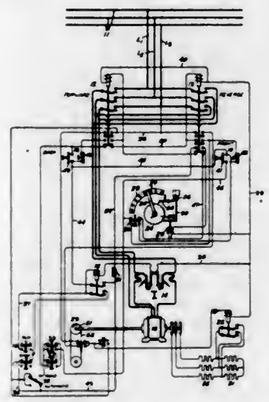
1,807,415. FOUNTAIN PEN. DAVID J. LA FRANCE, Cambridge, Mass. Filed May 15, 1930. Serial No. 452,648. 4 Claims. (Cl. 120—42.)



1. A fountain pen having, in combination, a barrel provided on its periphery with flattened portions adjacent its forward end and screw-threaded portions intermediate said flattened portions.

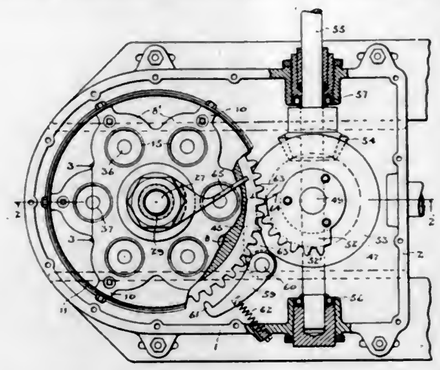
1,807,416. LOCOMOTIVE BOILER. BERT E. LARSON, Park Ridge, Ill., assignor to Locomotive Firebox Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 17, 1929. Serial No. 386,659. 5 Claims. (Cl. 122—68.)



1. A locomotive boiler embodying therein, a boiler shell sheet forming a part of the water space of the boiler, a member secured to said sheet and coacting therewith to form a well, a water circulating element having a tubular end extending through said sheet into said well, a collar fixed on said tubular end, means carried by said sheet and providing an annular shoulder in said well and radially spaced from said tubular end, a packing means surrounding said collar with a normal contracting action thereon and engaged against said shoulder and means disposed between said packing and said member for urging the packing against said shoulder.

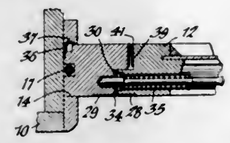
1,807,417. CONTAINER. LEOPOLD LECHNER, Mahr-Ostrau, Czechoslovakia. Filed May 10, 1929, Serial No. 361,931, and in Czechoslovakia May 5, 1928. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—43.)

The combination of a container and a top therefor, said container having an annular depending lip spaced therefrom, said lip having a plurality of bearing slots formed therein, a lid or top opener provided with a plurality of tongues operable in said slots to pivot said opener and to limit the movement thereof, and a spring tensioning member engageable with said tongues to tension the movement of said opener.



1,807,418. SYSTEM OF MOTOR CONTROL. CHARLES F. LEE, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 24, 1929. Serial No. 334,824. 3 Claims. (Cl. 172—240.)

3. A motor control system comprising in combination means including a pair of switches responsive to limited operation of the motor in opposite directions respectively, means including a pair of contactors respectively under the control of said switches for repeatedly reversing the direction of rotation of the motor, a notching relay, provided with a movable member, means including connections controlled by the operations of one of said contactors for actuating said relay to advance said movable member a number of steps proportional to the number of operations of said contactor, and means responsive to a predetermined number of steps of said movable member for rendering said reversing means ineffective after a predetermined number of reversals of the motor.



1,807,419. BILLET CASTING MACHINE. JOHN WYCLIFFE LEIGHTON, Port Huron, Mich. Filed Oct. 24, 1929. Serial No. 402,139. 20 Claims. (Cl. 22—77.)

4. A billet casting machine, comprising a mould, a plunger reciprocable in said mould and forming the bottom thereof, a passage encircling the mould, a passage extending transversely through said plunger, and a passage leading from the aforesaid passage and communicating with the passage in the plunger and conducting the fluid lubricant in a continuous flow therethrough.

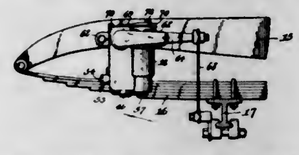
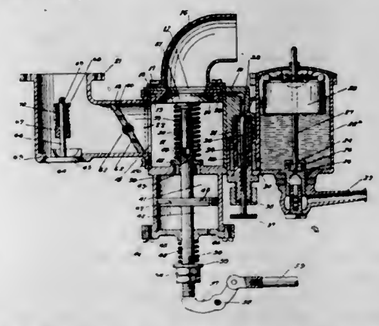
1,807,420. WINDOW. GEORGE A. LUNZ and JOHN L. FEYL, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Sept. 17, 1928. Serial No. 306,480. 7 Claims. (Cl. 20—49.)



1. A window of the character described, comprising a frame, stiles guided for vertical movement in the opposite sides of said frame, a sash pivotally connected at its lower end to said stiles, coupling elements applied to the adjoining faces of the sash and the stiles and having parts arranged to interfit with each other in the normal closed position of the sash, said parts having alining openings therein, and a locking bolt applied to the sash and arranged to engage said openings for holding the sash in such position.

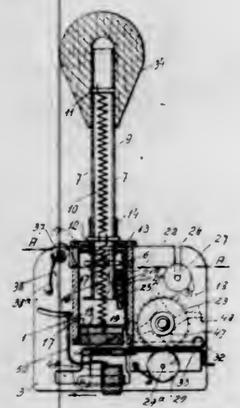
1,807,421. GREASE GUN OR THE LIKE. BURTON J. MAHONEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Hoffmann High Pressure Equipment Company, a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Sept. 19, 1928. Serial No. 306,888. 2 Claims. (Cl. 221—47.3.)



1. In a device of the character described, a barrel containing a chamber for fluids and a second chamber, a piston in said second chamber, a tube extending from a point within the second chamber through the other chamber, a conduit connected to said tube, a plunger connected to said piston and fitting slidably into said tube, a spring to retract the piston and plunger, said tube having a port therein at a point that is beyond the free end of the plunger a distance less than the stroke of the plunger when the latter is retracted, a handle on said device, said handle having a passage for compressed air, a manual valve in said passage, there being branch passages leading from the valve into the second chamber behind the piston and into the chamber for fluids, and an outwardly seated check valve in the passage leading to the chamber for fluids.

1,807,422. SHOCK ABSORBER. ADOLPH W. F. MANZEL, Buffalo, N. Y., assignor to Manzel Bros. Co., Buffalo, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 19, 1927. Serial No. 169,535. 12 Claims. (Cl. 267—8.)

11. A shock absorber, comprising a casing having an oil-containing chamber, a cylinder, and a wall separating said chamber from said cylinder and provided with an extension projecting into said oil-containing chamber and serving as a control chamber for controlling the flow of fluid from and to said oil-containing chamber, said control chamber having a longitudinal passage therethrough reduced in diameter along its upper portion and threaded at its lower portion, a valve seat threaded into said threaded lower portion, a transverse passage connecting the larger portion of said longitudinal passage with said cylinder, a relief valve in the smaller portion of said longitudinal passage, a valve seated against said valve seat, a spring tending to hold said valve against said valve seat, and means connecting the larger portion of said longitudinal passage with said oil-containing chamber including a sleeve-like member extending into said oil-containing chamber and opening with one end into said longitudinal passage, said sleeve-like member having slots at diametrically opposite points extending inwardly from the outer end thereof, and an adjustable valve extending from the exterior of said casing into said sleeve-like member and uncovering definitely determined portions of said slots at the inner end thereof to provide restricted oil passages through said sleeve-like member.



1,807,423. CARBURETOR. JULIUS J. MATSON, Glenwood, Ill. Filed May 4, 1929. Serial No. 360,586. 4 Claims. (Cl. 261—23.)

3. In a carburetor including a mixing chamber, an air inlet and a mixture outlet, a member located at the juncture of the air inlet with the mixing chamber and formed with a valve seat provided with an annular passage and a plurality of radial ports, means for conducting fuel to said annular passage, a valve normally closing said seat and having a stem, a cylinder beneath the mixing chamber having ports communicating therewith, a stem slidable through the cylinder and carrying a piston located therein, said second named stem slidably receiving said first named stem, a valve surrounding the second named stem and normally closing the ports in the top of the cylinder, and spring means normally holding both of said valves seated.

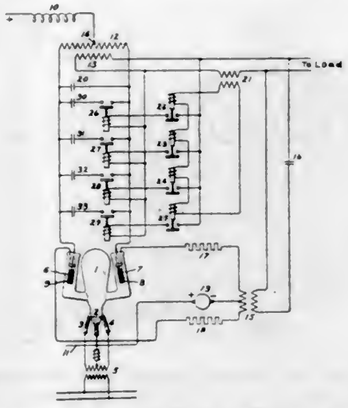
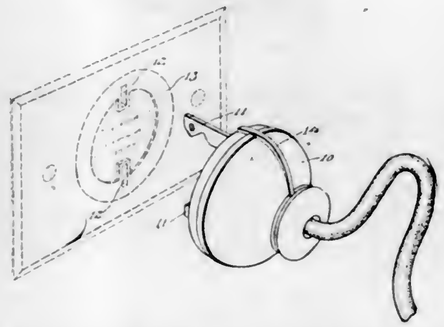
1,807,424. APPARATUS FOR AFFIXING STAMPS, LABELS, AND THE LIKE. OTTO MATZKA, Vienna, Austria, assignor to the Firm "Electa" Apparatenbau-Gesellschaft m. b. H., Vienna, Austria. Filed July 30, 1929, Serial No. 382,269, and in Austria Aug. 7, 1928. 9 Claims. (Cl. 216—25.)

1. An apparatus for affixing stamps, labels or the like, comprising a vertically movable press-plate adapted to press the object to be affixed against a support, a vertically reciprocating pressure member adapted to move said press-plate downward, feeding means for unwinding the objects to be affixed from a storage strip and for advancing them portion by portion into the path of the said press-plate, a vertically movable knife suspended by means of tension springs and adapted to cut off the said advanced object from its storage strip, a supporting ledge on said knife, and a pawl secured to the said pressure member and adapted to engage the said supporting ledge during the descent of the pressure member to but such an extent as to permit the said knife after having cut off the object to be affixed from the strip to return to its initial position while the press-plate is descending and moving the cut-off object towards the support.



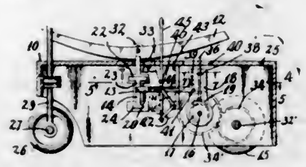
1,807,425. WINDOW SCREEN CONSTRUCTION. CHARLES MCCALMON, Manitowoc, Wis. Filed Nov. 8, 1928. Serial No. 317,985. 1 Claim. (Cl. 156—14.)



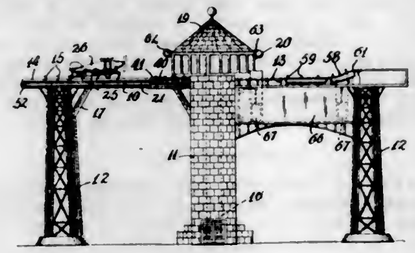
In combination with a sash having a longitudinal groove and a transverse bore communicating with the groove, a casing attached to one side of the sash and a spring-pressed bolt arranged within the casing with one end projecting through the bore and traversing the groove.

1,807,426. SYSTEM OF DISTRIBUTION. ALBERT H. MITTAG, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Jan. 24, 1925. Serial No. 4,612. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—363.)

1. The combination in a system of distribution of a source of direct current, a primary winding connected to said source through a plurality of electric valves, a secondary winding inductively associated with said primary winding, a plurality of capacity units adapted to be connected to one of said windings, a load circuit supplied by said secondary winding, and means responsive to an electrical condition in the load circuit for varying the capacity connected to one of said windings.

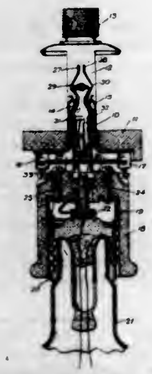


1,807,427. ATTACHMENT PLUG. ALBERT V. MOBLARD, New York, N. Y. Filed May 10, 1928. Serial No. 276,702. 1 Claim. (Cl. 173—361.)



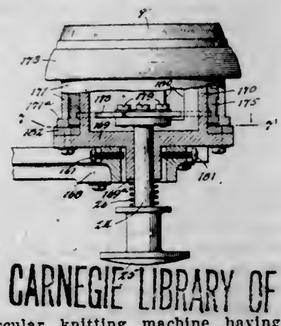
An attachment plug including a body having contact fingers projecting therefrom and longitudinally extending ribs formed on diametrically opposite sides of the body disposed in alignment with the contact fingers to constitute indicating means for facilitating the registry of the contact fingers with the receiving openings in the plug socket.

1,807,428. ROCKING-MOVING VEHICLE TOY. PETER MUEHLFELD and HERMANN DEUBEL, New York, N. Y. Filed May 21, 1930. Serial No. 454,236. 7 Claims. (Cl. 208—42.)



1. A rocking moving vehicle toy, comprising a chassis, a rocker having rocker rails resting on said chassis, arms with I shaped slots depending from said rails for swaying upon operation of the rocker, a gear system connected with the wheels of said chassis and terminating in a shaft carrying a ratchet wheel, a pawl arm free on said shaft, a two-way pawl on said pawl arm for engaging said ratchet wheel, means for causing engagement of the pawl one way or the other for transmitting rotation in one or the other directions to the chassis wheels, a link pivotally mounted on said pawl arm and carrying a pin engaging in said I slot, and manually controlled means for supporting the link so that the pin engages in the horizontal top of the I slot or various positions on the intermediate vertical portion or in the horizontal bottom of the I slot.

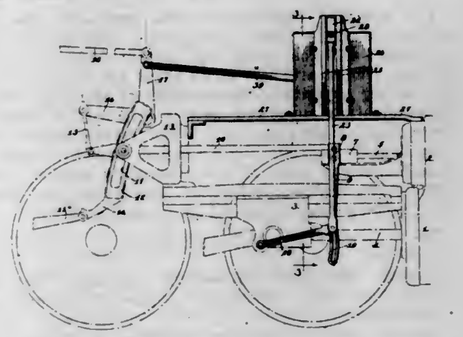
1,807,429. AEROPLANE AIR STATION. JOSEPH OLASZY, Linden, N. J., assignor of one-third to Barnett Wiseman, New York, N. Y., and one-third to Burnett Siman, Elizabeth, N. J. Filed Aug. 26, 1930. Serial No. 477,859. 10 Claims. (Cl. 244—2.)



1. In aeroplane air station, comprising a landing bridge supported high up in the air on towers and connected with a starting bridge and comprising a platform movably supported, a plurality of hooks pivoted on said platform, means for holding said hooks in various pivoted positions, a decelerating means for said platform upon forward motion, and means for returning said platform back to its rear position.

1,807,430. CUTOUT FOR SERIES INCANDESCENT STREET LIGHTING CIRCUITS AND THE LIKE. JOSEPH W. OWENS, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Mar. 26, 1930. Serial No. 439,199. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—87.)

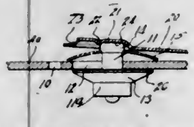
1. A unitary cutout structure for use with a lamp socket having a pair of contact arms for bridging the socket terminals, comprising a frame adapted to fit between the contact arms and hold them separated, opposite sides of said frame being insulated from each other, an electromagnet carried by the frame and having its winding connected to opposite sides of the frame, and an armature carried by the frame and adapted to be moved to a position wherein it effects the electrical connection of the two sides of the frame to each other when the electromagnet is energized.



1,807,431. TRANSFER RING FOR CIRCULAR KNITTING MACHINES. ALBERT E. PAGE, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Scott & Williams, Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Original application filed May 8, 1929, Serial No. 361,418. Divided and this application filed Mar. 5, 1930. Serial No. 433,378. 6 Claims. (Cl. 66—148.)

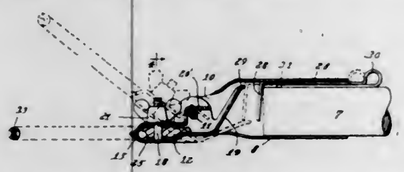
CARNEGIE LIBRARY OF ATLANTA

1. A circular knitting machine having a revoluble needle cylinder, stitch transfer mechanism mounted on said machine and adapted to be swung into and out of operative relation with said needle cylinder, said transfer mechanism comprising a non-revoluble pilot, a plurality of keys on said pilot, a revoluble transfer ring on said pilot having keyways complemental to said keys, in combination with means permitting movement of said transfer ring away from said pilot sufficiently to free the keyways from said keys and permit rotation of the transfer ring.



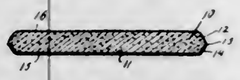
1,807,432. VALVE GEAR. HARRY F. PEARSON, Santa Rita, N. Mex. Filed May 21, 1927. Serial No. 193,228. 2 Claims. (Cl. 121—163.)

1. In a valve gear, the combination with a valve rod, a piston rod, a cross head reciprocated thereby, a depending lever extending at an angle to said valve and piston rods and operatively connected to the valve rod at a point adjacent to its upper end, and a radius rod connected to said end of the lever and movable to operate said valve rod, of an arcuately slotted bearing at the lower end of said lever, a link pivotally supported from the cross head for swinging movement of its end in an arc co-incident with that of said arcuate lever slot, a bar mounted for sliding movement in a direction longitudinally of said arcuate slot, a bearing member slidably seating in said



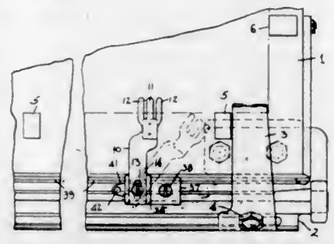
arcuate slot and pivotally interconnecting the swinging end of said link and the lower end of said bar, said member providing a movable fulcrum point for said lever, manually operable connections effective to move said radius rod, determinately intergeared mechanism operatively connected to the other end of said bar and operative to reciprocate the upper end of bar determinately to move said bearing member and fulcrum point, and means for operating said mechanism co-incidently with and through movement of said manually operable connections.

1,807,433. FISHING REEL. CHARLES T. PFLUEGER, Akron, Ohio, assignor to The Enterprise Manufacturing Company, Akron, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Original application filed June 26, 1924, Serial No. 722,497, now Patent No. 1,583,764. Divided and this application filed Apr. 14, 1926. Serial No. 101,964. 4 Claims. (Cl. 242—84.5.)



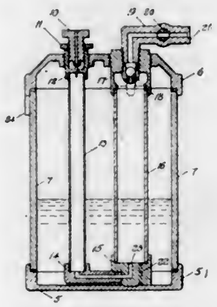
1. In a fishing reel, a frame structure, spool operating and controlling mechanism therein, two operating members cooperating with said mechanism, one being slidably and the other rotatably mounted upon said frame structure, and a single means cooperating with both of said operating members and secured to one thereof for maintaining them in adjusted position.

1,807,434. MOP AND BRUSH HOLDER. MATTHIAS REDLINGER, Freeport, Ill. Filed Aug. 15, 1929. Serial No. 386,132. 2 Claims. (Cl. 15—147.)



1. A cleaning implement of the character described having a handle, a cleaning tool, and a connector arranged to support said tool upon said handle comprising a supporting member attached at its upper end to said handle and having oppositely disposed ears at its lower end, a holder pivotally supported between said ears to move between limiting positions, said holder being provided with a backwardly and laterally extending tongue arranged to engage opposing sides of said supporting member to determine the limiting position of said holder, and means for attaching said cleaning tool to said holder.

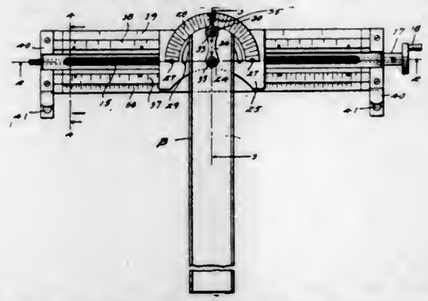
1,807,435. ROOFING ELEMENT. THOMAS ROBINSON, New York, N. Y., assignor to Lancaster Asphalt, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 14, 1929. Serial No. 370,974. 8 Claims. (Cl. 108—8.)



1. A roofing element which comprises a body of hardened plastic material softening under the action of heat and a sheet of fibrous material covering one face only of the body, the sheet having its edges turned toward the body to provide a concavity in which the body lies, said body having an exposed portion projecting beyond the concavity of the sheet.

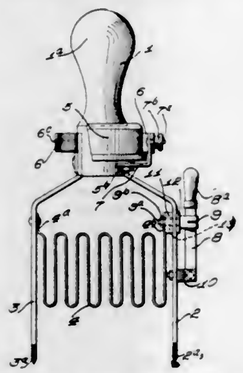
1,807,436. SHEET REGISTERING DEVICE. CHARLES F. ROOT, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Chandler & Price Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 17, 1928. Serial No. 262,503. 5 Claims. (Cl. 101—414.)

1. The combination with a platen having an end stop and a side stop thereon, of a gripper bar oscillatorily mounted on the lower edge of said platen, a sheet receiving and carrying device, a support to which said device is pivotally attached, means for regulably securing said support along the lower edge of the platen, and means for oscillating the sheet receiving and carrying device, said means being unconnected to said gripper bar but being actuated at least in part thereby.



1,807,437. LUBRICATOR FOR INTERNAL COMBUSTION ENGINES. STANLEY D. ROSS and CHARLES F. EDWARDS, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Jan. 18, 1928. Serial No. 247,735. 1 Claim. (Cl. 261—121.)

In a lubricator of the character described, a container for oil, a U-tube within said container, one end of which is in communication with the atmosphere through a restricted passage while the other end of said U-tube is in communication with the interior of said container above the oil level, an outlet from the interior of said container above the oil level adapted for connection with the intake manifold of an engine, and means at the bottom of said U-tube to admit oil into that leg thereof which has its end in communication with the interior of said container, that leg of the U-tube which communicates with the interior of the container being of greater cross-section than the other leg, the passage from one leg to the other being of less cross sectional area than the cross sectional area of either leg.



1,807,438. T-SQUARE WITH SLIDING PIVOTED BLADE. WILLIAM ROSS, Anaconda, Mont. Filed Dec. 29, 1928. Serial No. 329,130. 2 Claims. (Cl. 33—101.)

1. A drafting instrument of the T-square type comprising a hollow head provided in its upper face with a longitudinally extending groove, the bottom wall of the groove being provided with a longitudinally extending slot, a screw-threaded shaft rotatably mounted within and extending longitudinally of the head, a nut mounted upon the shaft to travel therealong, a slide mounted within the groove and connected to the nut through the slot, the slide resting upon the bottom wall of the groove and contacting with the side walls thereof, a plate secured to the slide to move therewith, and a blade carried by said nut and rotatably adjustable relatively to the plate.

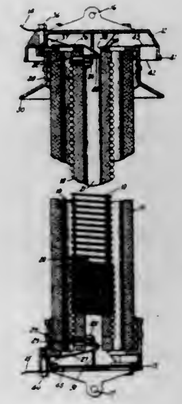
1,807,439. PROD TYPE BATTERY CELL TESTER. WILLIAM D. RYAN, San Diego, Calif. Filed Nov. 30, 1928. Serial No. 322,818. 4 Claims. (Cl. 175—183.)



1. In a device of the class described, a pair of prongs, a handle for supporting said prongs at their upper ends, a relatively flexible resistor connected at its one end to one of said prongs and at its other end to a clip secured to and insulated from said second prong, and a knife switch pivotally secured at its one end to said second prong and adapted to engage said clip.

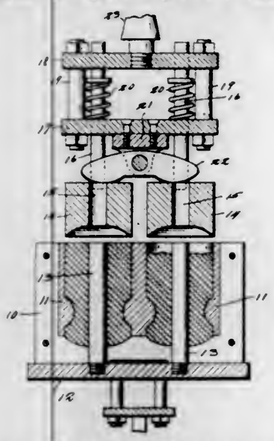
1,807,440. ELASTIC MESH BRACELET. CARL SCHRAYSSHUEN, Providence, and KARL FASSNACHT, Edgewood, R. I., assignors to Speidel Chain Co., Providence, R. I., a Firm composed of Frederic Speidel and Eugen Speidel, Pforzheim, Germany. Filed July 26, 1929. Serial No. 381,378. 2 Claims. (Cl. 63—3.)

1. An elastic bracelet, band or the like, comprising a strip of sheet mesh having interwoven helices, a pair of spaced elastic members extending through the sheet of mesh between the opposite surfaces of the sheet, and means for securing the ends of the elastic members to the opposite ends of the bracelet, band, or the like to contract the helices of the mesh, the coils of said helices being reduced in pitch between said elastic members to closely dispose them together.

1,807,441. RESISTOR. OTTO R. SCHURIG, Schenectady, N. Y., assignor to General Electric Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 28, 1928. Serial No. 328,970. 10 Claims. (Cl. 201—71.)

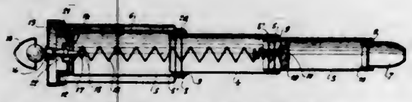
1. A high voltage current regulating device including an air-cooled resistor, and a tubular ventilating enclosure of insulating material surrounding the resistor and having at one end thereof a metallic collar electrically connected to one end of resistor and extending along the outside of the enclosure with an outwardly flaring portion disposed intermediate the ends of the resistor for shielding the resistor from corona.

1,807,442. ADVERTISING SIGN. SAMUEL SCHWARTZ, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed May 13, 1930. Serial No. 452,024. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—125.)



A paper advertising sign comprising a sheet flat on both faces and having comparatively small openings adjacent its periphery and having secured to one face of the sign stickers registering with the openings but materially larger than the openings, said stickers having adhesive on both surfaces thereof, whereby the sticker adheres to the sign panel about the opening and is available through the opening when mounting one face of the sign, the adhesive at the back of the sticker being available for mounting the other face of the sign.

1,807,443. PRESSURE EQUALIZING MECHANISM FOR MULTIPLE DIES. WILLIAM E. SENN, deceased, Sandusky, Ohio, by Vesta M. Senn, administratrix, Sandusky, Ohio, assignor to The Universal Clay Products Co., Sandusky, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 22, 1928. Serial No. 321,201. 6 Claims. (Cl. 25—83.)



1. A multiple molding die comprising a mold having a pair of dies therein, a plunger having a pair of coacting

dies carried thereon for vertical movement independent of the plunger, and an equalizer pivotally supported at its middle upon the plunger and bearing at its ends against the first named dies whereby when one of the dies rises the other die will be relatively forced downward.

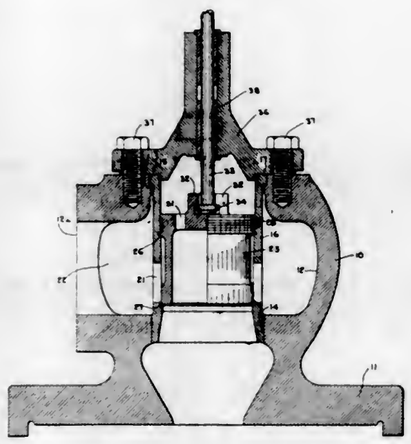
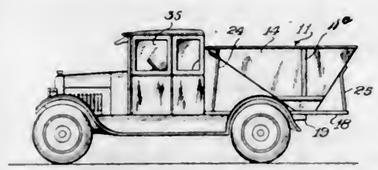
1,807,444. COLLAPSIBLE HOUSING FOR WRITING INSTRUMENTS. AARON SHATKIN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Oct. 1, 1929. Serial No. 396,427. 4 Claims. (Cl. 120—9.)

1. In a collapsible housing for writing instruments, a device adapted to lock housing when same is collapsed, comprising a rotatably mounted pronged key associated with one end section of the housing, and a spring coil associated with the other end section of the housing; said pronged key and spring coil being adapted to engage with one another when housing is collapsed.



1,807,445. SAFETY BANK CHECK. JAMES W. SHAW, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 6, 1928. Serial No. 267,895. 2 Claims. (Cl. 283—9.)

1. A safety bank check blank having its face inscribed with a plurality of numbers of varying numbers of digits, said numbers being arranged in progressively increasing denominations with their initial digits in columnar form and succeeding digits in corresponding arrangement, said blank directly behind the last digit of each column being formed with a field of contrasting color to the field occupied by said numbers, and an indicator permanently applied to the blank on its face directly in front of the initial digit column to indicate an amount above which the check shall not be negotiable.



1,807,446. VALVE. JUSTIN G. SMEBY, Moores, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Apr. 19, 1927. Serial No. 184,966. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—75.)

In a device for controlling the flow of fluid, the combination of a housing provided with a chamber having inlet and outlet passages; and means for controlling communication between the chamber and the outlet passage including a cylindrical opening adjacent to the chamber and at the inlet end of the outlet passage, a co-axial cylindrical opening of larger diameter than the first opening provided in the wall of said chamber opposite to the first opening, a cylindrical bushing having at its inner end a cylindrical outer surface arranged to fit said first-named opening with a driving fit, and having at its outer end a cylindrical enlargement arranged to fit said larger opening with a driving fit, said bushing having a cylindrical bore, said inlet passage being in communication with the chamber and the latter communicating with the outlet passage by ports provided in the bushing wall, a balanced valve fitting the bore of said bushing and arranged to cover and to uncover said ports, and means for closing the outer end of the bushing and provided with means for actuating said valve.

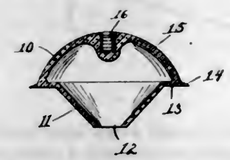
1. A gravel spreader including a tank having a restricted open bottom; means for supporting the ends of the tank on a motor truck chassis; side plates for supporting the sides of the tank on the truck chassis; a slide bottom valve plate operating beneath said side plates and closing said bottom of the tank; means for cooperation with said side plates in supporting and guiding said slide bottom valve plate; an operating rod for said valve plate pivotally connected thereto; a rock shaft; a lateral arm extended from said rock shaft and pivoted to said operating rod to actuate the latter; means for operating said rock shaft; and means connected with said arm and the motor truck chassis to resiliently return the said arm, the rock shaft and the operating rod to normal position to close said valve plate.

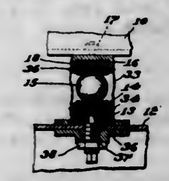
1,807,448. FISH CUTTING MACHINE. ERIK A. SODERBERG, Alameda, Calif., assignor of one-half to George Gundersen, Alameda, Calif. Filed Feb. 13, 1929. Serial No. 339,661. 2 Claims. (Cl. 17—4.)



1. In a fish cutting device, a conveyor mechanism having a plurality of blocks positioned thereon and spaced one from another, certain of said blocks being spaced a greater distance than the remainder of said blocks and a rotary knife positioned above said conveyor and rotating about an axis parallel to the conveyor, the rotation of said knife and the movement of said conveyor being timed so that said knife will pass between said blocks on each revolution.

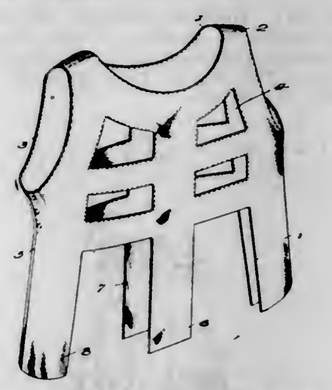
1,807,449. BAG. DANIEL E. SPEICHER, Urbana, Ind. Filed Jan. 23, 1929. Serial No. 334,483. 1 Claim. (Cl. 150—2.)

A harvester bag comprising in combination, a flexible body having an open top providing the mouth of the bag, a rearwardly projecting means secured to the outer face of the rear portion of said body and a bag mouth distending frame portion for permanently distending the mouth of the bag, said frame portion terminating in a bag offsetting member connected to said rearwardly projecting means.



1,807,450. TANK FLOAT STOPPER. FREDERICK W. STARKEY, Logan, Pa. Filed Apr. 25, 1928. Serial No. 272,667. 1 Claim. (Cl. 4—57.)

A tank float stopper comprising a cylindrical tapered guide, an outwardly projecting rim having its outer circumference beveled to produce a feathered edge, and a dome above the rim and having connection with said rim between the outer circumference of said rim and the point of connection with said rim with the guide the complete device being buoyant.



1,807,451. ANTIFRICTION BEARING. ALBERT H. STEBBINS, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 24, 1929. Serial No. 365,749. 5 Claims. (Cl. 308—6.)

1. In combination with a supporting casing, a frame, and antifriction means for supporting the frame upon the casing for vibratory movement, comprising bearing cups, antifriction annular members mounted in the cups for rolling movement to support said frame, and a floor of non-metallic compressible material mounted in a cup of each bearing to form a yielding shock absorbing bearing seat for the annular member.

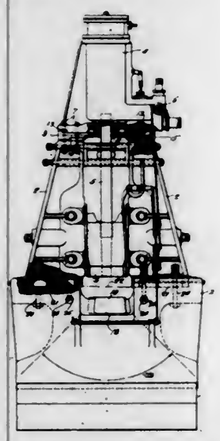
1,807,452. CHILD'S CLOTHES SUPPORTER. ELIZABETH MAY SWARTZ, Norfolk, Va. Filed June 2, 1930. Serial No. 458,991. 1 Claim. (Cl. 241—12.)

A supporter of the character described comprising a body portion formed of a single piece blank of material cut to form a neck band and arm holes, the adjacent side edges of the piece being connected beneath the arm holes to form a continuous body encircling portion, the front and back parts of the body portion having a plurality of ventilating openings therein, and the lower edge of said body portion being cut back to a point approximately midway to the lowermost line of the arm holes at spaced intervals to form depending tabs at the front, back and opposite sides.

1,807,453. ROLLING MILL PIERCING POINT, PLUG AND GUIDE, AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. HOMER F. TIELKE, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 23, 1929. Serial No. 387,910. 7 Claims. (Cl. 148—31.)



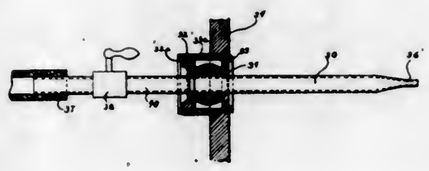
1. A steel alloy containing between about 17% and about 18% of chromium, about 3% of cobalt and between about

.4% and 1.5% of nickel, and having a structure characteristic of such an alloy which has been heated in cast form to about 2250° F. for about five minutes, cooled slowly, reheated to between about 1400° F. and about 1800° F., quenched and reheated at about 1200° F. for several hours.

1,807,454. METHOD OF USING ROLLING MILL PIERCING POINTS. HOMER F. TIELKE, Cleveland, Ohio. Filed Aug. 23, 1929. Serial No. 388,043. 4 Claims. (Cl. 80—62.)

3. The method of using a point in a rolling mill, which includes the steps of preheating the point to a temperature between 900° F. and about 1200° F., placing said point in the pass of a rolling mill and using the thus heated point for several passes until the surface thereof is heated well about 1200° F., and then cooling the point in a slow cooling medium, such as lime, to a temperature below about 1200° F.

1,807,455. FORGING HAMMER. HOWARD TERHUNE, Chambersburg, Pa., assignor to Chambersburg Engineering Company, Chambersburg, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Dec. 23, 1926. Serial No. 156,684. 3 Claims. (Cl. 78—36.)

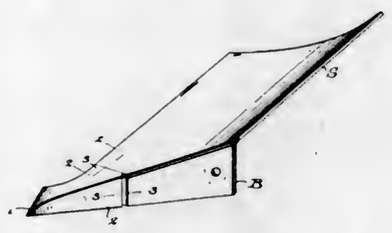


1. An interlocking tie plate for the frames and headpiece of forging hammers, said plate having on its under side and at each end a transverse shoulder adapted for interlocking engagement with oppositely arranged shoulders on the frame for preventing relative movements of the frame and plate in both directions longitudinally of the plate, and having intermediate the side edges thereof depending lugs adapted for cooperative engagement with correspondingly formed recesses in the frame to prevent relative parallel lateral movement in both directions of the tie plate and the frame, said tie plate also having on its upper side shoulders extending both longitudinally and laterally for cooperative engagement with opposed shoulders on the head-piece to prevent relative movement of the head-piece and tie plate laterally and longitudinally of the plate in both directions.

1,807,456. FIRE EXTINGUISHING COMPOSITION. WALTER LIBBY WEDGER, Belmont, and JOHN WILEY EDMANDS, Newton Highlands, Mass., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Central Railway Signal Company, Inc., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Mar. 24, 1930. Serial No. 438,507. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—8.)

1. A fire extinguishing composition consisting of potassium perchlorate, sulphur, zinc, dust, and parts combined to simultaneously maintain combustion and generating a fire extinguishing gas, for the purpose set forth.

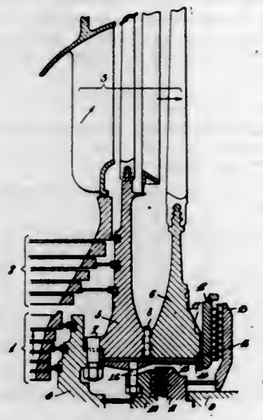
1,807,457. MEANS FOR CLEANING CONDENSERS AND THE LIKE. HENRY T. WEIS, Fairmont, W. Va. Filed Oct. 25, 1927. Serial No. 228,610. 3 Claims. (Cl. 257—43.)



1. In combination, a surface condenser having water tubes and water chambers at the ends of the tubes, a plurality of openings in the end of one of the water chambers, closure devices for the openings, said closure devices each comprising a water tight universal joint and a jet member extending through and permanently sealed in the movable member of the universal joint.

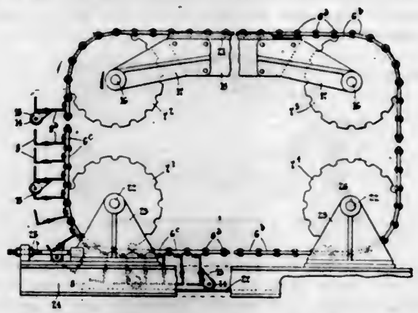
1,807,458. PROCESS OF HANDLING AND WRAPPING MARGARINE. MARTIN E. WELAND, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 11, 1929. Serial No. 362,450. 2 Claims. (Cl. 99—13.)

1. Process for handling and wrapping margarine consisting in shaping a predetermined amount of said food product for wrapping, subjecting said predetermined amount to a temperature sufficiently low to solidify the surfaces only thereof, and then wrapping said predetermined amount while the surfaces are still in their solidified state.



1,807,459. REPAIR NOSE FOR PLOWSHARES. WILLIAM ISIAH WHEELER, Scottville, Ill. Original application filed Aug. 31, 1929, Serial No. 389,832. Divided and this application filed Apr. 17, 1931. Serial No. 530,936. 2 Claims. (Cl. 97—125.)

1. An initially formed repair nose for plow shares comprising a landside portion and a share portion, each of said portions being adapted to be welded in abutting relation to the cut off forward end of a plow share.



1,807,460. PACKING FOR USE BETWEEN ROTARY AND STATIONARY MACHINE PARTS. OSCAR ANTON WIBERG, Finspong, Sweden. Filed July 14, 1930, Serial No. 467,929, and in Sweden Sept. 14, 1929. 3 Claims. (Cl. 286—10.)

1. In a machine containing a fluid to be prevented from leaking out of the machine, the combination of a rotary disk subjected to forces tending to deform same, a non-rotary disk, packing elements between said disks, means to hold said rotary disk in such relation to a part of the machine rotating synchronously with said disk but not subjected to a similar deformation as to afford both axial and radial play between said disk and said machine part, and means adapted to be put into operation to limit said play after a slight deformation of the rotary disk.

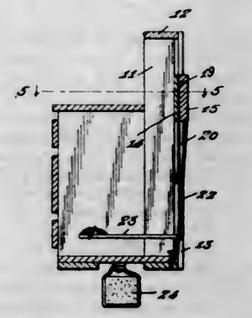
1,807,461. EXTRACTOR IN PRESSES. HENRY J. WISER, Ottawa, Ontario, Canada, assignor to International Fibreboard, Limited, Gatineau, Quebec, Canada. Filed June 2, 1930. Serial No. 459,000. 7 Claims. (Cl. 92—61.)

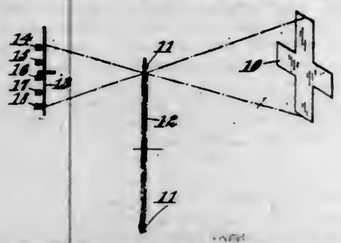


1. In combination with a press having upper and lower pulp-pressing dies, an extractor comprising a pair of endless flexible members arranged one on each of the opposite sides of said dies, and a plurality of transverse members connecting said flexible members and collectively forming a flexible pulp-receiving section extending along a portion of the length of said flexible members.

1,807,462. WIRE CONNECTER. LOUIS RAYMOND ZEHNDER, Louisville, Ky., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Louisville Frog, Switch & Signal Company, Louisville, Ky., a Corporation. Filed Nov. 18, 1927. Serial No. 234,191. 1 Claim. (Cl. 173—273.)

A wire connecter comprising a clamp formed of a separable rear and front part, said rear part consisting of a substantially rectangular body portion formed with a transverse slot and an outwardly directed flange at its top and bottom, said front part consisting of a substantially rectangular body portion provided with an opening having a threaded wall, said body portions opposing each other and with the body portion of the front part overlapped at its top and bottom by said flanges, the inner face of the body portion of the rear part being smooth throughout, the inner face of the body portion of said front part formed with spaced, parallel V-shaped grooves coacting with the smooth inner face of the rear part to provide for a three point contact when clamping wires to said parts, means extending through said slot and engaging with the wall of said opening for securing said parts together in clamping engagement with respect to said wires, and each of said parts provided at the lower portion of one side thereof with an internally grooved lateral offset portion having its outer periphery of semi-circular contour, said grooved offset portions coacting for clamping the insulated portion of one of said wires to said parts, said offset portions having the walls of the grooves thereof provided with means for entering the insulation clamped by said offset portions, and the lateral offset of said rear part having its bottom formed with an outwardly directed flange forming a continuation of the flange at the bottom of the body portion of said rear part.

1,807,463. TRAP. WILL ANDERSON, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Jan. 24, 1930. Serial No. 423,226. 1 Claim. (Cl. 43—79.)



A trap construction comprising a housing having standards arranged adjacent the entrance thereof and extended for appreciable distances thereabove, a bridge piece establishing connection at its ends between the uppermost projecting ends of the standards, flange members connected terminally thereof with the housing and bridge piece and defining guide passages throughout the major portions of their lengths by the spacing of the standards therefrom, a fall of sectional formation having inner and outer sections, the inner section having its extended portions slidably mounted within the passageways, a multiplicity of harpoons, the outer section of the fall maintaining the shanks of the harpoons against the adjacent portions of the longer section of the fall, and a trigger mechanism for the completed fall.

1,807,464. TELEVISION AND LIKE APPARATUS. JOHN LOGIE BAIRD, London, England, assignor to Television Limited, London, England, a British Company. Filed Oct. 7, 1929, Serial No. 397,984, and in Great Britain Oct. 10, 1928. 5 Claims. (Cl. 178—6.)

1. In electro-optical apparatus for use in the production of images, the combination with a plurality of electro-optical elements, of scanning means associated with said elements, said scanning means having a maximum displacement sufficient to cover an area which is a portion only of a given field of vision as regards any one electro-optical element, said elements being so disposed that each is appropriated to a different portion of the field of vision by said scanning means, and means for rendering inoperative all but one of said elements at a given time.

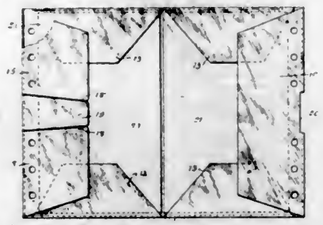
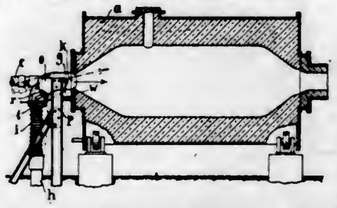
1,807,465. TELEVISION AND LIKE APPARATUS. JOHN LOGIE BAIRD, London, England, assignor to Television Limited, London, England, a British Company. Filed Oct. 7, 1929, Serial No. 397,985, and in Great Britain Oct. 12, 1928. 1 Claim. (Cl. 178—6.)



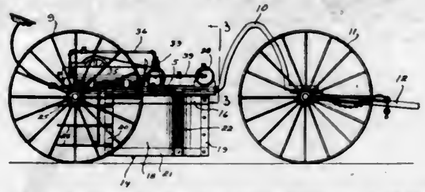
A scanning device for use in television apparatus comprising a source of light, a rotating screen interposed between said source of light and an object to be scanned, said screen having a plurality of series of spirally arranged apertures therein, the apertures in the different series being spaced radially of said screen whereby light rays will be passed from said source across different sections of the object simultaneously, and a plurality of light sensitive devices each positioned to receive light from one of said sections of the object only.

1,807,466. SLACK PULLER. THEODORE BIRKENMAIER, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to W. N. Matthews Corporation, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Oct. 24, 1929. Serial No. 402,064. 11 Claims. (Cl. 254—170.)



1. A slack puller comprising a worm gear and a coupled sprocket, said worm gear engaging with a worm, means for controlling the movement of said worm, a chain in continuous engagement with said sprocket, an eccentric, said sprocket and worm gear being rotatable on said eccentric and means for moving the eccentric so that said worm gear may be engaged or disengaged with said worm, a second sprocket engaging the chain, and a handle associated with said second sprocket for controlling movement of the chain when the worm and worm gear are not engaged.

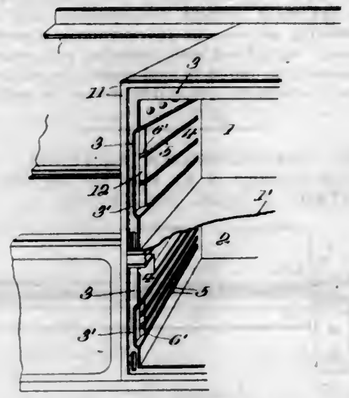
1,807,467. CARD HOLDER. JOHN ERIK BONANDER, Calumet, Ill. Filed June 13, 1929. Serial No. 370,703. 5 Claims. (Cl. 129—20.)



4. A holder of the class described, constructed of a foldable transparent blank to provide two body portions arranged side by side, end and side flaps on each of said body portions overlying the inside thereof, alined apertures in end flaps and related body portions for the purpose of retaining the body portions and flaps in folded relation.

1,807,468. PROCESS AND DEVICE FOR THE PRODUCTION OF IRON-ALLOYS FREE FROM GASES, ESPECIALLY OXYGEN. CARL BRACKELSBERG, Milspe, Germany. Filed Feb. 6, 1929, Serial No. 337,747, and in Germany Feb. 16, 1928. 4 Claims. (Cl. 75—45.)

1. Process for the production of iron alloys substantially free from gases and oxygen, which consists in first melting a charge of iron in a rotary furnace by means of the direct heat of the combustion gases from coal dust, then applying to the surface of the molten metal a thin unbroken layer of slag, and then continuing the heating of the liquid metal by transmission of heat thereto through the walls of the furnace while the metal is protected by the thin interposed layer of slag from direct contact with the furnace gases and the absorption of gases therefrom.



1,807,469. SPRAYING MACHINE. WILLIAM BREHMER, San Antonio, Tex. Filed May 6, 1930. Serial No. 450,259. 11 Claims. (Cl. 299—29.)

1. In a machine of the character described, a wheeled platform, a gathering chute depending from the platform for straddling a row of plants and having a furcated rear end, and spray nozzles arranged at each side of the fur-cated rear end of the chute and directed toward one another for discharging through the furciformed end of the chute.

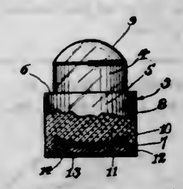
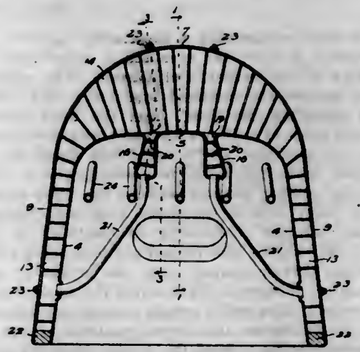
1,807,470. SPECIAL CONSTRUCTION FOR LININGS FOR RANGE OVENS. ISAAC VERNON BRUMBAUGH, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to American Stove Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 22, 1929. Serial No. 387,712. 5 Claims. (Cl. 126—339.)

1. A range having a lining, the said vertical walls of the lining provided with a plurality of elongated slots arranged in corresponding horizontal planes, a vertical frame located outside of the said lining and extending in a direction transverse the said lining, said frame provided with slots corresponding with the slots in said lining thereby forming slots with open outer ends, of a substantially flat rack extending into said slots and freely movable into and from said slots and freely adjustable in said slots the rack operating substantially as described.



1,807,471. MEANS FOR SIMULTANEOUSLY CONTROLLING THE THROTTLE AND ELECTRIC MOTORS OF LOCOMOTIVES. CONRAD C. C. BURKHARDT, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed July 7, 1928. Serial No. 291,083. 2 Claims. (Cl. 105—62.)

1. The combination in an oil-electric locomotive, of an oil engine; an electric generator driven by said engine; a traction motor; means for supplying current to said motor; a vertical controller at one end of the locomotive for said motor; throttle valve mechanism for the oil engine; a lever for actuating the said throttle valve mechanism; a cylinder; a piston within the cylinder connected to the lever; an arm on the vertical controller; a cylinder at the controller; a piston within the last-mentioned cylinder connected to said arm; and a pipe extending from one cylinder to the other cylinder, so that the throttle will be controlled simultaneously with the electric control of the motor.



1,807,472. REFLECTING LENS UNIT. CLINTON C. DODGE, Louisville, Ky., assignor of one-half to Herman Frederick Delmanhorst, Louisville, Ky. Filed Oct. 21, 1929. Serial No. 401,333. 5 Claims. (Cl. 88—1.)

1. A reflecting lens unit comprising a lens body having a recess in its inner end, a reflector positioned within said recess at the base of the latter, a protecting member possessing a cushioning characteristic positioned completely within said recess against the rear face of the reflector, and a backing of cementitious material within said recess snugly engaging the wall of the latter and snugly engaging throughout the rear of said member.

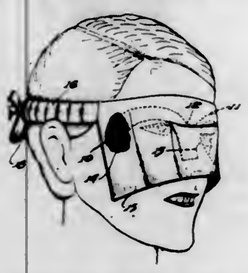
1,807,473. SIPHON GENERATOR AND CIRCULATOR FOR LOCOMOTIVE BOILERS. GEORGE H. EMERSON and WILLIAM B. WHITSITT, Baltimore, Md. Filed Dec. 4, 1930. Serial No. 500,121. 10 Claims. (Cl. 122—68.)

5. The combination with a locomotive boiler including its fire-box, of a steam generating and water circulating receptacle extending longitudinally within the fire-box, said receptacle being arranged beneath and supported solely from the crown sheet and being of substantially uniform depth from end to end thereof and having an outlet at its top opening through the crown sheet into the upper water space of the boiler, and tubes connecting said receptacle with a water space of the boiler at a side thereof and extending on curved lines for free bending or flexing movements of the boiler sheets to which said receptacle and tubes are attached.

1,807,474. TRANSPLANTER. BENJAMIN C. ENGLAND, Pedricktown, N. J. Filed Nov. 16, 1929. Serial No. 407,697. 5 Claims. (Cl. 111—59.)



1. The combination in a transplanter, of a tractor having front and rear wheels, a furrow marker and covering wheels; a frame for supporting said furrow marker and the covering wheels; two seat beams, one located on the one side of the tractor and the other on the opposite side of the tractor; two cross-beams, one in the forward end of the tractor and the other in advance of the main traction wheels of the tractor; means for suspending the seat beams from these two cross-beams; and platforms on each beam and a back rest on each beam, the mechanism being located between the front of the tractor and the rear traction wheels of the tractor.

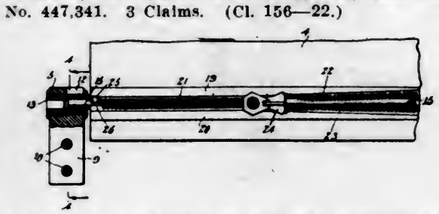
1,807,475. EYESHIELD. MARY K. GIBSON, Baltimore, Md. Filed Oct. 30, 1929. Serial No. 403,629. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—15.)

An eyeshield comprising a mask adapted when in lowered position to cover the eyes and a substantial portion of the face of the wearer, and adapted to be raised from the eyes against the forehead by folding back the mask, without removing the same from the head, said mask comprising plies of soft flexible non-transparent material, without eye openings, which completely shade the eyes of the wearer when the mask is lowered, and a semi-stiff reinforcing member secured between the plies and spaced from the upper edge of the shade, and comprising a pair of arched portions conforming substantially to the eye orbits of the wearer, said arched portions being connected by a bridge portion shaped to fit the bridge of the nose of the wearer, and means for securing the mask to the head of the wearer, comprising straps secured substantially at the top of the shade, the arched portions of the stiffening member serving to hold the flexible material in curved position to prevent collapsing against the face of the wearer when the mask is lowered, and together with the bridge portion serving to hold the mask in raised position when folded back against the forehead of the wearer.

1,807,476. RECEPTACLE. ABRAHAM J. GINSBERG, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 10, 1929. Serial No. 385,003. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—15.)

1. In a device of the character described, an outer receptacle, a removable inner receptacle, said inner receptacle including an offset portion defining a depression and an absorbent material carried within said depression within said inner receptacle, and spacing means carried by said outer receptacle co-operating with said offset portion to maintain the inner receptacle centered within the outer receptacle.



1,807,477. WELDED ARTICLE. WALTER REGINALD HUME, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia. Filed Sept. 6, 1928, Serial No. 304,265, and in Australia Nov. 22, 1927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 219—10.)

1. A frame or like structure comprising a series of metal bars arranged at an angle to and with their ends in abutted contact with other metal bars of the structure, the abutting or intersecting portions of said bars being joined together by means of mold elements which are positioned against the substantially flush faces of said bars, each of said mold elements having an outer edge corresponding in shape to the marginal form of the joint, and a passage through the mold element encompassing said abutting or intersecting portions of the angularly disposed bars, said passage being filled with deposited weld metal which is homogeneously united to said mold element and forms therewith a composite projection welded to said bars.

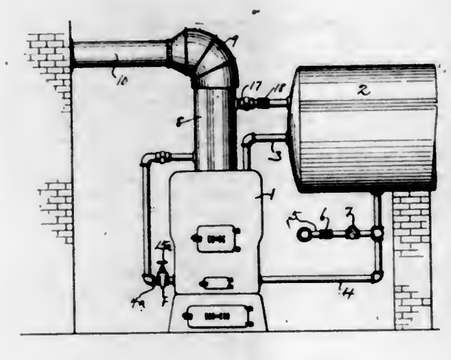
1,807,478. DISENGAGEABLE FASTENER. MAX J. ISAACSON, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Apr. 25, 1930. Serial No. 447,341. 3 Claims. (Cl. 156—22.)

1. A device of the character described, including a substantially flat article, a zipper fastener structure provided with a pair of encircling flexible strips, and means for connecting one edge of each strip to said article intermediate its length whereby said strips and that part of said article between said strips are adapted to encircle a bar for connecting said article to the bar.

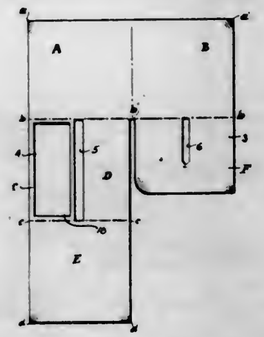
1,807,479. WIRE TIGHTENING DEVICE. EDWIN TAKO JAMES, Tasman, Nelson, New Zealand. Filed Oct. 12, 1929, Serial No. 399,316, and in New Zealand May 21, 1929. 3 Claims. (Cl. 254—73.)



1. In a machine of the character described, the combination with a wire feeding ratchet, a lever, and a pawl carried by said lever to cooperate with said ratchet, of a rocking spindle mounted to rock about a point near one of its ends and upon which the ratchet is journalled and the lever is positioned, a cam lever independently fulcrumed and associated with said spindle to raise and lower the same, and wire gripping means operable to engage the wire during movement of said spindle carrying the wire feeding ratchet.

1,807,480. COMPACT PLATE HOLDING RING. WILLIAM G. KENDALL, Newark, N. J. Filed Feb. 9, 1929. Serial No. 338,728. 5 Claims. (Cl. 132—83.)

1. The combination with a vanity case having a body formed with an in-turned flange, of a compact plate holding ring formed with an annular wall positioned to frictionally engage the inner edge of said flange, said ring having portions extending into said body to a point adjacent the bottom thereof, while said wall acts as means for receiving a lid, said ring being provided with a movable member for disengageably locking the compact plate in position.



1,807,481. HOT WATER HEATING SYSTEM. ALBERT E. KLEIN, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 26, 1930. Serial No. 438,929. 1 Claim. (Cl. 122—20.)

A water heating system comprising a reservoir tank, an inlet pipe connected to said tank, said inlet pipe being also connected to a source of fresh cold water so that said reservoir tank is maintained full, a heater having a first water column which is substantially vertical, said reservoir tank being connected to said first water column by separated pipes at substantially the top and bottom of said first water column, an economizer located above said heater, said economizer having a plurality of substantially vertical pipes through which the waste hot gases from the combustion space of said heater can pass, said economizer being dimensioned to permit a rapid upward flow of said hot gases through the same so that the draft of the heater remains effective, said economizer having a second water column which is substantially vertical, the top of said second water column being connected to said reservoir tank, the bottom of said second water column being connected to said first water column at a point substantially below the top of said first named column.

1,807,482. BILL FOLD OR PURSE. DANIEL W. B. KUBTZ, Jr., Columbia, Mo. Filed May 2, 1928, Serial No. 274,440. Renewed Apr. 21, 1931. 8 Claims. (Cl. 150—38.)

1. A bill fold comprising a piece of flexible material of substantially U-shape, having one leg substantially longer than the other and twice as long as the width of the connecting base part, said long leg folded backward on itself and then backward against the connecting base part, and secured to said base part by seams connecting all the edges except that formed by bending said long leg upon itself, to constitute a pocket, and the short leg folded forwardly upon the connecting base part and secured thereto by a seam connecting their adjacent free edges to constitute a pocket open on two sides.

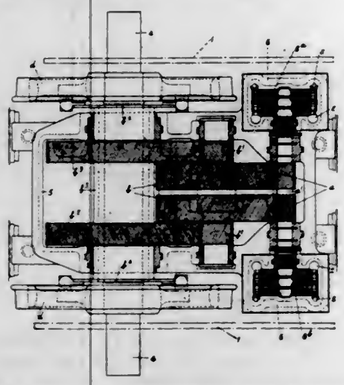
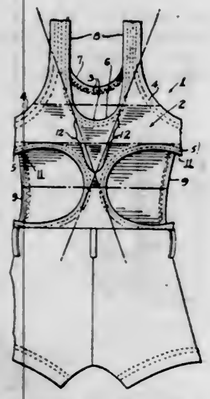
1,807,483. TREATMENT OF ROSIN AND PRODUCT THEREOF. WILLIAM BURNS LOGAN, De Quincy, La., assignor to The Newport Company, Carrollville, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 3, 1929. Serial No. 330,157. 14 Claims. (Cl. 87—2.)



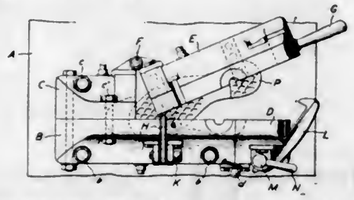
1. The process of improving wood rosin which comprises heating a bleached grade of the same at a temperature below that at which substantial decomposition sets in and without material distillation thereof, until its content of potential color body has been considerably reduced.

1,807,484. OILING DEVICE. JOHN S. LONDON, Philadelphia, and CHARLES B. MCCARTY, Matamoras, Pa., assignors of one-third to David W. Fisher, Hornell, N. Y. Filed May 7, 1928, Serial No. 275,889. Renewed Feb. 10, 1931. 4 Claims. (Cl. 184—35.)



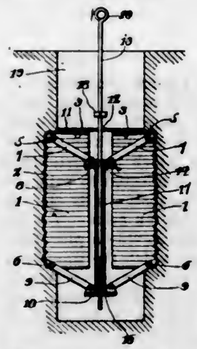
1. In a rotary oiler having an oil reservoir, a valve seat at the bottom thereof, oil receiving ducts opening onto said valve seat, a rotary valve member sealing said ducts from the oil within said oil reservoir, an oil supply groove provided in said seat in communication with the oil in said reservoir, and oil pick-up cavities provided in said rotary valve member for successively registering with said oil supply groove for receiving a charge of oil therefrom and with the respective oil discharge ducts for depositing the same therein upon each revolution of said rotary valve member, means for maintaining a head of compressed air within said oil reservoir to place the oil therein under pressure, and means for imparting intermittent turning movement to said rotary valve member in one direction, said means including a ratchet mechanism associated with said rotary valve member, and a reciprocable piston operatively connected with said ratchet mechanism.

1,807,485. TURBINE DRIVEN LOCOMOTIVE. JAMES MACLEOD, Glasgow, Scotland. Filed June 7, 1930, Serial No. 459,792, and in Great Britain Apr. 29, 1929. 2 Claims. (Cl. 105—38.)



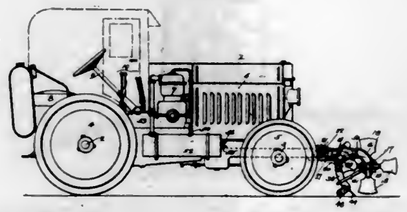
1. In a locomotive, in combination with a wheeled driving axle, a unitary rotary shaft disposed transversely of the locomotive and having overhung ends, an ahead turbine rotor and a reverse turbine rotor mounted on said overhung ends of said shaft, at least one pinion unitary with said shaft, and a set of rotary gears, and flexible transmission means between said pinion and said axle.

1,807,486. BATHING SUIT. CHARLES L. MARTIN, Winston-Salem, N. C., assignor to Indera Mills Company, Winston-Salem, N. C., a Corporation of North Carolina. Filed Oct. 11, 1930. Serial No. 488,099. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—67.)



1. Knit bathing suit having shoulder openings shared by the front and rear portions, a neck opening shallower in front than in the back, defining in conjunction with the shoulder openings, shoulder straps, and under-arm openings located substantially entirely on the back portion, extending toward the median line of the back portion at least a sufficient distance to intersect longitudinal lines through the shoulder straps, the front portion from a transverse line in a plane intersecting the shoulder openings below the front part of the neck opening, to a transverse line in a plane intersecting the under-arm openings, defining a brassière area, the transverse edge of the front part of the neck opening preventing spreading of the shoulder straps, thus fixing their points of suspension upon the shoulders of the wearer, the area of the front portion of the bathing suit between the neck opening and the upper boundary of the brassière area and the substantially unindented part below the lower boundary of the brassière area distributing over the entire width of the brassière area, the longitudinal stresses engendered by circumferential distension of the bathing suit, the edges of the under-arm openings being less elastic than the general fabric of the bathing suit and having the upper parts arcing downwardly from an intermediate point of maximum altitude toward the side seams of the bathing suit, whereby when said bathing suit is distended, said downwardly arcing edges rise to coincide with an imaginary line in a transverse plane intersecting approximately the middle portion of said brassière area, said relatively inelastic edges constituting the major portion of said line, whereby the preponderance of circumferential stretching is borne by said brassière area.

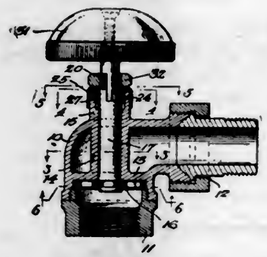
1,807,487. MANUFACTURE OF RUBBER-SOLED FOOTWEAR. HENRY MCGHEE, Rushcutters Bay, near Sydney, New South Wales, Australia. Filed Feb. 21, 1929, Serial No. 341,791, and in Australia June 14, 1928. 3 Claims. (Cl. 18—59.)



1. The process of manufacture of footwear having leather uppers and rubber soles, which consists in lasting the upper over a rubber cover sole on an undersized last, applying a rubber tread sole piece thereover and vulcanizing the structure in a mould, the whole of which except the sole plate is maintained at a substantially lower temperature than the point at which injury to the leather results.

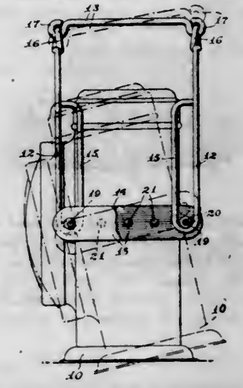
1,807,488. ANCHORING DEVICE. FRED MICHALICEK, Estacada, Oreg. Filed Nov. 4, 1930. Serial No. 493,391. 8 Claims. (Cl. 189—92.)

1. An anchor device comprising, a plurality of arcuate sections for insertion within an opening, each of said sections being formed at its upper edge with an inward projection, a plurality of links pivotally connected with said sections adjacent the upper edges of the latter, a plurality of links pivotally connected with said sections adjacent the lower edges of the latter, each of said links extending at a downward and inward inclination, a pair of floating plates pivotally connected respectively with said links which are connected with the upper and lower edges of the sections, a rod slidably extending through the uppermost of said floating plates and threadedly engaging the lowermost of said floating plates, a rigid tube encircling the rod in abutment with said floating plates, and stop means carried by said sections and rod for limiting downward movement of the latter relative to the sections.



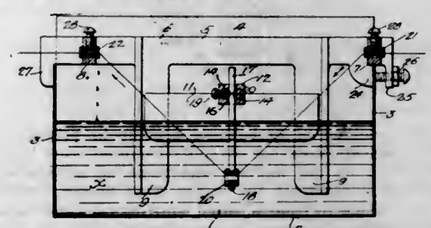
1,807,489. DITCH-FILLING MACHINE. WILLIAM V. MIDDLETON and JOSEPH W. THROPP, Trenton, N. J. Filed Mar. 6, 1930. Serial No. 433,652. 9 Claims. (Cl. 37—144.)

2. The combination in an automotive device, of a conveyer frame pivotally mounted on the end of the said device; a conveyer shaft; means for driving the shaft; conveyer blades on the shaft; a curved scraper located back of the conveyer shaft and arranged to slide in guides on the frame; and rollers supporting the lower end of the said scraper.



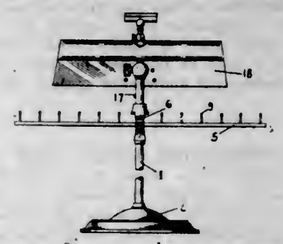
7. The combination in an automotive device having a take-off, of a transversely arranged frame pivoted to one end of the automotive device; a transversely arranged conveyer shaft mounted on the frame; means for driving said shaft from the take-off of the automotive device; a series of reversible blades on the shaft; and means for securing the blades in either of two positions so that the machine can be set to fill a ditch at either side thereof.

1,807,490. VALVE. WILLIAM B. MILNER, Dunkirk, N. Y. Filed Mar. 29, 1929. Serial No. 350,969. 1 Claim. (Cl. 251—84.)



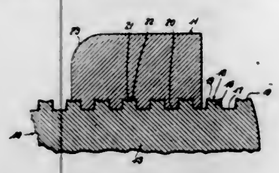
A valve including a casing, a web within the casing forming a valve seat, a tubular stem housing between the casing and one side of the said seat, a stem extending through said housing, a valve disk secured to the stem against the other side of the seat and closing the inner end of said tubular housing, said casing having an upstanding neck portion around the stem and provided with a counterbore and an upstanding lug, packing within the counterbore around the stem, a ring confined to rotation with the stem, said ring seating on the packing and having spaced shoulders engageable with the lug to limit rotative movement of the stem, a cap also confined to rotation with the stem and having a portion depending around said ring and said neck portion of the casing whereby to close the upper end of said neck, and a tension nut threaded on the stem and having bearing upon the cap and through the latter and said ring, upon the packing.

1,807,491. BAIL FOR HAND LANTERNS. ROBERT H. MONTEITH, Lockland, Ohio. Filed Oct. 15, 1930. Serial No. 488,960. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—52.3.)



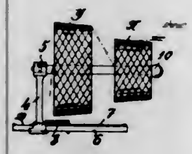
1. A handle comprising attaching means, bail members slidably and pivotally connected with said means, and a grip member extending between said bail members and having its opposite ends pivotally connected respectively with said bail members.

1,807,492. YARN MOISTENING DEVICE. ERNST OSCAR NEBEL, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Oct. 17, 1928. Serial No. 313,100. 3 Claims. (Cl. 91—46.)



1. In a yarn moistening device, the combination of a container for a moistening fluid, said container being open at its top, a framework resting on the top edges of the walls of the container, guides on said framework extending downwardly into said container, a float positioned intermediate said guides, a thread guide carried by said float below the level of the fluid in the container, and thread guides carried by said frame adjacent oppositely disposed walls of the container.

1,807,493. DISPLAY STAND. HENRY M. PETERS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Faries Manufacturing Company, Decatur, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 23, 1930. Serial No. 446,521. 5 Claims. (Cl. 211—154.)

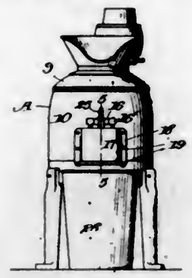


1. In a display rack including a standard, a frame rotatably mounted on said standard, outwardly extending rods secured to said frame, a pin in said standard and a cam on said frame engaging said pin to automatically move said frame into the predetermined position.

1,807,494. LOCKING THREAD CONNECTION. GEORGE P. PROCTOR, Wichita Falls, Tex. Filed Mar. 7, 1930. Serial No. 433,927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 151—22.)

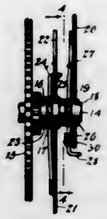
1. In combination, a bolt shank provided with a screw thread, a nut, said nut having a screw thread operable on the first mentioned screw thread, one of said screw threads being peripherally grooved, the wall of the other screw thread between spirals thereof substantially conforming in shape to the aforesaid groove and substantially filling the same.

1,807,495. EXCHANGING THE BOBBINS IN PREPARATORY WEAVING MACHINES. WILHELM REINERS and GUSTAV KAHLISCH, Munich-Gladbach, Germany, assignors to W. Schlafhorst & Co., Munich-Gladbach, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Dec. 14, 1928, Serial No. 326,119, and in Germany Jan. 4, 1928. 9 Claims. (Cl. 242—131.)



1. The method of exchanging bobbins in preparatory weaving machines having coaxially mounted cross wound bobbins tied on one another and unwound successively, consisting in removing the empty front bobbin, shifting the next bobbin to front position, shifting back the skewer with the bobbin, propping it immediately behind the front bobbin, removing the normal skewer carrier, sliding from the rear one or more full bobbins on the skewer, re-applying the normal skewer carrier, removing the propping means, tying the threads of the front and rear bobbins on one another, and again shifting the whole unit into forward position.

8. In a machine of the class described a creel, a plurality of skewer carriers mounted thereon, a skewer easily detachably mounted on each of said carriers, each of said skewers being adapted to support a front bobbin, said carriers being adapted to be shifted on said creel in the axial direction of their skewers, means for swinging said carriers out of operative position when shifted into a rearward end position on said creel, other skewer carriers mounted on said creel and adapted to temporarily support said skewers behind the front bobbin, said last-named carriers comprising jaws adapted to engage said skewers and said creel, spring-actuated abutments for said jaws, and a pair of tong-like mounted hand levers adapted to release said abutments against the action of their springs.



1,807,496. COMBINATION CHUTE AND CLOSURE. HENRY ROBINSON, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 26, 1930. Serial No. 447,645. 7 Claims. (Cl. 221—144.)

1. In a machine of the class described, a chamber having a discharge opening, a chute about said opening for engagement by material discharged therethrough to confine the same so that it will fall from the chute, a closure normally covering said opening means mounting said closure for upward movement and against sidewise movement to substantially close the top of the chute to prevent upward escape of material and access to the machine through said opening, and means carried by the closure to secure the closure in closed position, and means above the bottom of the chute for fastening engagement with said means.

1,807,497. CLOCK. MICHAEL SPECIALE, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 18, 1929. Serial No. 400,631. 1 Claim. (Cl. 58—126.)

In combination, an arbor having a circular groove therein, a hand having a slotted sleeve, said sleeve fitting on said arbor with its slotted portion in registry with said groove, and a spring engageable in said groove through the slotted portion of the sleeve to frictionally retain the hand in position on the arbor.

A capping device comprising, a cap adapted to be circumferentially disposed with respect to a well casing and having an outlet at the top thereof, a feed line extending through the wall of the cap for the discharge of an adhesive substance into the interior thereof, a tubular member depending from the upper wall of said cap in overlapping relation to said casing, and a feed line extending through the walls of said cap and tubular member for the discharge of an adhesive substance into the interior of said tubular member.

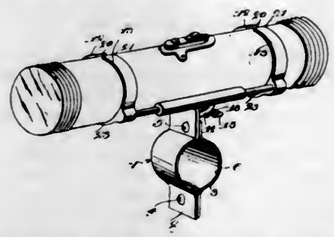
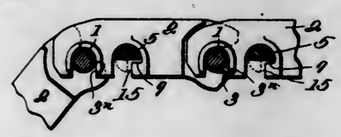
1,807,499. STAMPING MACHINE. ELNO H. TRUMP, Akron, Ohio. Filed Apr. 3, 1928. Serial No. 267,001. 33 Claims. (Cl. 164—20.)



1. In a stamping machine, a horizontal support over which sheet material is fed, pairs of coinciding transversely alined rotatable elements arranged above the support, and a die eccentrically supported adjacent its ends from the coinciding rotatable elements.

1,807,500. READING STAND. HAZAEL ERNEST WEST, Washington, D. C. Filed Apr. 12, 1928. Serial No. 269,530. 1 Claim. (Cl. 45—82.)

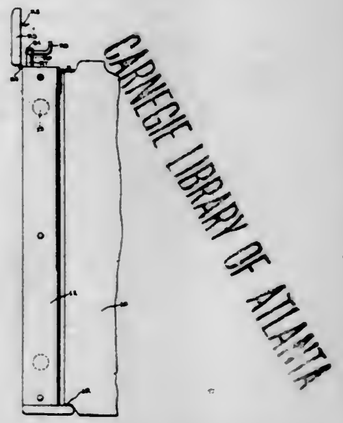


A reading stand, comprising a base portion adapted to rest on a support, a post rising from one end of the base portion and bent horizontally at its upper end to provide a fixed pin overhanging the base portion, a clamping member pivotally mounted on the pin and having socketed clamping jaws spaced from and extending outwardly of the pin, a ball disposed between the sockets of the clamping jaws and having an opening in one side to receive the pin and hold the ball from turning in the vertical plane of the pin, clamping means for binding the jaws against the ball to hold it when adjusted about the axis of said pin, a stem carried by the ball and extending outwardly therefrom on the axis of said pin, and a supporting frame mounted on the outer end of the stem adapted for adjustment with the ball and stem on the axis of said pin.

1,807,501. FLASH LIGHT HOLDER. JOHN R. ALEXANDER, Paris, Tex. Filed Sept. 19, 1929. Serial No. 393,777. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—52.5.)

1. In an automatic flash light holder, in combination, means for mounting said holder on a support, and means for engaging and disengaging a flash light, comprising extended bearings having slots therein, rock shafts rotatably positioned in said extended bearings and having rocker arms extending through said slots, semi-circular arms non-rotatably mounted on said rock shafts and adapted for engagement with a flash light, and a spring connecting the ends of said rocker arms.

1,807,502. CHAIN GRATE. ALFRED WILLIAM BENNIS, Bolton, England. Filed Jan. 19, 1925, Serial No. 3,404, and in Great Britain Jan. 21, 1924. 9 Claims. (Cl. 110—40.)

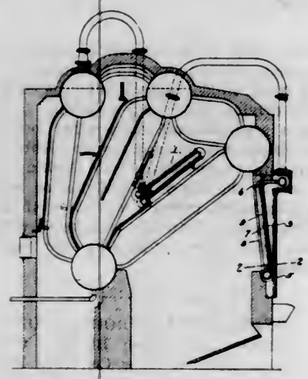


1. A furnace chain grate comprising grate bars including fillers having open notches and arranged in transverse rows and driving links, pivotal interconnecting means between said driving links and engaging in said open notches, and a separate and independent locking bar for engaging the grate bars of each row to secure said fillers upon said pivotal connections, said locking bar being adapted to secure the fillers in position or release them for removal by a bodily endwise movement of said locking bar by a distance less than the transverse width of one of said fillers, and means for holding said locking bar in securing position.

1,807,503. CONDENSATION PRODUCT OF KETONIC ACIDS. HERMAN ALEXANDER BRUSON, Germantown, Pa., assignor to Rohm & Haas Co., Inc., Philadelphia, Pa. Filed May 27, 1930. Serial No. 456,290. 20 Claims. (Cl. 260—8.)

1. The process of preparing a mixed ester which consists in heating to reaction temperature a mixture of an acid derived from a natural fatty glyceride, a polyhydric alcohol, and a benzophenone-dicarboxylic acid.

1,807,504. LOOSE LEAF BINDER CLAMP. AUGUST K. BRIELE and ROBERT H. BRIELE, Baltimore, Md. Filed June 12, 1929. Serial No. 370,401. 6 Claims. (Cl. 129—41.)



CARNEGIE LIBRARY OF ATLANTA

1. In a loose leaf binder clamp, the combination of a tubular binder-head having openings between its ends, a screw-threaded rod journalled in said tubular binder-head and extending substantially from end to end thereof, connections threaded on said rod and thereby movable along said tubular binder-head, flexible members connected to said connections and extending through said openings and adapted to be pulled inward by said connections and provided with a leaf-clamping member movable toward the said binder-head for cooperation therewith, and an operating member including a handle and being adjustably secured to said screw-threaded rod so as to be movable from its operating position into such position that said handle is within the said tubular binder-head.

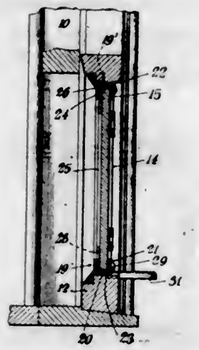
1,807,505. METHOD OF AND APPARATUS FOR GENERATING AND SUPERHEATING STEAM. WALES S. BUELL, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor to Foster Wheeler Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 25, 1922. Serial No. 556,372. 6 Claims. (Cl. 122—478.)



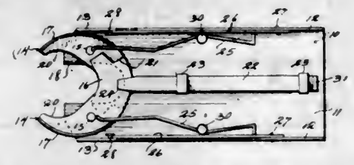
1. The method of generating and superheating steam characterized by the direct absorption by metallic bodies of radiant heat from the combustion chamber of the boiler in which the steam is generated to furnish a portion of the desired superheating effect and by the absorption of such additional heat as is required for the desired total superheating effect wholly or largely from the heating gases leaving said combustion chamber after the latter have been partially cooled by contact with the water heating surfaces of the boiler to thereby maintain a substantially uniform total superheating effect.

1,807,506. FOLDING CHAIR. CALVIN A. BUFFINGTON, Berkshire, N. Y. Filed Nov. 9, 1929. Serial No. 406,046. 1 Claim. (Cl. 155—142.)

In a folding chair, a combined back and front leg unit comprising side members, rear legs pivotally connected at their upper ends to the side members of the said back and front leg unit at the inner sides of the side members, a bracket comprising a side portion secured to the outer side of each side member of said unit, below the pivots for the rear legs, a portion extending from the said side portion and across the forward sides of the respective side members and rear legs, and having a portion extending at right angles to the last mentioned portion of the bracket and pivotally connected with the seat at opposite sides thereof, the last mentioned portion of the bracket spacing the sides of the seat from the rear legs, each of the rear legs being provided in its inner side with a longitudinal groove, and a sheet metal plate pivotally mounted upon each side of the seat, at the rear thereof and having a right angularly extending portion at one margin thereof, slidably fitting in the groove in the respective rear leg.

1,807,507. WINDOW SASH. RALPH CAIAZZO, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor, by direct and meane assignments, to American New Fashion Silverware Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 21, 1929. Serial No. 394,252. 1 Claim. (Cl. 20—48.)

In a window construction, a casing, sections slidably mounted in said casing a frame of angle metal for each section and being fixedly secured therein, a movable metal frame for each section and cooperating with the fixed frames, the movable metal frames being hingedly secured to the sections, latching means for said movable metal frames and holding the same at various angles with respect to the fixed frames, transparent panels for the movable frames, a gasket for each panel and surrounding the same, clamping plates for holding the gasket against the panels, securing means passing through the movable frames, gaskets and clamping plates respectively for securing the panels to said movable frames, said movable frames being substantially T-shape in cross section to provide webs engageable with the outer edges of the panels and fixed frames respectively, flanges engageable with a side of the panels, restricted flanges formed with the flanges first mentioned and receiving one of the angle portions of the fixed frames when the movable frames are disposed in closed position, and means for fastening the movable frames accordingly.



1,807,508. RUNNER STOP FOR STOCKINGS. JAMES J. CAFFREY, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Gotham Silk Hosiery Company, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 20, 1928. Serial No. 327,371. 5 Claims. (Cl. 2—240.)

1. The combination with a knitted stocking of a tuck formed in and extending course-wise of the stocking fabric after the knitting thereof for preventing runners which are advancing in a walewise direction from either side of and toward a predetermined line produced by the formation of said tuck from crossing said predetermined line to the opposite side thereof, said tuck forming a band of unstressed fabric at said predetermined line and means bridging said unstressed band and adapted to assume any tension applied to the stocking, whereby said band is at all times relieved of said tension, said bridging means comprising a supplementary thread looped back and forth across said band and interlocking with the stitches of the stocking fabric at the opposite sides of said band.

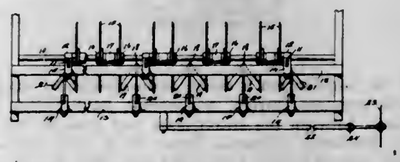
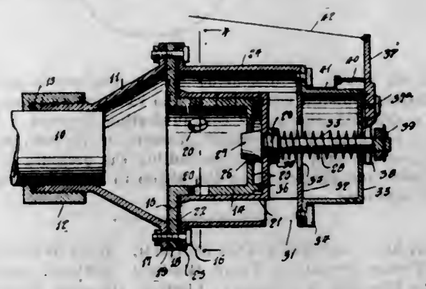
1,807,509. VALVE STEM SPLIT LOCK CATCHER. IRA J. CLARK, Fort Morgan, Colo. Filed Mar. 11, 1930. Serial No. 434,972. 6 Claims. (Cl. 81—3.)



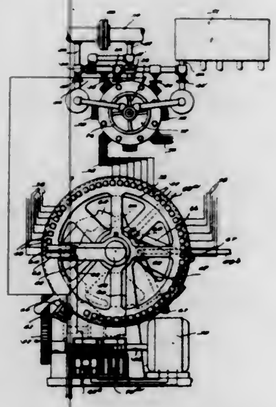
1. A split washer catcher of the character described comprising an elongated trough, and a pair of gate members swingingly mounted on the trough and means for holding the gate members in either closed position about a stem or in open position.

1,807,510. SILENT WAVE RADIO TRANSMISSION SYSTEM. EDWARD E. CLEMENT, Washington, D. C., assignor to Edward F. Colladay, Washington, D. C. Filed Aug. 7, 1926. Serial No. 127,898. 1 Claim. (Cl. 250—9.)



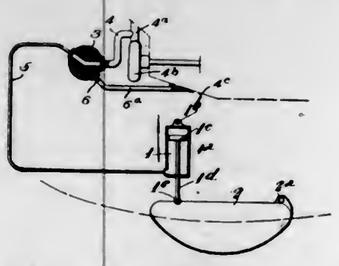
The method of continuous wave multiplex transmission of signals which consists in modulating each of a plurality of high frequency undulatory carrier currents with a different relatively low frequency undulatory signal, transmitting the carriers thus modulated simultaneously in such manner that the sum of the unmodulated portions of said carrier waves will be equal to zero, conveying one or more dephased undulatory carrier currents of the same frequency as the original carrier currents from the point of origination to the receiving point over a separate medium from that utilized for the transmission of the modulated waves, receiving the side bands representing the modulated portions of the carriers upon separate receiving circuits, supplying said dephased undulatory carrier currents to said circuits for homodyne receiving, adjusting the phase of each of said homodyne currents to bring it into exact phase with one of the modulated carrier waves received, combining said current with the received side band, and detecting and rendering audible the signal on the completed modulated carrier thus produced in each receiving circuit.

1,807,511. BEET BLOCKER. JOHN COMER, Windsor, Colo. Filed July 1, 1930. Serial No. 465,212. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—23.)



1. A beet blocker attachment for cultivators comprising an axle, means for detachably suppofting the axle upon a cultivator bar, a plurality of pairs of rolling colters mounted upon the axle, each colter being longitudinally movable upon the axle, a spacer disposed between the colters of each pair, collars holding the colters in place against the spacers and engaged with the axle, the pairs of colters being disposed in spaced relation to each other along the axle, a plurality of cutters disposed each between a pair of colters, each cutter having rearwardly divergent blades, the extremities of which are disposed behind and on a level with the lowest portion of the adjacent colters, each cutter having a shank extending upward and adapted to be detachably engaged with the cultivator tool bar.

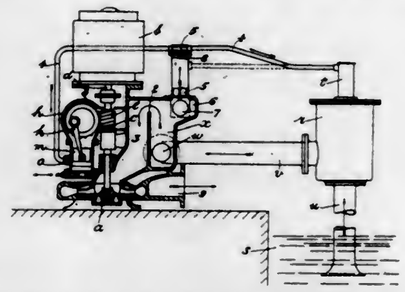
1,807,512. EXHAUST TRAP CONSTRUCTION. ARTHUR J. CULP, Clanton, Ala. Filed July 11, 1929. Serial No. 377,459. 6 Claims. (Cl. 137—160.)



1. A trap of the class described having a cylinder adapted to receive exhaust, said cylinder having an outlet port in its peripheral wall, a valve normally closing said port, said cylinder having an additional port, a portion of said valve occupying said additional port, said portion being engageable by the exhaust to displace the valve in order to uncover the first mentioned port, means providing a seat for the free edge of the valve, and a flange on said cylinder in the path of and adapted to be abutted by said valve.

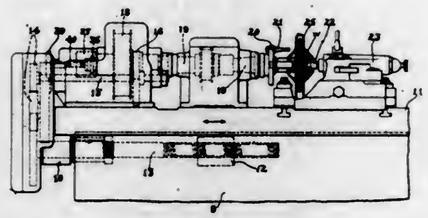
1,807,513. FURNACE CONTROL. THOMAS W. DELANEY, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Oct. 12. 1929. Serial No. 399,379. 10 Claims. (Cl. 236—26.)

1. In combination a steam main subject to changes of steam pressure therein, a constant fluid pressure, connections between the steam main and consant fluid pressure, including pressure tanks filled with fluids, and means whereby the fluids will establish electrical control circuits when the pressure in the steam main varies from the fluid pressure.



1,807,514. RADIATOR ACTUATING MECHANISM. JULIEN EUGÈNE EMILE DEWOITINE, Chatillon-sous-Bagneux, France. Filed June 13, 1929, Serial No. 370,636, and in France June 29, 1928. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—31.)

1. In means for displacing on an airplane a pivoted radiator, a piston connected to the radiator and movable in a cylinder, the latter communicating through a pipe with a source of fluid under pressure or vacuum, and a cock on the said pipe for controlling the pressure in the cylinder and for acting on the piston in order to displace the radiator.



1,807,515. LUBRICATING SYSTEM. JOHN WHITEHEAD WILSON DRYSDALE, Yoker, Glasgow, Scotland, assignor to Drysdale & Company, Limited. Glasgow, Scotland. Filed Oct. 22, 1928, Serial No. 314,296, and in Great Britain Nov. 28, 1927. 2 Claims. (Cl. 184—6.)

1. A lubricating system including a tank for receiving the oil discharged from the lubricated parts, an oil pump for withdrawing the oil from the said tank and delivering it again to the parts to be lubricated, a motor for driving the said pump, a de-aerating apparatus, a pipe connection from the said tank to the said de-aerating apparatus, a pipe connection from the said de-aerating apparatus to the said oil pump, an air pump driven by the said motor, a pipe connection from the said de-aerating apparatus to the said air pump, an oil-receiving chamber in the said oil pump, an air-collecting chamber at the top of the said oil-receiving chamber, and a pipe connection from the said air-collecting chamber to the said air pump.

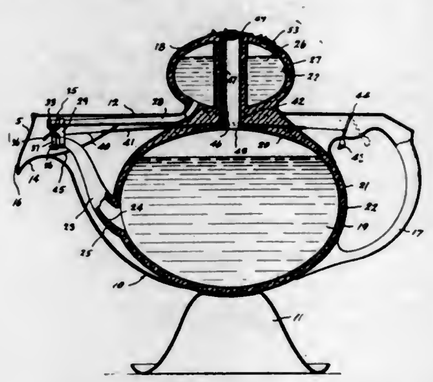
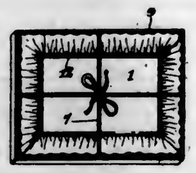
1,807,516. THREAD GRINDING MACHINE. HENRY E. DURKEE, Manchester, Conn., assignor to Pratt & Whitney Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Oct. 14, 1929. Serial No. 399,618. 8 Claims. (Cl. 51—95.)



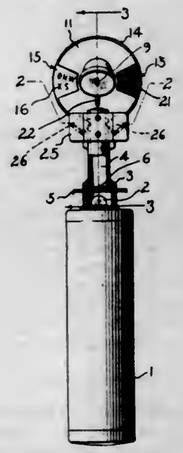
1. A thread grinding machine comprising in combination, a base, an abrasive wheel mounted thereon, a reciprocatory table, a work supporting and rotating spindle on said table, means to rotate said spindle, connections between said means and said table whereby said table is moved past said wheel in timed relation to the rotation of said spindle, and axially movable means within said driving connections to vary the amount of lost motion between said rotating means and said spindle.

1,807,517. ATTACHABLE BRACKET SHELF. JOHN ERLENDSON and VALENTINE G. FAULHABER, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Apr. 9, 1930. Serial No. 442,804. 2 Claims. (Cl. 211—90.)



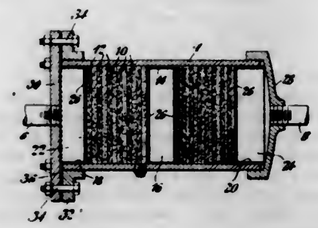
2. A blank for metal bracket shelves comprising a central rectangular portion and side triangular portions extending from the central portion and of less length than the central portion, the ends of the central portion extending beyond the triangular portions being adapted to be bent at angles to the remainder of the central portion to constitute a receiving ledge at one end and an article holding ledge at the other end, said triangular portions being adapted to be bent at right angles to the central portion whereby their extreme points will serve to engage the supporting body to which the bracket shelf may be secured, said central portion at the extremity opposite the article receiving ledge being provided with apertures for the reception of fastening devices.

1,807,518. COMBINATION BEVERAGE DISPENSER. LUCIO FLAMMA, New York, N. Y. Filed May 31, 1930. Serial No. 458,232. 7 Claims. (Cl. 65—13.)



4. A combination beverage dispenser including a hollow casing, a heat insulated double walled container at the lower part of said casing, a second heat insulated double walled container at the upper part of said casing, said casing including a pouring spout and a handle, an outlet conduit leading from said upper container to said spout, a second outlet conduit leading from said lower container to said spout, closure devices to normally seal the outer ends of said conduits, manually operated means to operate said conduit closure devices, a partition plate in said spout at the rear of the open end portions of said conduits, a heat insulated double walled conduit extending through said upper container and to said lower container, said upper container having a filling aperture, and hinged covers for said filling aperture and said last mentioned double walled conduit.

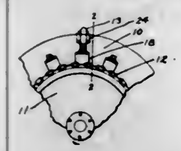
1,807,519. CURTAIN PACKAGE. FREDERICK ARTHUR FLATHER, Lowell, Mass. Filed Dec. 12, 1929. Serial No. 413,626. 7 Claims. (Cl. 206—46.)



6. A package formed of a pair of curtains, each including a body portion having a ruffle secured to and extending along a side edge and an end edge thereof, each of said body portions being folded longitudinally and transversely, each of said ruffles being folded transversely and projecting from a side and an end of the body portion to which it is secured, said body portions being disposed in superposed relation with the ruffles secured thereto projecting therefrom in opposite directions.

1,807,520. DIAGNOSTIC INSTRUMENT. ELMORE A. FORSHEY, New York, N. Y., assignor to American Optical Company, Southbridge, Mass., a Voluntary Association of Massachusetts. Filed May 27, 1927. Serial No. 194,825. 8 Claims. (Cl. 88—20.)

1. In a device of the character described, a source of light, a member having a light passage way leading from the source of light and having an opening therethrough on each side of the axis of the light passage way, a reflector support carried by the member having the light passage way, a reflector on the support aligned with the light passage way, test objects on the reflector support on each side of the reflector, and additional reflectors, one in the path of the light rays coming thru each opening thru the light passageway and adapted to reflect said light onto the test characters on their respective sides of the reflector support.



1,807,521. APPARATUS FOR CLEANING GAS. THEODORE M. FOULK, Denver, Colo., assignor to Public Service Company, Colorado, Denver, Colo., a Corporation of Colorado. Filed July 12, 1924. Serial No. 725,701. 2 Claims. (Cl. 183—45.)

1. A gas filter comprising in combination a casing having end closures and a gas inlet at one end and a gas outlet at the opposite end, two hollow cylindrical spacers each contacting one of said end closures and lying in contact with the inner surface of said casing, a third spacer similar to said spacers but arranged between them within the casing, alternate layers of cotton and metal wool arranged within said casing in the path of the gas between said inlet and said outlet, and foraminous supports for said layers, the edges of said supports engaging with the ends of said spacers in planes removed from said end closures.

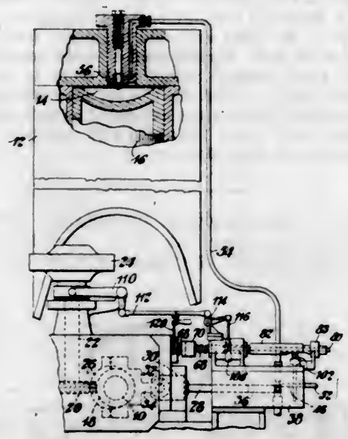
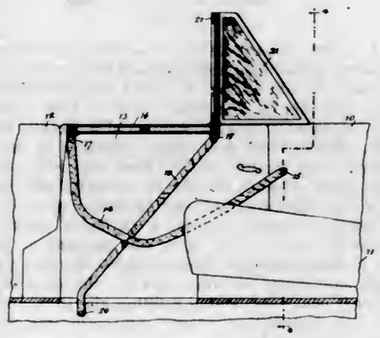
1,807,522. TREAD MEMBER FOR TIRE CHAINS. EUGENE GHIA, Bristol, Conn. Filed Jan. 13, 1928. Serial No. 246,500. 4 Claims. (Cl. 152—14.)

1. A spur member for use in an anti-skidding device comprising a spur proper of four-sided pyramidal form, rib-like lugs radiating from the corners of said spur and perforated individually for connecting means, a web-like platform connecting said lugs in pairs at opposite ends of said spur, the bottoms of said lugs, platforms, and spur merging in a continuous contact face for seating on a tire and having the form of fan-like projections at said opposite ends and interrupted at the sides by approximately V-shaped spaces between the lugs on each side, said lugs being of appreciable length relatively to said spur and the perforations being adjacent the ends of said lugs.



1,807,523. TYPOGRAPHICAL COMPOSING MACHINE. DAVID GOLDBLATT, New York, N. Y., assignor to Mergenthaler Linotype Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Feb. 6, 1930. Serial No. 426,334. 22 Claims. (Cl. 199—18.)

1. A keyboard for typographical machines, comprising a series of finger keys, each bearing an index character representative of a typographical element controlled by the corresponding finger key, the said finger keys being arranged in a plurality of distinct groups or sets, the said index characters of one group comprising each a consonant only, and the said index characters of another group comprising each a consonant and a vowel associated therewith.



1,807,524. FUEL INJECTION SYSTEM. WINDER E. GOLDSBOROUGH, South Norwalk, Conn., and BERNHARD SCHILLING, New York, N. Y., assignors to Doherty Research Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 2, 1928. Serial No. 266,781. 17 Claims. (Cl. 123—139.)

1. The combination in an internal combustion engine of a fuel pump having a pressure chamber and a forcing member therein, a relief valve permitting the escape of fluid from said chamber during a portion of the forcing stroke, and a cam arranged to open said valve and having a speed at the time of opening of the valve greater than that of said forcing member.

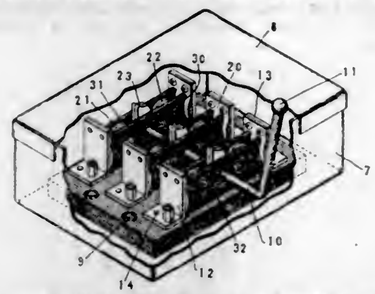
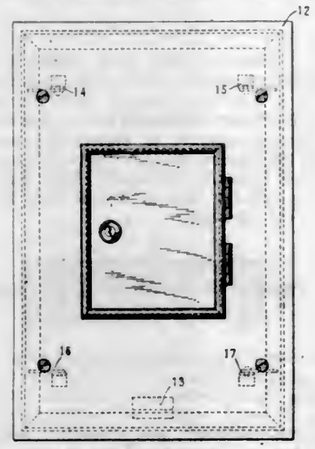
1,807,525. VEHICLE CONSTRUCTION. SIDNEY B. GOULD, New York, N. Y. Filed July 6, 1929. Serial No. 376,366. 4 Claims. (Cl. 296—85.)



3. The combination with a vehicle, of a rear seat cowl arranged within the confines of the vehicle, a curved supporting member pivotally connected with said cowl on each side thereof, said supporting member having an intermediate portion which is adapted to lie upon and in the plane of the vehicle floor when the cowl is in folded position, and a supporting link pivotally connected with said cowl for preventing downward movement of the rear edge of the cowl when in said position.

1,807,526. ELECTRIC SWITCH. HERMAN J. HAMMERLY, Wallingford, Conn., assignor to The Trumbull Electric Manufacturing Company, Plainville, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Sept. 19, 1929. Serial No. 393,695. 4 Claims. (Cl. 200—145.)



1. A switch construction including a stationary contact, a freely rotatable roller contact for engagement with said stationary contact, a rotarily movable cam member for moving said roller contact towards said stationary contact said cam member having a concave recess to hold said roller contact in closed circuit position and spring means for moving said roller contact away from said stationary contact, said cam member having an abrupt shoulder for imparting an initial extra compression of the spring just before opening the circuit, the spring action tending to rotate the roller when opening the circuit.

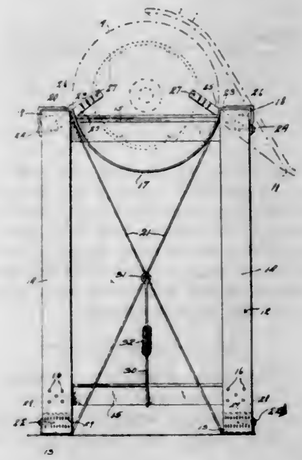
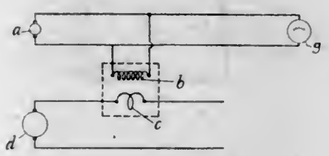
1,807,527. PANEL BOARD CABINET CLAMP. CHARLES E. HANNY, Unionville, Conn., assignor to The Trumbull Electric Manufacturing Company, Plainville, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Jan. 16, 1928. Serial No. 247,102. 3 Claims. (Cl. 292—256.)



1. A cover plate having clamps arranged at the rear, each clamp comprising a lever pivotally mounted on the plate to swing in a plane substantially at right angles to the plane of said plate, a screw extending through said plate and a nut pivoted to said lever and providing a seat for said screw.

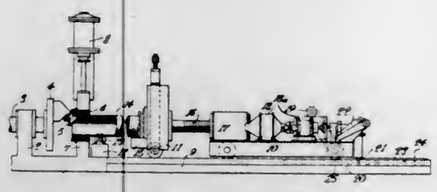
1,807,528. PROCESS OF TREATING SULPHUR BEARING GASES. WILLIAM G. HIATT, Bartlesville, Okla., assignor to Phillips Petroleum Company, Bartlesville, Okla., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Nov. 21, 1927. Serial No. 234,872. 6 Claims. (Cl. 23—3.)



1. A continuous process for the selective complete oxidation of the sulphur bearing compounds (and particularly hydrogen sulfide) in natural gas to prevent decomposition of the sulphur compounds and the attendant formation of sulphur and sulfides which occurs when the gas is heated in the distributing line which comprises adding regulated amounts of air to the gas, passing the gas-air mixture at temperatures above 350° F. through a reaction zone, and maintaining said mixture at temperatures above the condensation point of the water vapor therein until the gas is substantially consumed.

1,807,529. LOADING DECK FOR AUTOMOBILES. SHERMAN HICE, Detroit, Mich. Filed Feb. 18, 1930. Serial No. 429,379. 7 Claims. (Cl. 105—368.)

1. A loading deck for motor vehicles comprising a frame adapted to be mounted on the floor of a freight car, wheel supporting means carried by the frame, and wheel securing means mounted on the frame and engaging the rim bolts whereby to hold the wheel on said wheel supporting means against circumferential movement.



1,807,530. POWER METER. FRANK WOOTTON HIGHFIELD, Coventry, England. Filed July 16, 1928, Serial No. 292,976, and in Great Britain July 22, 1927. 1 Claim. (Cl. 73—187.)

In an apparatus for testing the power developed by internal combustion engines and other prime movers, the combination comprising a wattmeter, a dynamo to be driven by the prime mover being tested, a circuit connected to said dynamo and including the current coil of the wattmeter, a small dynamo to be driven by said prime mover and so constructed that the electromotive force developed thereby will be proportional to the speed of rotation of its armature, and a circuit from said small dynamo including the voltage coil of the wattmefer.

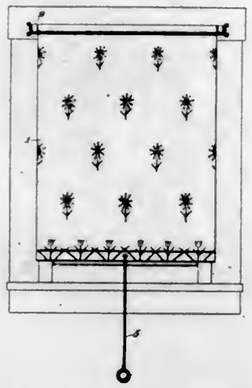
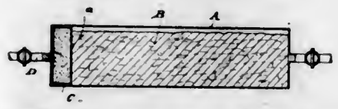
1,807,531. PIPE FLANGING AND UPSETTING MACHINE. ROBERT K. HOPKINS, New York, N. Y., assignor to The M. W. Kellogg Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Aug. 7, 1929. Serial No. 384,081. 5 Claims. (Cl. 78—14.)



1. In a metal working machine, the combination with a supporting frame of a carriage for moving the work into the working zone, indexing holes in said frame, means on said carriage co-operating with said holes for locking the carriage during the working operation, and means associated with said frame to insure that said locking means will be returned to the same holes when a removal and replacement of said work is effected.

1,807,532. VENDING MACHINE. ROBERT W. HULL, Hingham, and WILLIAM J. MACDONALD, Watertown, Mass.; said MacDonald assignor to said Hull. Filed July 23, 1928. Serial No. 294,634. 34 Claims. (Cl. 194—80.)

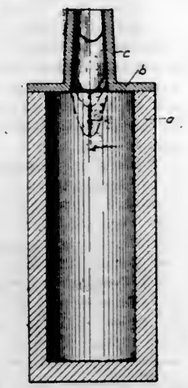


1. In a vending machine, a column of articles, an ejector located at one side of the lowermost article and having a coin receiving recess therein, a portion of said ejector extending under and supporting said column, a tray slidably mounted beneath said ejector and having a coin receiving recess alined with the recess in said ejector, means to move said tray and said ejector transversely of said column, and means operated by ejection of the last article from said column, to prevent reception of a coin in the coin receiving recess of said ejector.

1,807,533. WINDOW SHADE. SAMUEL J. JOHNSON, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Seinsheimer Paper Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Mar. 29, 1930. Serial No. 440,084. 6 Claims. (Cl. 156—10.)

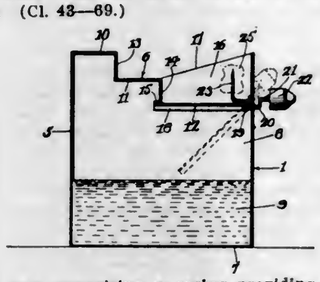
4. A window shade, comprising, a length of paper, provided with minute creasing transverse to the grain of the paper.

1,807,534. PROCESS FOR THE TREATMENT OF A METALLIC, ORGANIC, OR OTHER COMPOUND, OR A GAS, BY A GASEOUS AGENT SERVING TO ENTER INTO REACTION THEREWITH. ALFRED JOSEPH, Paris, France, assignor to Societe Internationale des Procedes Prudhomme Houdry, Paris, France, a Limited Joint-Stock Company of France. Filed July 14, 1927, Serial No. 205,817, and in France July 23, 1926. 4 Claims. (Cl. 23—198.)



1. A process for the reduction of chemical compounds by means of elemental gaseous reducing agents comprising first passing the reducing agent through filtering means containing a metal capable of readily forming an unstable hydride therewith, and thereafter conducting the gas evolved by the breaking down of said unstable hydride out of the presence of said unstable hydride and causing said gas to act on said chemical compound.

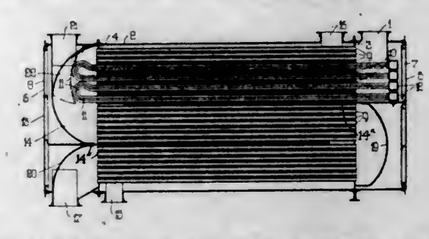
1,807,535. SHADE ROLLER. WILLIAM KAMPAS, Des Moines, Iowa. Filed Apr. 4, 1930. Serial No. 441,621. 1 Claim. (Cl. 156—36.)



In a shade roller construction of the class described, a tubular roller provided with a longitudinal inwardly bent channel-shaped keeper the upper and lower walls of which are disposed in outwardly converging relationship, a shade, a clamping device for the upper end portion of said shade including a hooked retaining flange and a complemental securing lip, and a flexible retention strip interposed between the web portion of the keeper and the back of said clamping device, said retention strip serving to force said clamping device outwardly into binding and retaining relationship with the upper and lower walls of the keeper in the manner described.

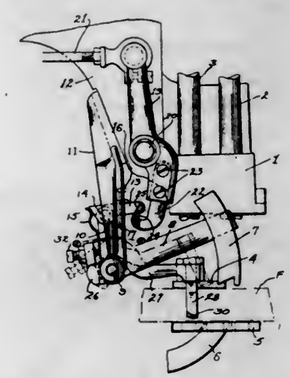
1,807,536. PROCESS FOR CENTRIFUGAL CASTING. ALBERT KEUP, Gelsenkirchen, Germany. Filed Mar. 14, 1929, Serial No. 347,085, and in Germany June 15, 1928. 5 Claims. (Cl. 22—65.)

2. In a process for producing metal ingots by centrifugal casting, the steps of pouring the metal into a vertically-placed mold while the mold is being slowly rotated, gradually increasing the speed of rotation during pouring, and proportioning the rate of pouring and speed of rotation to maintain such a ratio that the metal does not rise along the wall of the mold to form a quickly solidified sheet.



1,807,537. RAT TRAP. HOLLIE B. KIMBRELL, Fayette, Ala. Filed June 25, 1929. Serial No. 373,649. 1 Claim. (Cl. 43—69.)

A rat trap comprising a casing providing a trapping chamber and including a bottom, a pair of side walls, a front wall, a back wall and a top, said top formed with an angle shaped stationary forward part and a flat shiftable rear part, the rear of said stationary part depending below the top of said side walls, said shiftable part positioned below the tops of said sides and back wall and normally abutting the lower terminus of the rear of said stationary part, said parts in connection with the portions of said sides and back wall forming an open top bait compartment in the upper part of the rear of the casing, said compartment gradually increasing in height from its front to its back, said stationary part providing steps leading downwardly to the front of said compartment, said back wall being slotted, a counter-balanced pivoting means fixedly secured to the rear end of said shiftable part, journaled in said side wall and extending through said slot and projecting rearwardly from the back wall, and a bait holder positioned over the rear of said shiftable part and secured to said back wall.



1,807,538. STEAM GENERATING PLANT. ALBERT EDWARD LEEK, Wigan, England. Filed Sept. 1, 1927, Serial No. 216,940, and in Great Britain Sept. 2, 1926. 10 Claims. (Cl. 257—240.)

1. A heat interchanger comprising a plurality of flue gas conduits, a plurality of superheater steam tubes each steam tube passing axially within and parallel to one conduit of a pair and then back axially within and parallel to the other conduit of a pair, means to pass said flue gases axially along boiler feed water tubes after passage along said steam tubes, and means to pass air simultaneously over the opposite side of said flue gas conduits to that adjacent said steam tubes and water tubes in contraflow to the motion of the flue gas.

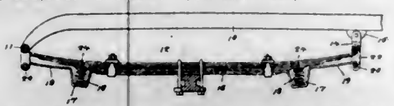
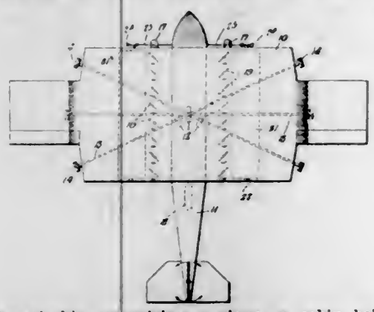
1,807,539. CHAIN CUTTER FOR SEWING MACHINES. FRIEDRICH LUTZ, Stuttgart, Germany, assignor to Union Special Maschinenfabrik, G. m. b. H., Stuttgart, Germany. Filed Jan. 10, 1929, Serial No. 331,441, and in Germany, Oct. 10, 1928. 2 Claims. (Cl. 112—252.)



1. In a sewing machine, a presser foot, a feeding mechanism, a stitch forming mechanism including a needle, and chain cutting devices located in rear of the needle and including a cutting blade, an oscillating member supporting said cutting blade, actuating means for said cutting blade, a member mounted for oscillation about the same axis as the cutting blade and adapted to contact with the material passing under the presser foot, and means controlled by said member for connecting and disconnecting the cutting blade with its actuating mechanism.

1,807,540. SEPARABLE KEY. THEODORE A. MAKRANCZY, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed May 27, 1929. Serial No. 366,505. 2 Claims. (Cl. 70—8.)

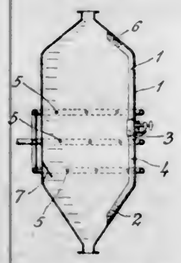


1. A key comprising a body and a handle, the handle having an arm constituting a tumbler-actuator, the arm being removable from the body, along with the handle to permit a lock tumbler to assume a locking position, and a latch mechanism movably mounted on the handle and engaging the body to hold the body and the handle releasably together.

1,807,541. AUTOMOBILE SPRING. GEORGE THURMAN MCCAULEY, Butte, Mont. Filed Dec. 27, 1929. Serial No. 416,886. 1 Claim. (Cl. 267—48.)

A leaf spring attachment comprising an auxiliary leaf having connection with the main leaf adjacent the ends, pivoted links carried by and extended beyond the shackle connections for the main leaf, a bearing sleeve formed in the extended ends of the auxiliary leaf being journaled between the remaining extremities of said links, the auxiliary leaf having pockets, and compression springs carried within said pockets and sprung between the auxiliary leaf and the spring proper to shift the weight of the load and the spring action therefor toward the center.

1,807,542. AIRSHIP. HIRAM P. MINER, Mission Ridge, S. Dak. Filed June 13, 1929, Serial No. 370,576. Renewed Oct. 16, 1930. 3 Claims. (Cl. 244—14.)

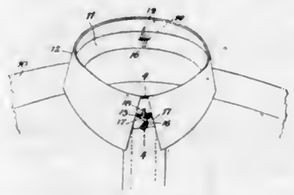


1. An airship comprising a plane, a cabin below the same, propeller shafts radiating from the cabin, individual means to operate the propeller shafts, propellers driven by the shafts and arranged in pairs substantially concentric with the center from which the shafts radiate, and bearings depending from the plane in which said shafts are journaled.

1,807,543. SILICATE REFRACTORY AND PROCESS OF FORMING SAME. JOHN D. MORGAN, Maplewood, N. J., assignor to Doherty Research Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed June 21, 1926. Serial No. 117,609. 10 Claims. (Cl. 106—9.)

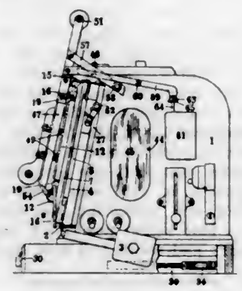
1. The method of forming refractory articles comprising heating zircon particles in the presence of less than one and one half percent of insoluble carbonate material.

1,807,544. DIRECTLY HEATED PULP DIGESTER. EINAR MORTERUD, Torderod, near Moss, Norway. Filed Feb. 26, 1929. Serial No. 342,742. 1 Claim. (Cl. 92—7.)



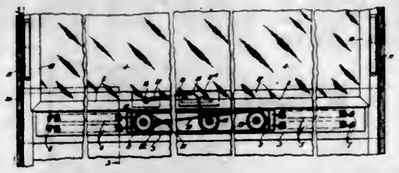
In a directly heated pulp digester the combination with a plurality of steam inlet openings in the middle or cylindrical part of the digester of mechanical means for causing the digester liquor to circulate in an unidirectional current through the digester.

1,807,545. PROCESS OF MAKING PHENOL ALDEHYDE CONDENSATION PRODUCTS. ALFONS OSTERSETZER, Klosterneuburg, and FRANZ RIESENFELD, Vienna, Austria, assignors to Pollopas Limited, Nottingham, England, a Company of England. Filed Mar. 20, 1928, Serial No. 263,206, and in Austria Apr. 6, 1927. 3 Claims. (Cl. 260—4.)



2. In the process of making a resinous condensation product of a phenol and an aldehyde, the herein described improvement which comprises heating a phenol and a reactive aldehyde in the presence of a condensing agent, until the condensation reaction takes place, and adding a protective colloid at a stage not later than such reaction being effected, and keeping the mass hot to allow any unreacted phenol and aldehyde to be dissolved out of the reaction mass, while the latter is in a finely divided condition.

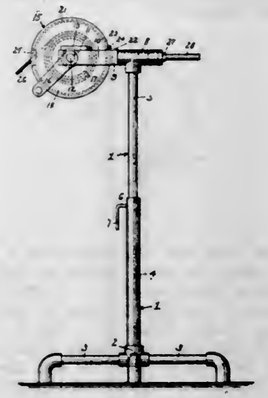
1,807,546. FASTENING DEVICE FOR SHIRTS. FRANK X. PLANTE, Sloatsburg, N. Y. Filed Mar. 26, 1930. Serial No. 439,118. 4 Claims. (Cl. 2—128.)



1. For joining the ends of a neckband of a shirt, and also for attaching a detachable collar to said neckband, a fastening device consisting of a securing element made of cord, tape or like material and having three members united to each other, each of two of said members being secured at one end to said neckband to form a loop, and the third member being adapted to be passed through a hole in the neckband and holes in the collar and then be projected into said loop.

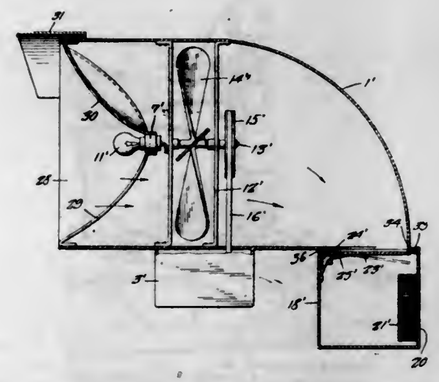
1,807,547. MACHINE FOR AUTOMATICALLY PRINTING PHOTOGRAPHIC PROOFS. PIERRE AUGUSTE MARCELLIN PRIOU, Chinon, France. Filed Mar. 10, 1930, Serial No. 434,744, and in France Mar. 11, 1929. 6 Claims. (Cl. 95—73.)

1. An automatic printing machine for photographic proofs, comprising,—a box open on one of its side faces,—lamps adjustable in position within the said box,—a frame hinged by its lower edge on the said box, a ground glass carried by this frame and adapted to serve as support for vignetting-papers and for covering the opening of the box, a latch pivoted on the box for holding the said frame in the raised position,—a plate-carrying framing comprising two frames pivoting, on their lower edge, about the axis of the ground glass frame, and adapted to be superposed and to be raised against the ground glass frame, a transparent glass for the first of these frames, a frame sliding in the second one, springs arranged between these two frames for pushing back the sliding frame towards the transparent glass and resiliently pressing the negative plates previously placed on the sliding frame,—a double clip on the upper side of the second frame for holding the masks in position,—spring latches for locking together the two frames constituting the plate-carrying framing,—a counterweight for holding this framing in printing position,—means carried by the sliding frame for putting out of action the springs acting on the latter and allowing to release the negative plates after printing,—two arms pivoted on the upper part of the box, a pressing plate resiliently suspended between these arms, and adapted to fit in the sliding frame for pressing the photographic paper during printing,—means for locking the pressing plate in printing position,—an exposure-counter secured on the said box,—a lever pivoted on the said box for controlling the starting of the exposure-counter,—means carried by one of the arms supporting the pressing plate and adapted to actuate the said lever at the end of the folding down stroke of the pressing plate and putting in action the exposure-counter,—means carried by the plate-carrying framing and adapted to be actuated by the above mentioned means for opening this framing and unlocking the negative plates after printing.



1,807,548. DEVICE FOR CONTROLLING WINDOWS OF THE SLIDING TYPE. WILLIAM QUICK, London, SYDNEY EDWARD THOMAS, Hounslow, and FREDERICK WILLIAM BERWICK, London, England. Filed Apr. 25, 1929, Serial No. 358,047, and in Great Britain May 25, 1928. 2 Claims. (Cl. 16—198.)

1. In a window of the type described, a casing and a sash slidable in said casing, oppositely disposed springs mounted on the sash, each of said springs having one end connected to the sash, pulleys also mounted in the sash to which the other ends of said springs are connected, a cable movable over said pulleys, and having one end connected to the casing and the other end to one of the pulleys for the purpose of tensioning the springs during the travel of the window in one direction.



1,807,549. REVOLVING WASTE PIPE OPENING MACHINE. AMEL REBER, San Bernardino, Calif. Filed Nov. 29, 1929. Serial No. 410,632. 1 Claim. (Cl. 242—85.)

A machine of the class described, comprising a base member, a standard comprising a fixed lower section and upper section telescopically fitting the lower section, means carried by one of said sections and coacting with the other section to hold the last mentioned section in different positions of elevation, a T-coupling mounted at the upper end of the second mentioned section of the upright, a shaft rotatably mounted in the T-coupling, a U-shaped frame mounted upon the coupling, a shaft journalled for rotation in the side members of the frame, a drum fixed upon the shaft, a casing surrounding the drum, the drum having heads provided with flanges of annular form rotatably fitting in the opposite sides of the casing, the casing having an opening for the passage therethrough of a cable to be wound upon the drum, and coacting means upon the casing and the said frame for holding the casing against rotation with the drum.

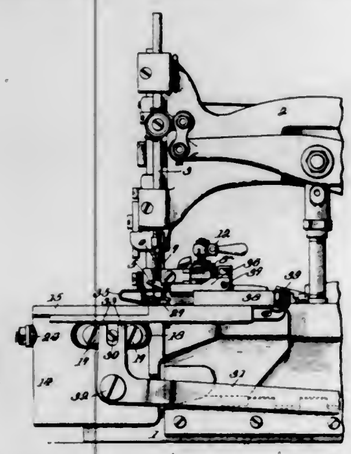
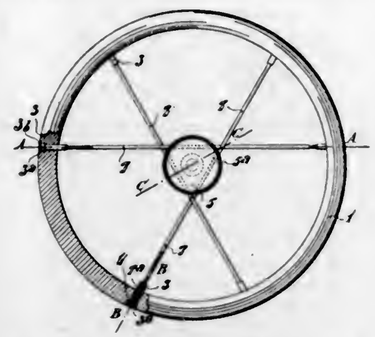
1,807,550. INSECT TRAP. LOUIS J. L. RECTOR, Amissville, Va. Filed May 2, 1930. Serial No. 449,270. 2 Claims. (Cl. 43—139.)



1. An insect trap comprising a casing having an open end and tapered from said end toward its other end, a source of illumination at the first mentioned end of the casing, a suction fan in the casing in rear of the source of illumination to attract insects, a trapping compartment at the last mentioned end of the casing, the source of illumination being spaced inwardly from the open end of the casing, and a reflector assemblage within the casing between the fan and the open end of the casing, the said assemblage comprising two reflectors arranged at opposite sides of the source of illumination, each reflector having the form of a segment of a hollow conoid, the concave sides of the reflectors being presented in the path of rays from the source of illumination and the lower edges being curved downwardly and in opposite directions to provide a space for the entry of insects into the casing, and another reflector also having the form of a segment of a hollow conoid and arranged between the first mentioned reflectors and having its convex side presented in the path of rays from the source of illumination and toward the space between the first mentioned reflectors.

1,807,551. CURTAIN RING AND EYE. HENRY REUBEL, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Kroder Reubel Co., Incorporated, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 21, 1929. Serial No. 372,734. 3 Claims. (Cl. 156—21.)

1. A curtain ring and eye, comprising a ring and an eye therefor, said eye being formed of half-round wire with one portion looped to produce an eye structure, the remaining portion looped to produce a clamping portion, said clamping portion being of a size to encircle and clamp part of said ring, said loops being made on the same side of the wire, so that the flat side will engage the ring and will also be positioned interiorly of the eye structure.



1,807,552. MACHINE FOR TRIMMING AND HEMMING FABRIC SECTIONS. ALBERT S. RIVIERE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Union Special Machine Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 20, 1929. Serial No. 372,391. 7 Claims. (Cl. 112—126.)

1. A sewing machine including in combination a stitch forming mechanism, trimming devices including a stationary trimming blade and a movable trimming blade, a guide for guiding the folded portion of a fabric section past the trimming devices and to the needle of the stitching mechanism whereby said needle enters and emerges from the same face of the folded fabric section, and means whereby said trimming devices and guide may be shifted laterally of the line of feed at the will of the operator without stopping the stitching mechanism to permit the passing of a cross seam without deflecting the advancing folded portion of the fabric out of the path of the needle.

1,807,553. STEERING WHEEL. CHARLES HENRI HILAIRE RODANET, Versailles, France, assignor to Société Anonyme Etablissements Ed. Jaeger, Levallois-Perret, France. Filed Nov. 26, 1929, Serial No. 409,914, and in France Dec. 22, 1928. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—33.)

1. In a steering wheel, a circular rim, rods stretched rectilinearly in one and the same plane between two points of the said rim so as not to pass through the geometrical axis of the said rim, a hub formed by two members one of which has rectilinear recesses for the passage of the rods and means for securing the two members of the hub together.

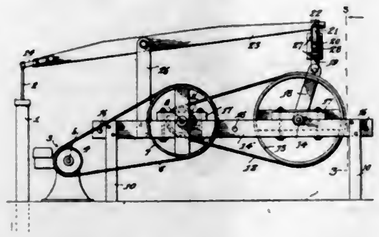
1,807,554. ALLOY FOR TURBINE BLADES AND MACHINE PARTS EXPOSED TO SIMILAR CONDITIONS. WILHELM ROHN, Hanau, Germany. Filed Dec. 16, 1926, Serial No. 155,345, and in Germany Dec. 28, 1925. 1 Claim. (Cl. 253—77.)

A turbine blade which is non-corrodible and non-sensitive by heat treatment to the thermal, mechanical and physical conditions of use, consisting of an alloy comprising 10 to 40% of chromium, 40 to 85% of a nickel-like metal, 10 to 40% of iron, and up to 15% of a toughening metal having the characteristics of tungsten, the alloy being substantially free from carbon.

1,807,555. PACKING. HIRAM C. RUGOLES, Phoenix, Ariz., assignor of one-half to John M. Aitken, Phoenix, Ariz. Filed Jan. 21, 1929. Serial No. 333,953. 5 Claims. (Cl. 286—24.)



1. In combination with a rod movably mounted within a stuffing-box, a packing comprising a plurality of rings inter-connected to form a rigid assembly receivable within said stuffing-box and encircling said rod, means spacing said rings to define annular recesses therebetween opening into the bore of said assembly, a plurality of arcuate packing blocks slidably disposed in each of said recesses, means urging said blocks radially inwards against said rod, guides on said rings limiting the movement of each of said blocks to radial movement, said guides extending inwards from the outer periphery of said recess and terminating short of the inner periphery thereof, and an extension on each end of each of said blocks extending into engagement with the proximal projection of the adjacent block.

1,807,556. PUMPING DEVICE. EDWARD SANDERS, Blackwell, Tex. Filed Apr. 15, 1930. Serial No. 444,526. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—71.)

a rotatable shaft, a crank on said shaft, a link having one end pivotally connected to said crank, a bracket having one end secured to said link and further having its opposite end offset and arranged in spaced parallel relation to said link, said walking beam having its opposite end extending between and pivotally connected with the offset end of the bracket and the opposite end of said link, and a counter weight having the end portions of a pair of U-bolts secured thereto, said U-bolts having their central portions extending around said link, said U-bolts being disposed on opposite sides of the connection between the bracket and link.

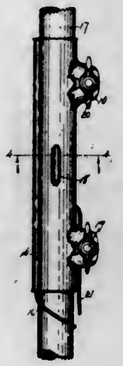
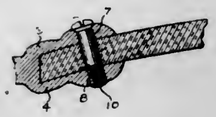
1,807,557. LOCKING CLASP. JACOB SCHIERER, New York, N. Y. Filed June 3, 1930. Serial No. 459,101. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—322.)



3. In a locking clasp, a strip of metal having a locking tubular member on one end thereof, the said end portion being folded upon itself to present a closing portion for the open base portion of said tubular member, and an obstructing member integral with said strip which projects through said tubular member and which is bent over the entrance end of said tubular member.

1,807,558. MARKER FOR MARKING CONTAINER COVERS. MATHEW M. SEDWICK, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Continental Can Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 16, 1929. Serial No. 414,430. 4 Claims. (Cl. 101—4.)

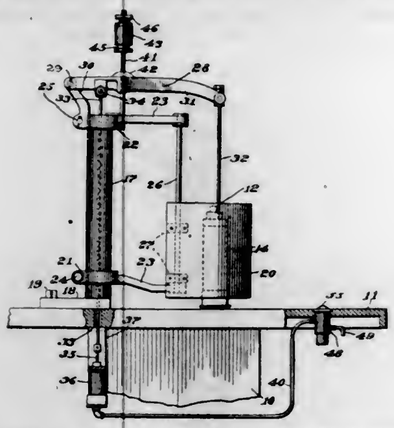


1. A marking device for covers including cooperating marking heads, a shaft on which each head is mounted, a pair of rotatable sleeves, one for each shaft, the shafts being mounted on said sleeves at one side of the center thereof, means for rotating the sleeves, and means for preventing the shafts from rotating in the sleeves whereby the marking heads are maintained in vertical position throughout their bodily movement.

1,807,559. HANDLE COUPLING AND PROCESS OF CONSTRUCTING THE SAME. CURTISS F. SMITH, West Hartford, Conn., assignor to The Fuller Brush Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed Nov. 23, 1927. Serial No. 235,302. 7 Claims. (Cl. 287—110.)

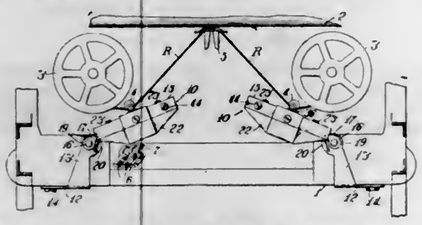
1. A coupling for broom handles and similar articles, said coupling being formed from a single blank of sheet material and comprising a longitudinally split tubular member open at opposite ends; and an enlarging element formed independently of the portions forming the split and spaced therefrom circumferentially of said member to be bent to change the size of the coupling.

1,807,560. EYEGLASS MOUNTING. IVAR SUNDSTROM, Rochester, N. Y., assignor to Shuron Optical Company, Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 25, 1929. Serial No. 358,010. 1 Claim. (Cl. 88—42.)



A mount for a curved lens having a screw opening, one end of which is at a greater distance from the edge of the lens than the other, said mount having a shank, an elongated base portion arranged to engage the periphery of the lens and extending in opposite directions from said shank, arms of unequal lengths corresponding to the distances of the ends of the screw opening in the lens from its edge extending directly inwardly from said base portion in contact with the faces of the lens, said arms having their lens-engaging faces substantially parallel to each other and inclined with reference to the inner surface of said base portion, and ears on the inner ends of said arms having openings therein arranged to aline with the opposite ends of said screw opening in the lens.

1,807,561. CUTTER GUARD. ALPHONZO WHITE, Winchendon, Mass., assignor to Baxter D. Whitney & Son, Inc., Winchendon, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 29, 1929. Serial No. 389,223. 3 Claims. (Cl. 144—251.)



1. In combination with a shaper having a work supporting table, a power driven cutter and a hollow cutter-steadying post; a cutter guard, a frame fastened to said post for supporting the guard for sliding movement to and from the cutter protecting position, a guard operating lever pivotally supported by said post and connected to the guard, a rod extending upwardly through said post to operate the lever, a fluid operated piston mounted below the table to actuate the rod, and a valve for controlling the operating fluid supplied to said piston.

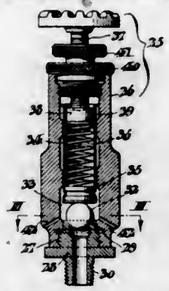
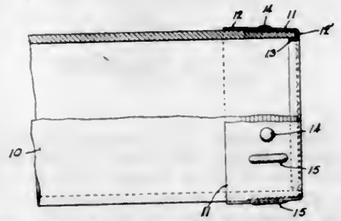
1,807,562. INKING DEVICE. WALTER H. YOUNG and EMIL O. ECKLAND, Chicago, Ill.; said Eckland assignor to said Young. Filed Jan. 18, 1926. Serial No. 82,005. 20 Claims. (Cl. 197—171.)



13. In combination with a ribbon printing machine, an ink container mounted on said machine for cooperation with a printing ribbon, means supported by said container for applying fluid from the interior of the container to the surface of the ribbon while the latter is in use, a bracket on which said container is pivotally supported, means for adjusting the position of the bracket with respect to the printing ribbon and means on the bracket for yieldingly forcing the container in direction towards the inking ribbon.

1,807,563. PROCESS OF EMULSIFYING WATER INSOLUBLE SUBSTANCES. HARRY BENNETT, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Mar. 30, 1929. Serial No. 351,452. 4 Claims. (Cl. 134—1.)

1. A process of forming an aqueous emulsion comprising adding mono-ethanolamine to linoleic acid and heating the mass at atmospheric pressures; thereafter adding xylidin and agitating the mass; then slowly adding water with continued agitation until the temperature recedes to atmospheric temperature.



1,807,564. PRESSURE REGULATING VALVE. HARRY M. BLINN, Baltimore, Md., assignor to Doughnut Machine Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Nov. 18, 1927. Serial No. 234,273. 3 Claims. (Cl. 137—53.)

1. A valve of the character described embodying a casing; a closure ball co-operating with a seat afforded by a removable bushing in one end of the casing; said closure ball occupying a chamber set apart in the casing with provision accommodating bleed exhaust; a hollow cylindric pressure member with an interfitting follower, said member being confined to movement axially of the valve seat and having a closed end in single point rolling contact with the ball whereby the latter is accorded absolute freedom of lateral action in accurately seeking its seat; a resistor spring within the hollow of the pressure member intermediate the closed end and follower serving to constantly resist valve opening; and means having single point bearing contact with the follower for regulating the force exerted by the spring.

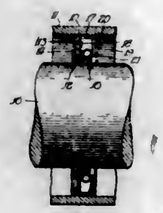
1,807,565. PIPE THREAD PROTECTOR. HOWARD J. BURNISH, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to A. O. Smith Corporation, Milwaukee, Wis., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 12, 1927. Serial No. 219,022. 10 Claims. (Cl. 137—91.)

1. A thread protector formed as a metal shell with perforations in its wall and adapted to shield the threads to be protected, and means comprising separate soft metal plugs seated in the perforations in the wall of the shell and adapted to engage the threads to detachably secure the shell in protecting position in relation to the threads.

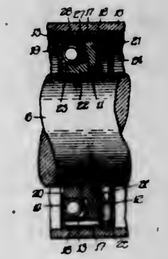
1,807,566. MANUFACTURE OF BLOWN GLASSWARE. ROBERT W. CANFIELD, West Hartford, Conn., assignor to Hartford-Empire Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 21, 1927. Serial No. 176,988. 61 Claims. (Cl. 49—5.)

1. Apparatus for making blown glassware comprising a continuously rotatable support for a strip or ribbon of molten glass, said support having a plurality of downwardly opening orifices for the issue of glass from said strip, a plurality of blow molds rotatable with said support and each adapted to close beneath one of said orifices for enclosing glass issuing from said orifice, and means for blowing air through said orifice into the interior of the glass while the glass is enclosed in said mold.



14. Apparatus for shaping hollow glassware comprising a movable carrier, a plurality of glass fabricating units removably mounted on said carrier, each unit including a parison support having an orifice provided therein, a blow head and an associated blow mold, and means for feeding a ribbon of glass upon said supports and in a position extending over a plurality of said orifices.

1,807,567. OIL SEAL. HAROLD A. CLARK, Northbrook, Ill., assignor to Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed June 25, 1928. Serial No. 288,093. 10 Claims. (Cl. 288—1.)



1. In a seal, two axially spaced centrally apertured cage members, one of which is attached to the other, a flexible sheet packing which is shiftable radially within the space enclosed by said cage members and has a radially flanged portion in shiftable fluid-tight association with the inner face of one of said cage members and an axially sleeved portion of smaller inside diameter than the apertures in said cage members for rotatable fluid-tight association with a shaft passing through the same, a spacer member which is positioned about the axially sleeved portion of said packing and is clamped under pressure against the radially flanged portion of said packing by the inner face of the other of said cage members, and a spring member which is positioned under tension within the spacer member about the axially sleeved portion of said packing for constricting the packing on the shaft.

1,807,568. OIL SEAL. HAROLD A. CLARK, Northbrook, Ill., assignor to Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed July 9, 1928. Serial No. 291,165. 2 Claims. (Cl. 288—1.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a self-contained seal for insertion as an assembled unit within a tubular housing in encompassing relation to a centrally located shaft, consisting of a cup-shaped cage, a cup-shaped ring of substantially the same outside diameter as the inside of the cage nested within the cage, a radially flanged packing also of substantially the same outside diameter as the inside of the cage positioned in the cage with the radially extending portion of the packing clamped immovably between the bottom of the cage and the bottom of the ring, and a washer secured between the rim of the cage and the rim of the ring.

1,807,569. OIL RETAINER. HAROLD A. CLARK, Northbrook, Ill,. assignor to Chicago Rawhide Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 7, 1929. Serial No. 344,937. 2 Claims. (Cl. 288—1.)

1. As an article of manufacture, a self-contained seal for insertion as an assembled unit within a cylindrical housing in encompassing relation to a centrally located shaft, consisting of a flat centrally apertured sheet metal cup, an annular packing member positioned in the cup, and a closure member disposed within the rim of the cup; the portion of the periphery of the cup near the bottom of the latter being cylindrical for forced fit engagement with the inner wall of the housing, the portion of the periphery of the cup near the rim of the latter being tapered to interlock axially with the closure member in spaced relation to the inner wall of the housing, and the portion of the periphery of the closure member encircled by the tapered portion of the cup being similarly tapered to interfit therewith.

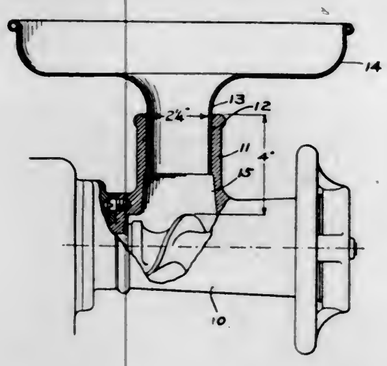
1,807,570. SELF DEODORIZING SEALING COMPOSITION. BRADLEY DEWEY, Cambridge, Mass., assignor to Dewey and Almy Chemical Company, North Cambridge, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Feb. 14, 1928. Serial No. 254,320. 6 Claims. (Cl. 106—8.)

3. A closure sealing composition comprising a body material containing glue and absorbent charcoal.

1,807,571. LINEN SHOE THREAD. WALTER W. EVANS, Longmeadow, Mass., assignor to Ludlow Manufacturing Associates, Ludlow, Mass., a Trust of Massachusetts. Filed Sept. 29, 1930. Serial No. 485,328. 7 Claims. (Cl. 117—53.)

1. A linen shoe thread having a small amount of poisoning or dehydrating disinfectant incorporated therein to preserve the shoe thread against objectionable deterioration by micro-organisms in street dirt and the like.

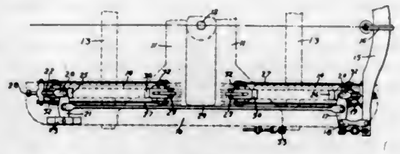
1,807,572. SHOE. WALTER W. EVANS, Longmeadow, Mass., assignor to Ludlow Manufacturing Associates, Ludlow, Mass., a Trust of Massachusetts. Original application filed Sept. 29, 1930, Serial No. 485,328. Divided and this application filed Apr. 14, 1931. Serial No. 530,154. 6 Claims. (Cl. 117—52.)



1. A shoe sewed with a linen shoe thread having a small amount of a poisoning or dehydrating disinfectant incorporated therein to preserve the shoe thread against objectionable deterioration by micro-organisms in street dirt and the like.

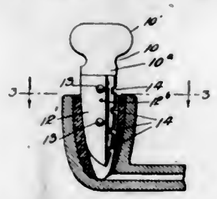
1,807,573. SNATH. ARTHUR J. GIBBONS, near Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Louisa D. Gibbons, Camby, Ind. Filed July 5, 1929. Serial No. 376,028. 3 Claims. (Cl. 56—325.)

1. A snath comprising a length of relatively flat bar metal having a scythe attaching end and a handle end, said bar having a twist therein whereby the flat face of said handle end is angularly disposed in relation to the face of said scythe end.



1,807,574. MEAT GRINDER. HERBERT L. JOHNSTON, Troy, Ohio, assignor to The Hobart Manufacturing Company, Troy, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 26, 1923. Serial No. 682,688. 8 Claims. (Cl. 146—189.)

1. A meat grinder of the character described comprising a chopper cylinder adapted to receive a worm therein, an inlet secured thereto and having a passage therethrough opening into said cylinder and of a length materially in excess of its width, said passage being of such cross-sectional area at a point relatively distant from said worm as to prevent the adult operator extending his fingers into contact with the worm.



1,807,575. CLASP BRAKE RIGGING. WILLIAM H. MUSSEY, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Pullman Car and Manufacturing Corporation, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 9, 1929. Serial No. 361,667. 3 Claims. (Cl. 188—56.)

1. A clasp brake rigging for pivotal car trucks comprising a truck frame and a plurality of pairs of wheels, dead brake levers fulcrumed on shoes applied to the inner sides of adjacent pairs of wheels, live brake levers fulcrumed on shoes applied to the other side of said wheels, tie bars connecting the lower ends of the levers of each pair, equalizing levers extending inwardly from the truck sides for connection to the upper ends of adjacent live levers, an equalizing radius bar connected to the opposite ends of certain of said equalizing levers, and a pull rod connecting said equalizing bars intermediate their ends.

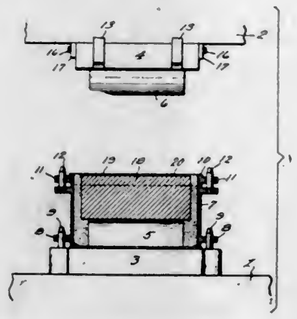
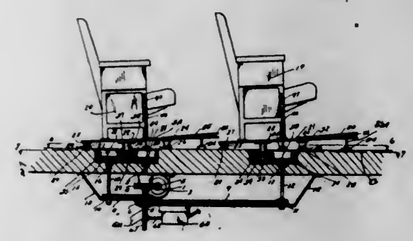
1,807,576. TOBACCO PIPE REAMER. FREDERICK KREKELER, Woodside, N. Y. Filed May 1, 1928. Serial No. 274,181. 2 Claims. (Cl. 131—13.)



1. A tobacco pipe reamer embodying, in combination, an operating member having a blade portion extensible within the bowl of the pipe and provided with a plurality of slots arranged in parallel relationship, and a cutting element mounted in said parallel slots to have a guided, automatic movement bodily in relation to said blade, said cutting element and blade portion being arranged, upon insertion of the reamer into the pipe, to cause the said cutting element to engage the wall of the pipe adjacent to the outer edge of the bowl and to cause an expansion of the two elements during an inward boring movement of the reamer.

1,807,577. BUTTONHOLE SEWING MACHINE. EDWARD B. ALLEN, Newtown, Conn., assignor to The Singer Manufacturing Company, Elizabeth, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Nov. 29, 1927. Serial No. 236,402. 11 Claims. (Cl. 112—68.)



1. In a buttonhole sewing machine, in combination, stitch-forming mechanism, buttonhole cutting mechanism, control means for varying the sequence of operations of said mechanisms, clamp-closing mechanism, clamp-opening mechanism, and means connected with said control means for insuring the invariable opening of the work-clamp subsequent to the stitching and cutting operations.

1,807,578. SAND DISPLACER. DAN J. MCAVOY, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Grabler Manufacturing Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Dec. 29, 1928. Serial No. 329,242. 8 Claims. (Cl. 22—25.)

1. In a molding apparatus the combination of co-operating patterns positioned one above the other and movable toward and from each other, a mold flask positioned about the lower pattern, a sand frame in alignment with and removably secured to the upper edge of said mold flask, and sand displacing means in said flask about which sand is run when the mold flask is filled, said means being removable after the mold flask and sand frame are filled, leaving a depression in the sand into which the upper pattern is pressed as the parts are moved toward each other in compressing the sand in said mold flask.

1,807,579. SEAT POSITIONING DEVICE. LEE OTIS THOMPSON, Vancouver, Wash. Filed Dec. 15, 1927. Serial No. 240,274. 12 Claims. (Cl. 155—33.)

2. In a device of the class described, the combination of an endless guideway, a series of seats comprising two rows of seats, each having a downwardly extending spindle adapted to being moved within the guideway, a sprocket disposed upon the spindle, driven chains adapted to engage the sprocket and to impart lateral movement thereto on a part of its travel along the guideway and a gear segment adapted to engage one side of the sprocket on a part of the circumference of the guideway, and selective means for predetermining the direction of travel of the seats of the series.

Wulfert, Otto, assignor to Wagner Electric Corporation, St. Louis, Mo. Sheet metal governor weight. 1,809,007; June 9.
Wunderlich, Milton S., assignor to Flaxlinum Insulating Company, St. Paul, Minn. Plaster board. 1,808,976; June 9.
Yencer, Carl D. (See Bledsoe, G. W., Lloyd, and Yencer.)
York Ice Machinery Corporation. (See Shipley, Thomas, assignor.)
Young, Cecil G., Dover, N. J. Propellant charge for projectiles and forming the same. 1,808,877; June 9.
Young, Charles D., Wayne, Pa. Container handling system and apparatus. 1,809,540; June 9.
Zerweck, Werner. (See Thiess, K., Meissner, and Zerweck.)
Zieley, John D., Belmar, N. J., and H. E. Roys, New York, N. Y., said Roys assignor to said Zieley. Game. 1,809,098; June 9.

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF INVENTIONS

PATENTS WERE ISSUED ON THE 9TH DAY OF JUNE, 1931.

NOTE.—Arranged in accordance with the first significant character or word of the name (in accordance with city and telephone directory practice). Includes patents, reissues, and designs.

Accelerator attachment. F. M. Butler. 1,809,021; June 9.
Accelerator of vulcanization. J. Teppema. 1,809,457; June 9.
Accessories for underfloor duct system. H. S. Walker. 1,809,613; June 9.
Accumulators. Metallic filling for cold. M. Fränkl. 1,808,921; June 9.
Acetylene generator. J. L. Mandeville. 1,809,521; June 9.
Acetylene, Process and apparatus for storing. E. G. Luening. 1,808,900; June 9.
Acid and 4-dimethylamino-2,3-dimethyl-1-phenyl-5-pyrazolon, Additive compound of diethyl barbituric. P. Pfeiffer. 1,808,994; June 9.
Acid fuming and decomposition process for the recovery of zinc, Sulphuric. H. A. Mayer and R. G. La Motte. 1,808,929; June 9.
Acids by fermentation, Production of organic. F. J. Cahn. 1,809,797; June 9.
Adjustable bracket. C. A. Bruning. 1,809,018; June 9.
Advertising display mechanism. P. A. Egeland. 1,809,162; June 9.
Aeroplane body, Nonsinkable. L. Nycz. 1,809,061; June 9.
Aeroplane wing. J. P. Fedor. 1,808,842; June 9.
Agricultural implement. G. H. Bickerton. 1,808,759; June 9.
Air conditioner. G. D. Harris. 1,808,982; June 9.
Aircraft. M. B. Pupp. 1,809,253; June 9.
Aircraft, Propulsion of. R. H. Goddard. 1,809,271; June 9.
Aircrafts and the like, Wing structure for. G. Miller. 1,809,721; June 9.
Air mixing apparatus for internal combustion motors, Automatic. L. A. Hart. 1,808,814; June 9.
Airplane. R. H. Royster. 1,808,996; June 9.
Airplane automatic control. A. E. Elsea. 1,808,771; June 9.
Airship. M. M. Egan. 1,809,680; June 9.
Alarm: See— Valve alarm.
Alcohol from olefines, Production of. S. R. Merley. 1,809,788; June 9.
Aldol condensation products and vulcanization of caoutchouc therewith. L. B. Sebrell. 1,809,454; June 9.
Alligator wrench. J. Rubalcaba. 1,808,821; June 9.
Alloy and producing same, Stainless chromium. C. W. Carman. 1,809,437; June 9.
Amino-1,1'-anthrimidcarbazols, New. W. Mieg, O. and F. Baumann. 1,809,212; June 9.
Anchor for typewriters. L. Foval. 1,809,685; June 9.
Anchorage. W. H. Wheeler and J. C. Logan. 1,809,464–5; June 9.
Animal trap. S. Nelson. 1,808,903; June 9.
Antenna array, Directional. J. S. Stone. 1,808,867–9; June 9.
Antioxidant or age-resistor. A. M. Clifford. 1,809,798–9; June 9.
Antiskid device. O. Lance. 1,808,852; June 9.
Antiskidding device. C. Uhlman. 1,808,797; June 9.
Arch support. W. M. Scholl. 1,809,731; June 9.
Arch support, Adjustable. S. S. Baer. 1,809,010; June 9.
Area measuring by light. G. W. O. Martin. 1,809,346; June 9.
Argillaceous product, Making vitreous. W. B. Pine and J. B. and M. C. Shaw. 1,809,215; June 9.
Argillaceous product, Vitrified. W. B. Pine and J. B. and M. C. Shaw. 1,809,214; June 9.
Armature, Bar wound. V. G. Apple. 1,808,749; June 9.
Aroma testing of cedar chests. E. C. Crocker. 1,808,838; June 9.
Articles for coating, Apparatus for handling. R. F. Brimer. 1,809,190; June 9.
Articles with X-rays, Apparatus for treating. F. S. Smith. 1,809,078; June 9.
Ashes, Apparatus for handling. F. B. Allen. 1,809,501; June 9.
Audion tube. R. B. Dowler, jr. 1,809,475; June 9.
Auto body and top. J. Campbell. 1,809,505; June 9.
Auto heater. L. H. Patten. 1,809,528; June 9.
Automobile hood. L. J. Fox. Des. 84,330; June 9.
Auto sled attachment. J. T. Dunnigan. 1,809,161; June 9.
Awning fixture. J. W. Shaw. 1,808,823; June 9.
Axles, Electric motor automotive. V. G. Apple. 1,808,748; June 9.
Bacon and the like, Apparatus for broiling. C. W. Carter. 1,809,580; June 9.
Bag: See—
Golf bag.
Bag filler. O. Wiken. 1,809,091; June 9.
Ball game apparatus. A. Weinberg. 1,808,802; June 9.
Ball joint connection. G. H. Hufferd and M. P. Graham. 1,809,703; June 9.
Bar: See—
Joint bar.
Barber pole illumination. M. W. Berger. 1,808,880; June 9.
Barrel rack. N. Lang, jr. 1,808,988; June 9.
Battery: See—
Dry cell battery.
Battery connecter terminal. D. Schaffer. 1,809,452; June 9.
Beaded welt. A. L. Howard. 1,809,555; June 9.
Bearing for clutch releases. D. E. Gamble. 1,808,980; June 9.
Bearings and bushings, Apparatus for finishing. T. D. Bowes. 1,809,545; June 9.
Bearings, Side. D. C. Davis. 1,808,839; June 9.
Beeswax, Treating. W. S. Baylis. 1,808,755; June 9.
Belt, Stranded. E. A. Connor. 1,809,023; June 9.
Bench: See—
Greenhouse bench. Shop bench.
Beryllium or its alloys, Manufacture of metallic. H. Fischer. 1,809,442; June 9.
Billboard, Interchangeable block. G. W. Eschenbach. 1,809,378; June 9.
Billing machine aligner. L. F. Hagemann. 1,809,590; June 9.
Biscuit, cake and pie machine. J. S. Acosta. 1,809,263; June 9.
Bit: See—
Drilling bit.
Bit having tangential blades. 1,809,182; June 9.
Block: See—
Blowpipe. J. E. Vincent. 1,809,652; June 9.
Board: See—
Plaster board.
Boat release and utility hook, Combination automatic. O. D. Butler. 1,809,945; June 9.
Bobbin clutch for spindles. D. Lemcine and G. Fournier. 1,809,049; June 9.
Boiler: See—
Steam boiler.
Boiler cleaner. N. L. Snow and C. F. Hirshfeld. 1,809,221; June 9.
Boiler construction, Water tube. K. L. Martin. 1,809,133; June 9.
Boiler with superheater. C. W. Gordon. 1,808,951; June 9.
Bookmark. R. H. Moore. 1,808,931; June 9.
Boot and shoe. F. W. East. 1,809,194; June 9.
Booth, Voting. I. S. Draper. 1,808,946; June 9.
Boring and tapping machine, Horizontal. J. S. Barnes. 1,809,188; June 9.
Bottle. E. Becker and I. Miller. Des. 84,317; June 9.
Bottle capping and sealing machine. H. B. Foulder. 1,809,587; June 9.
Bottles, Mechanism for capping. O. Larsen. 1,809,129; June 9.
Box: See—
Collapsible box. Stuffing box.
Slide box.
Brace chuck. C. S. Thomas. 1,808,940; June 9.
Bracket: See—
Adjustable bracket. Window box bracket.
Shade bracket.
Brake: See—
Vacuum brake. Vehicle brake.
Brake. E. G. Gunn. 1,809,411; June 9.
Brake. H. Perrot and G. Calvignac. 1,809,568; June 9.
Brake drum and wheel. D. M. White. 1,808,088; June 9.
Brake for scales, Dash-pot. C. F. M. van Berkel and A. van Duyn. 1,809,084; June 9.
Brake or dashpot, Liquid. A. van Duyn. 1,809,083; June 9.
Brake mechanism. A. H. Edgerton. 1,808,947; June 9.
Brake mechanism, Vacuum. C. S. Bragg and V. W. Kliesrath. 1,809,014; June 9.
Brake mechanism for motor vehicles. W. J. Besler. 1,809,328; June 9.
Brake rigging, Foundation. W. H. Sauvage. 1,809,729; June 9.
Braking mechanism. A. H. G. Girling. 1,809,479; June 9.
Braking system for land vehicles, Fluid operated four wheel. D. C. Kellogg. 1,808,987; June 9.
Brick, Apparatus and process for texturing. J. E. Smith. 1,809,572; June 9.
Brick machine. J. N. Porter. 1,809,601; June 9.
Broiler. C. N. Dibble. 1,808,768; June 9.

Brush for cleaning pipes and tubes. J. H. Roe. 1,809,725; June 9.
Bucket construction. W. M. Venable. 1,808,800; June 9.
Buckets, Guiding means for trolley. H. E. Hallenbeck. 1,808,954; June 9.
Buckstay, Sectional. J. P. McLimans. 1,809,210; June 9.
Buffer. R. Beynon. 1,808,881; June 9.
Building. C. E. Barnes. 1,808,829; June 9.
Building block, Child's. W. H. Colby. 1,809,508; June 9.
Building construction. R. Carvel. 1,809,504; June 9.
Building material. F. Payne. 1,808,905; June 9.
Building, Storage. C. G. Mitchell. 1,809,140; June 9.
Building structure. E. A. Hermsen. Des. 84,339; June 9.
Bumper element for safety zones. J. De Gloria and H. C. Schroeder. 1,808,767; June 9.
Bunkers, Outlet apparatus for ash. R. H. Beamont. 1,809,771; June 9.
Burner: See—
Gas burner.
Burner supporting means. S. C. Gulick. 1,808,952; June 9.
Burner tip for torches. P. M. Forster. 1,809,113; June 9.
Cabinet, Display. R. T. Burrows. Des. 84,325; June 9.
Cabinet, Fireplace. R. J. Nachtigall. Des. 84,359–61; June 9.
Cabinet for radio receiving apparatus. C. S. Bradley. Des. 84,316; June 9.
Cable laying. F. Wilkens. 1,808,974; June 9.
Cables in hanger seats, Device for preventing the rotation of. J. Blackburn. 1,809,543; June 9.
Caddy. A. S. Ethridge. 1,808,772; June 9.
Calculating device. C. A. Glass. 1,808,981; June 9.
Calculating machine. M. G. de Simone. 1,809,811; June 9.
Calculating machine. W. J. Pasinski. 1,808,934; June 9.
Camera attachment, Panoramic. A. C. Hayden. 1,809,338; June 9.
Camera, Motor operated motion picture. P. A. Stephenson. 1,809,256; June 9.
Cameras, Automatic film moving device for single exposure. E. E. Ellis. 1,808,919; June 9.
Can: See—
Hand opening can. Tobacco can.
Canteen and mess kit, Combination. W. R. Nason. 1,809,596; June 9.
Car, Folding deck stock. A. R. Burke. 1,809,772; June 9.
Car, Mine. G. E. Jones, jr., and P. S. McCallen. 1,809,707; June 9.
Car, Sectional freight. G. C. Woodruff. 1,808,875; June 9.
Carbon black, Manufacture of. W. B. Wiegand. 1,809,290; June 9.
Carbon pack. K. R. Dencklau. 1,808,840; June 9.
Carbonating apparatus. J. E. Malone. 1,808,854; June 9.
Carburetor. W. C. Carter. 1,809,507; June 9.
Carburetor. J. L. Chesnutt. 1,809,108; June 9.
Carburetor. J. R. Francis. 1,808,843; June 9.
Carburetor. A. W. Lee and A. W. Hamby. 1,809,485; June 9.
Carburetor. S. E. Melkman. 1,809,387; June 9.
Carburetor. A. Pariente de la Cruz. 1,809,677; June 9.
Carburetor. C. N. Pogue. 1,809,531; June 9.
Carburetor. H. H. Timian. 1,809,648; June 9.
Cardboard flat in places, Pressing corrugated. L. Clemens. 1,809,472; June 9.
Cargoes by crane, Method of and apparatus for transferring. F. H. Weeks. 1,808,873; June 9.
Carrier: See—
Luggage carrier.
Carrier for spare wheels and tires. E. S. Hebeler. 1,808,983; June 9.
Case: See—
Display case. Waterproof bather's case.
Packing case.
Casing for a massage apparatus with hose and cup attached. S. Stephani, née Kaus. Des. 84,383; June 9.
Caster. G. M. Turner. 1,809,609; June 9.
Casting machine. H. G. Stecker. 1,809,289; June 9.
Casting machine, Centrifugal. J. B. Ladd. 1,809,631; June 9.
Casting machine, Line. S. E. Sperry. 1,809,760; June 9.
Catalytic reactions, Process and apparatus for. L. Gillett. 1,809,114; June 9.
Catch, Door. W. D. Ferris. 1,809,406; June 9.
Cathead, Safety. C. R. Edwards. 1,808,770; June 9.
Cathodes, Coating thermionic. J. R. Wilson and C. M. Blackburn. 1,809,095; June 9.
Cathodes, Making. H. T. Reeve. 1,809,067; June 9.
Cellulose according to the sulphite method, Manufacturing. T. E. Waenerlund. 1,809,499; June 9.
Cellulose ester composition. H. T. Clarke. 1,809,234; June 9.
Chain. N. K. Panzireff. 1,809,145; June 9.
Chain, Bracelet. G. U. Meyer. Des. 84,357; June 9.
Chain for timber in combination with a tightening device and key. K. R. A. Nylen. 1,809,420; June 9.
Chains, Device for applying antiskid. H. A. Frazier. 1,809,443; June 9.
Chair. A. W. Schram. 1,809,453; June 9.
Chair and bed, Combination. A. Walter. 1,809,226; June 9.
Charge for projectiles and forming the same, Propellant. C. G. Young. 1,808,877; June 9.
Chopper: See—
Cotton chopper.
Chromium plating machine, Automatic. C. G. Miller. 1,809,138; June 9.
Chuck structure. W. G. Mueller. 1,809,308; June 9.
Cigar package, Visible. A. J. Golden. 1,809,335; June 9.
Cigarette grasper. C. C. Riddell. 1,809,218; June 9.
Cigarettes right side up as they are fed to the packing machine, Apparatus for turning. M. Berger. 1,809,189; June 9.
Circuit breaker. O. S. Jennings. 1,809,275; June 9.
Circuit control system. J. C. Burkholder. 1,808,916; June 9.
Circuit, Electric control. E. V. Griggs. 1,809,625; June 9.
Circuit for automobiles, Control switch. R. K. Winning. 1,809,434; June 9.
Circuit, Repeater. B. G. Bjornson. 1,808,915; June 9.
Circuits applied to electrical musical instruments and the like, Oscillating. J. Bethenod. 1,809,503; June 9.
Circuits of telephones, Selectively controlling ringing. C. M. MacGregor. 1,809,176; June 9.
Clamp: See—
Skate clamp. Wire clamp.
Slider rail clamp.
Clamp and light housing, Instrument. J. E. Eshbaugh. 1,809,682; June 9.
Clamp device. J. Verderber. 1,809,576; June 9.
Clamp for battery terminal posts. T. Hofman. 1,808,775; June 9.
Clamping device. M. Wetzler. 1,809,768; June 9.
Clarinet and manufacture thereof. E. J. Gulick. 1,809,380; June 9.
Clasping device for wrist watch straps, bracelets, and the like. C. H. Kestenman. 1,809,278; June 9.
Cleaner: See—
Boiler cleaner. Vacuum cleaner.
Flue cleaner. Windshield cleaner.
Cleaner for tractors, Wheel. E. Pagaard. 1,808,861; June 9.
Cleaning mechanism, Fabric. H. Hemmerich. 1,809,122; June 9.
Cleaning pad. R. Busch, sr. 1,808,834; June 9.
Cleat, Halyard. W. A. Sague. 1,808,791; June 9.
Clip. C. A. Bulkeley. 1,809,400; June 9.
Clip and attaching the same, Fastening. G. Larsen. 1,808,779; June 9.
Clipper, Hand. L. J. Wahl. 1,809,459; June 9.
Clock case and shelving, Combined. H. Miller. Des. 84,358; June 9.
Closure for fluid or aspirating bottles and the like. E. Ocasek. 1,808,784; June 9.
Closure for milk bottles and other containers. F. K. Plympton. 1,809,791; June 9.
Cloth handling machine. R. A. Oesman. 1,809,213; June 9.
Clothespin. A. H. Graves. 1,809,689; June 9.
Coal distributing means. H. Adams. 1,809,261; June 9.
Coal unit, Artificial. C. W. Logan. 1,808,780; June 9.
Cock and holder therefor, Angle. L. A. Hoerr. 1,809,037; June 9.
Coin controlled lock. W. M. Gleason. 1,809,334; June 9.
Collapsible box, Telescopically. J. A. Powell. 1,809,355; June 9.
Collar, Adjustable. C. H. Morrow. 1,809,059; June 9.
Combination instrument. I. Daehlin. 1,809,775; June 9.
Combined light globe and traffic signal. R. J. Lackner. 1,809,785; June 9.
Commutator. V. G. Apple and W. M. Doehring. 1,808,750; June 9.
Compact, Pocket book. R. Katrinak. 1,809,517; June 9.
Compact and puff holder for vanity boxes. A. S. Lyhne. 1,808,961; June 9.
Compensator switch. A. M. Skudre. 1,809,641; June 9.
Composition for preservative treatment of fresh fruit. E. M. Brogden and M. L. Trowbridge. 1,809,016; June 9.
Composition for purifying petroleum oils. J. H. Hirt. 1,809,554; June 9.
Compressible and elastic material, Making. A. C. Fischer. 1,809,800; June 9.
Concrete fence post. G. E. Nagel. 1,809,757; June 9.
Concrete slab, Armored reenforced. G. E. Nagel. 1,809,756; June 9.
Concrete stave making machine. A. H. Nelson. 1,808,860; June 9.
Concrete structures, Molding. J. M. Willard. 1,808,912; June 9.
Condensation products and dyestuffs from thionaphthene-2.3-dicarboxylic acids and preparing the same. F. Mayer. 1,809,207; June 9.
Condenser control, Variable. M. H. Bennett. 1,809,371; June 9.
Conductor, Composite. W. G. Knox. 1,808,925; June 9.
Conductor, Insulated electrical. C. A. Barker. 1,809,011; June 9.
Conduit and molding, Combined. A. H. Tashjian. 1,809,223; June 9.
Conduit for steam and gas turbines, Supply. G. Bauer and C. Schmieske. 1,809,666; June 9.
Conduits, Building. L. H. Gladwin and N. G. Bruce. 1,809,802; June 9.
Conduits, Joining. B. C. Root. 1,809,313; June 9.
Connecter, Threadless. J. T. Pearson. 1,809,064; June 9.
Connection for universal joints or couplings. E. E. Culbertson. 1,809,404; June 9.
Container. H. C. Boardman. 1,809,013; June 9.
Container. C. P. Gallistel. 1,808,922; June 9.

Container cap lining machine, Automatic. T. Jensen. 1,809,341; June 9.
Container, Drop-bottom. L. M. Showers, jr. 1,809,640; June 9.
Container for bulk ice cream and other products, Sheet material. W. L. Wright. 1,808,975; June 9.
Container for cigarettes and the like. E. F. M. Décobert. 1,809,746; June 9.
Container for fragile articles, Packing. L. Mann. 1,809,559; June 9.
Container for packing and shipping fresh fruit. C. J. Horn. 1,809,702; June 9.
Container handling system and apparatus. C. D. Young. 1,809,540; June 9.
Container, Twine. C. J. Fulcher. 1,809,029; June 9.
Container, Volatile liquid. S. S. Weil. 1,808,801; June 9.
Container, Wrapped coin. C. E. McLean. 1,809,523; June 9.
Containers, Bottoming paper. W. L. Wright and J. T. Bond. 1,809,006; June 9.
Containers containing milk or other substances, Packing sealed. H. W. S. Palmer. 1,809,600; June 9.
Control device. C. H. Hodgkins. 1,809,299; June 9.
Control means, Rotary automatic. J. J. McGerry and C. H. Whiting. 1,808,901; June 9.
Control mechanism, Interlocking. T. C. Evans. 1,809,778; June 9.
Converter for electric current. J. H. and K. B. Cragg. 1,809,110; June 9.
Conveyer. J. A. Alger. 1,809,662; June 9.
Conveyer and transfer mechanism, Automatic. C. G. Miller. 1,809,137; June 9.
Conveyer mechanism. G. F. Croessant. 1,808,918; June 9.
Conveyer-separator. L. T. Evans. 1,809,586; June 9.
Cooker, Steam pressure. J. A. Smith. 1,809,079; June 9.
Cooking apparatus. G. R. Le Saufage. 1,809,172; June 9.
Cooling device for motors. A. J. Gifford and B. S. T. Bishop. 1,808,845; June 9.
Cooling scalp, Apparatus for. F. A. Hogrebe. 1,809,038; June 9.
Copper ingots and other articles, Apparatus for casting. D. R. Francis. 1,809,623; June 9.
